FIRE ON FEDERALS NEAR MEXICO CITY

Rebels Hold Mountains Above —Rurales Hurried to Protect Capital's Power Plant.

UNEASINESS IS GROWING

Concession Increases That Only Promise of Diaz's Resignation Can Avert Outbreak in City.

Special to The New York Times.

MEXICO CITY, March 31.—Four hundred rurales were hurried out of the city this last night to Nexaca, Puebla, where it is planned the electric plant which is the source of the light and power supply of the capital. It was reported that insurrecto bands were operating in the vicinity of that place and feared that they might undertake to put the plant out of commission. The train bearing the rurales was fired on and stoned within nine miles of the city. The soldiery aboard returned the fire of the assailants. No one was hurt, and only a few shots were fired. The affair was evidently the work of a few peons. The train stopped and a squad of rurales investigated, but could not find the guilty parties.

Nexaca, with its great dam and power plant, is now judged safe, the rurales having arrived there to-day. But many fear the cutting of the transmission line between that point and the capital, and that with the city dark overt acts of rebellion may begin. Many are laying in supplies for such an emergency.

Meantime the Eleventh Infantry has been sent to El Oro. The rebels, it is reported, are holding the mountains above the city. The insurrecto band which, it was feared, intended to interrupt communications with the city's power supply, only a few days ago committed depredations at Villa Juarez, a place lying a short distance to the southeast.

A very chilly reception awaited the new Foreign Minister, Señor de la Barra, on his arrival this evening. Less than 100 people were at the station, and no member of the new Cabinet was among them. Enrique C. Creel, the retiring Minister of Foreign Affairs, delivered an address of welcome, and when de la Barra responded there was weak applause.

Señor de la Barra refused to discuss the political situation.

The unrest in the city is increasing. It is the opinion of your correspondent now less than the promise of the resignation of President Diaz to take place and the pledge of sweeping reforms save a serious outbreak here.

A passenger train on the Mexican Central, south of Torreon, was held up Saturday by burned bridges. Fifty rurales stopped the regular train on the Durango Division of the Central, eighty miles from here, last night and searched the train, but nobody was molested. A bridge, however, was burned.

Much more or less critical uprising in the State of Guerrero is spreading. Acapulco is reported in a bad way and practically under control of the rebels. Gov. Esteban Fernandez of Durango, according to report, is expected to resign within a few days.

Elaborate decorations have been completed in the new Chamber of Deputies for the opening of Congress to-morrow at 6 P. M. The function is public, but this afternoon it was announced that admission would be only by ticket. Three hundred have been issued and distributed to a carefully selected list of people. Conservative Maderists are thought to be holding more rabid factions in check awaiting the promises of the President's message.

Many army officers are in the penitentiary charged with having been concerned in a recent plot to seize the barracks of Tacubaya, so an opportunely discovered and thwarted by the secret police.

Most of the stores are closing at 6 P. M. as a precaution. No cash is left in the safes or cash registers; all is sent to the banks. Many persons who now have to use electric power are installing gas lamps for fear of the cutting of the city supply line.

BATTLE RAGED TWO DAYS.

Rebels Lost Seniors Fight for Lack of Ammunition—100 Slain.

EL PASO, Texas, March 31.—The bloodiest and most important battle of the Mexican insurrection thus far in the State of Chihuahua is ended after two days of stubborn fighting, which began on Monday near Ures and San Rafael. Although the insurrectos outnumbered the Federal troops, their ammunition became exhausted in the continued engagement. The Federals were able to obtain reinforcements and additional ammunition from Hermosillo, and the insurrectos were compelled to abandon the fight.

Although the loss on both sides was heavy, reports of the killed and wounded have been greatly exaggerated, and it is believed that not more than 100 were killed on both sides.

A report that the Federals had gained a decisive victory in the first day's fighting, which was issued by Mexican authorities, has been denied by mail advices from Hermosillo. The Federal reinforcements taken to Hermosillo. The movements of the insurrecto force after the fight are unknown here. A rumor that they had captured Sun Benito has been flatly denied by Gov. Cubillas at Hermosillo, who says that there was no fighting at Pres, although the engagement took place near there. The report from Hermosillo is threatened by an insurrecto force also is unconfirmed.

Persistent rumors are still current that Madero will be attacked soon, although there is little to substantiate them. Numerous bands of insurrectos have crossed the border near El Paso from the American side.

According to Lieut. M. W. Hill of the United States Cavalry, Lawrence Converse and Harry Blatt, now in jail at Juarez, were illegally arrested on American soil, but were taken back on American territory before they were taken to Juarez. Lieut. Hill followed the trail of the captors, and found that it shows plainly on the north side of the monuments marking the boundary. A map of the trail has been made and will be submitted to the State Department.

Repairs were completed to-day on the Mexican Northwestern Railroad, between Juarez and Pearson, and freight traffic will be resumed on Saturday. This will bring relief to the Mormon colony, which is in need of provisions.

BLOW UP BRIDGES BY PROXY.

Rebels Seek to Escape Death Penalty by Making Railway Men Do Work.

TORREON, Mexico, March 31.—Following a plan by which they appear to be evading the death penalty imposed by the terms of suspension of personal guarantees decreed, revolutionists continue to destroy railroad bridges along the International Railroad between Torreon and Durango. Within the last three bridges were burned. In the case of these a locomotive was run on the bridge and the engineer and fireman jumped, thus leaving the responsibility for their acts.

JERSEY MAYOR A SUICIDE.

Feared He Had Failed to Keep the Campaign Pledges He Made.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKETTSTOWN, N. J., March 31.—When John M. Flanders, a neighbor of Mayor Shafer Sigler of this place entered the Mayor's blacksmith shop this afternoon, he found the Mayor's body hanging from a rope fixed to a ceiling beam.

Mr. Flanders had been summoned to the blacksmith shop by Mayor Sigler's wife, who had run to his place in a hysterical condition.

Flanders found, on cutting the body down, that Mayor Sigler had made a narrow slit in his throat with a penknife before attaching the noose to his neck, and had then hanged himself by stepping off a box after the rope had been securely fastened overhead.

So far as known Mayor Sigler had no troubles. The only thing that worried him, according to his wife and neighbors, was that he had not been able to carry out the programme he promised when he took the oath of office as Mayor last January.

Mayor Sigler attended a meeting of the Board of Health, of which he was President last night. He spoke of the failure to approve his plans for the sanitary improvement of the town, and expressed the hope that reforms promised would be speedily carried out.

He seemed as cheerful as ever when he went to the breakfast table this morning, and ate heartily. He chatted with his wife, but remarked that he didn't seem to be making good exactly as Mayor, and wished he could have more support in the position. He went to his blacksmith shop, where ordinarily he worked from 8 o'clock until noon.

At 1:30 o'clock when he did not come home for lunch his wife went to the blacksmith shop to call him.

So far as the neighbors could determine, Mayor Sigler did not do any work in his blacksmith shop after arriving. Instead he prepared at once to kill himself. He had been dead for several hours when discovered.

ADJOURNED TILL APRIL 17.

Legislature Receives Another Direct Primary Bill and Rests.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 31.—Having worked for three days under conditions which led to much annoyance and confusion on account of the fire at the Capitol, the Legislature to-night adopted a resolution providing for the recess until Monday evening, April 17.

When the City Hall was made the temporary Capitol the Assembly took possession of the Supreme Court chambers on the second floor and the Senate occupied the Common Council chamber across the hall. No attempt was made to transact the ordinary business of the session. There were no bill files and it was with great difficulty that order was maintained.

The leaders will remain in Albany, and it is expected that the administrative measures and the bills of a political character which it is intended to pass this year will be prepared during the recess so that there will be little delay when both Houses reconvene.

The fourth direct primary bill of the session was introduced to-day by Assemblyman Warren. It is favored by the Independence League, and it provides for the direct nomination of candidates for State offices as well as other positions filled by the vote of the people. It provides that all committees shall constitute the party organization.

FLIES 90.2 MILES AN HOUR.

Average Speed of Vedrine for 208-Mile Cross-Country Stretch.

ISSY-LES-MOULINEAUX, France, March 31.—Pierre Vedrine left Poitiers in a monoplane at 6:18 o'clock this morning and arrived here at 8:20 o'clock, having maintained an average speed of 90.2 miles an hour.

Vedrine did 335 kilometres, approximately 208 miles in 132 minutes. One of the fastest railroad expresses in France covers the same general route in 236 minutes.

Discussing his record breaking speed, Vedrine said:

"I was favored with a light breeze, but my machine does 130 kilometres (between 80 and 81 miles) an hour in a calm. It will do in the air what a 150 horsepower motor will do over the best road."

The aviator used a fifty horsepower Morane machine. He is a new man in the aviation world. He was formerly a mechanician at the Gnome Motor Works and qualified as an air pilot last December. His present machine was finished in January.

As soon as some minor repairs can be made Vedrine will start again for Pau in an attempt to win the Aero Club's cup for the best flight from Paris to Pau.

Vedrine began the Paris to Pau flight Tuesday, but met with an accident which compelled him to descend at Poitiers. He had made 170 miles in three hours and ten minutes.

ON PAU TO PARIS FLIGHT.

One of Three French Military Airmen Falls, Smashing His Machine.

PAU, France, March 31.—Capt. Bellanger and Lieuts. de Malherbe and de Rose, French military aeronauts, started at 7 o'clock this morning to make the flight of about 500 miles from Pau to Paris by way of Bordeaux. De Rose's aeroplane led the way.

LIBOURNE, France, March 31.—The military aeronauts reached here this morning, 150 miles on their way from Pau to Paris and twenty miles from Bordeaux. De Rose was in the lead, but, not liking the way his machine was performing, descended on the manœuvre field here. He found that some of the wire guys had become loosened and that a little time would be required for repairs.

Bellanger and de Malherbe brought their machines down, to see what was wrong with de Rose, but, learning that he needed no assistance, continued their flight toward Paris. Capt. Bellanger made the trip from Paris to Pau in record time last month.

CHATEAUROUX, France, March 31.—Capt. Bellanger has arrived at this place, which is 125 miles distant from Paris and 125 miles from Libourne. Lieut. de Malherbe fell before reaching here. His machine was demolished, but the aviator was uninjured. Lieut. de Rose left Libourne for Chateauroux this afternoon.

Many Arrests Ordered in Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 31.—Ninety-three arrests for violation of the building ordinance were ordered to-day by Commissioner Campbell as a result of investigations that followed the fatal fire in New York. The violations in most cases are for constructing cafés with boxes and waste articles that blocked access to fire escapes.

MAYOR DEFENDS POLICE AND CITY

All Talk of a Crime Wave Ridiculous, Writes Gaynor to City Club—Corrigan to Reply.

CROPSEY STIRRED TO ANGER

West St. Ruled by Thugs, Who Rob, Beat, and Murder Sailors, Declare Witnesses Who Miss the Nightstick.

Police Commissioner Cropsey appeared yesterday before the Grand Jury which is investigating police conditions, and was so hard pressed that when he left the room he was plainly in an ill temper. He tried to dodge the newspaper men, but when they caught up with him he angrily told them not to ask impertinent questions, and not to worry about him, and that he was "pretty safe."

Mayor Gaynor in a long letter to Charles H. Strong, President of the City Club, emphatically denied that crime was on the increase in the city or that policemen were not doing their duty. Outward order and decency, he said, were never better. There never were so few gambling places within his time, he said, never so few barrooms doing business on Sunday. Graft, he said, was pretty well eliminated from the department. All the talk about a crime wave, he said, was manufactured. Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan will reply to him in a speech at the City Club this afternoon.

Mayor Gaynor's letter to President Strong of the City Club was in reply to one asking him to appear at the club to-day and discuss the police situation. Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan, whose letter attacking the Mayor started the present Grand Jury investigation, has accepted an invitation to appear there and talk. This is the Mayor's letter.

THE MAYOR'S LETTER.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR.
March 30, 1911.

Dear Mr. Strong: I should be most glad to accept your invitation to be a guest of the City Club at its luncheon and speak of the police work, but I regret to say that my tongue and throat have not yet sufficiently righted themselves to enable me to be heard in public, although I would much like to be now and then.

The work which the Police Department has done during the last fifteen months and is doing should be pretty well known. The record of it is accessible. The streets were never so free of wayward women. Outward order and decency were never better. There were never so few gambling places in the city within my time. There were never so few barrooms doing business on Sunday.

The police force has been dissociated from graft with the liquor business. For the first time we have enforced the State law, which requires that the window curtains or screens of every barroom be lowered or raised on Sunday, so that police officers and every passerby may see that there is no one inside and that the barroom is not in use. This work has been well done by the police. You can ascertain that for yourself by going around to see whether the barrooms are open or occupied on Sunday or not. All violations of the foregoing are reported every Monday morning by the police and their affidavits thereof filed with the District Attorney for prosecution as the statute requires. Nowhere else in the State is this law enforced, unless in some localities where they have recently copied our method here.

The Police Commissioner is still in the struggle commenced to dissociate the force from graft with gambling. This has been almost accomplished, I hope. The inspectors' staffs of plain-clothes men were dispensed with, and the Detective Bureau reorganized under Mr. Flynn for that purpose. I only mention these things, but could mention others.

Everything cannot be done in a day. We have to be patient and do things little by little. I never have been able to do things in any other way, and the best things we do as a rule, as I have learned in over twenty-five years of public work, are those for which we get the most abuse. In carrying out these things it has been necessary to reduce four Inspectors to Captains and discipline other officers.

Says Officials Are Defamed.

The result of this, and of doing away with the Inspectors' staffs of plain-clothes men has been on organized and persistent defamation of the department in order to injure the Commissioner and the department in its work. Started inside the department this spread to the outside. All sorts of falsehoods and exaggerations have been retailed to certain newspapers and others whose delight is to picture this city as in a shameless state of vice and crime, and to befoul it in every way, whereas it is the most decent and orderly large city in the world.

Of course, we anticipated in advance that these things could not be done without stirring up the opposition of all grafters and lawbreakers in the department and outside. However, we intend to go right on, and no amount of clamor assisted though it may be from sources which should lend us help, will deter us for one moment. You cannot overturn evils and work reforms without arousing the bitterest hostility. Anything your club can do to help will be most gratefully accepted. The city is indebted to you for much you have done. The present Mayor is indebted to you for encouragement and assistance.

We are glad to have persons come and tell us of any violation of law. We have received most valuable assistance in that way. Such complaints are not only listened to, but examined into and remedied. The regrettable thing is to see some few good people unwittingly deceived and misled. Of course I expect every dishonest person to raise his hand against me, and there are many such in this great city.

While we can stop the use of the barrooms on Sunday, to stop the sale of liquor in the landlord's interior room is difficult. In the case of licensed hotels, whether big ones like the Waldorf-Astoria, or little ones with only a little room, (for they are all under the same law,) they have the right to sell liquor all day Sunday to guests who eat meals, the same as in your club, although they are not permitted to use their barrooms. The question whether the food furnished is a meal in fact or only a pretence, is one for the courts to decide, and I need not tell you how the Magistrates and courts have decided on that point. They are very quick to say that some people eat much less than others, and that a plate of soup or a small sandwich may be a meal to some, while others require much more.

Can't Override Public Sentiment.

The police cannot settle that matter. They have to do the best they can with a hard case. Moreover, no law can be effectively enforced in any locality where public sentiment, or even a large part of public sentiment, is opposed to it. I need not say that to such men as make up the membership of the City Club. But the police here are doing as much and more to enforce the excise law than is being done anywhere else in this State, and I think every member of your club knows that very well. I say it without hesitation

LAWYER PAYS $12,000 TO RECOVER HIS BABY

Masked Men Stole Infant After Threatening Mother with Death.

POSSE IN CLOSE PURSUIT

Child Recovered by Relative, Who Met Kidnappers in Mountains of New Mexico and Paid Ransom.

Special to The New York Times.

LAS VEGAS, N. M., March 31.—Two masked men forced an entrance into the home of A. T. Rogers, a wealthy lawyer, at 11 o'clock Wednesday night and at the point of revolvers compelled Mrs. Rogers to surrender to them her two-year-old baby. The kidnappers left a note for Mr. Rogers, who was not in the city, demanding $12,000 in cash if the parents wanted their baby back alive, and directed that the money be paid at midnight last night. The demands were complied with to the letter. The money was paid and the child recovered.

The baby is a grandson of Judge Henry L. Waldo, a wealthy resident of Kansas City.

The bandits escaped at the time, but posses in motor cars started in pursuit and scoured the country for miles around. One of the kidnappers was partly identified as Dennis Hart, a notorious Post Office and bank robber, who recently broke jail at Albuquerque, where he was being held for trial on a charge of Post Office robbery.

Mr. Rogers's brother, Will Rogers, was in the house at the time of the kidnapping, but he was not disturbed. Entering the mother's bedroom, the two masked men pointed revolvers at Mrs. Rogers and demanded the baby. She offered them her jewels, silverware, and other valuables, but they told her they had been waiting for months for an opportunity to steal the little fellow and told her to "hurry up about it."

Mrs. Rogers then carefully dressed the baby, gave the abductors extra clothing for it, kissed it good-bye, and the kidnappers departed.

Driven almost insane by fear that harm would come to her child, the mother gave no alarm until yesterday, when she conferred with local bankers, pledged them to secrecy as commanded in the note left by the kidnappers, and secured the money, which was in bills of ten-dollar denomination or less.

At the appointed hour her brother-in-law drove alone to a remote point in the mountains eleven miles from Las Vegas, where two men received the money. He was then directed to drive fifteen miles in the opposite direction, where in a ravine by the roadside he found the little boy wrapped in blankets and asleep. He returned the child unharmed to its mother, and not until then were officers informed of the kidnapping. This gave the abductors several hours' start. It is said there were four in the party in the mountains.

Late to-night the men were located, headed for the Bad Lands near the Oklahoma line, and were closely pursued by Deputies, with the prospect of a conflict. Bloodhounds are being used in the chase. A message from a ranch sixty miles northeast of here said that four men believed to be the bandits passed there, riding at full gallop. Cowboys from the ranch started after the fugitives. They had ropes for a lynching in case the kidnappers should be captured.

The kidnappers are believed to be members of a gang of Post Office and bank robbers, all ex-convicts.

A reward of $30,000 has been offered for the kidnappers, dead or alive.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 31.—Judge and Mrs. H. L. Waldo, the grandparents of the child who was kidnapped in Las Vegas, had not heard of the abduction until a newspaper dispatch was read to them. They live at 1,515 Linwood Boulevard.

"My daughter Helen was married to Mr. Rogers five years ago," said Mrs. Waldo, "and they have made their home in Las Vegas since. Their only child, Waldo, was about 3 years old."

Later in the day Judge Waldo received a telegram from Las Vegas telling of the abduction of his grandchild and its recovery by the payment of $12,000 ransom. Judge Waldo is connected with the legal department of the Santa Fé and spends much time in Las Vegas.

"My daughter Helen was educated in Kansas City," Judge Waldo said. "She was graduated from the Linwood School and then from Miss Barrow's School. Then she made her home here until her marriage to Mr. Rogers in 1906. Mrs. Rogers comes to Kansas City about twice a year to visit her mother. A telegram which reached me this noon told of the kidnapping and subsequent ransom of my grandson.

SHELDON THREAT TO TALK.

Says He Will Expose Canadians When He Gets to Montreal.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., March 31.—C. D. Sheldon, who is wanted in Montreal for embezzlement and false pretense, is anxious to return to Canada to make an expose of some of the people whom he alleges bled him out of money while he was dealing in stocks. He charges that two newspaper men of Montreal blackmailed him out of $70,000, then practically drove him out of business after he had paid back to his patrons over $300,000, and if he had not been molested he says he could have paid back every cent.

To enable him to make a fight to return to Montreal he to-day engaged John Platt as attorney to defend him on the charge of Mrs. Ethyl McAdoo, who accuses him of defrauding her of $1,100. Sheldon, whose right name is Rousseau, will appear before Alderman Mojnerney to-morrow for a hearing. As is customary, he will be held for the Grand Jury which meets next week.

Sheldon is of the opinion that if he gains the Canadian courts his accusers will be glad to let him go, as he has enough evidence to send a large number of Canadian citizens to prison.

ALTMAN MAY BE BUYER OF 'THE MILL'

Belief in London That New Yorker Has Paid $500,000 for Rembrandt's Painting.

ENGLAND'S OPTION EXPIRES

National Gallery Trustees Receive in Donations Only $89,240 of Half Million Required by Lord Lansdowne.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 31.—The option given by Lord Lansdowne to the Trustees of the British National Gallery to purchase Rembrandt's picture, "The Mill," expired at midnight. As the required sum of $500,000 was not then forthcoming, "The Mill" now presumably becomes the property of the purchaser to whom it has been sold subject to the option.

Offers of donations representing $2,500 were received to-day, a promise of $230 coming as late as 11 o'clock to-night. When midnight struck, however, all Sir Charles Holroyd had guaranteed was $89,240.

"The Mill" remained at the gallery in Sir Charles Holroyd's private room during the day. Among those who called at the gallery was Balfour. Sir Charles remained in attendance until midnight.

The London Times to-morrow will say:

"The secret of the name of the purchaser of 'The Mill' is exceedingly well kept. It is obvious that until official announcement is made the mystery will continue to excite widespread speculation. We believe that as a matter of fact Lord Lansdowne is as much in the dark as the proverbial man in the street. The offer was made through a firm of solicitors who did not reveal the name of their client, of whose substantiality, however, the owner was doubtless fully satisfied.

"We have the best possible reason for stating that with the hopeless option already indicated, the picture was irrevocably sold before even the matter was made public. In other words, it was never in the market for sale. The highest bidder, probably the gentleman for whom the firm of solicitors were acting, made the conditions of his offer so stringent that Lord Lansdowne had no other course open to him than to accept them.

"Two years ago or so Lord Lansdowne was approached by a London firm in the matter of the sale of this important picture, and the offer then made was approximately one-half the amount, £100,000, at which the picture now changes hands.

"While the name of the new owner is kept a profound secret, it is obvious that the list of possible purchasers cannot be a long one. Those most intimately associated with picture dealings of this magnitude narrow down the list to three men, Henry C. Frick, New York; P. A. B. Widener, Philadelphia, and Benjamin Altman, New York. Mr. Frick has denied both publicly and privately any share in the matter. Mr. Widener has also denied at least twice that he is the purchaser.

"These denials, therefore, narrow down the list to Mr. Altman, to whom a mystery of this kind would offer many attractions. He is known to be the possessor of many fine pictures by old masters for which he paid large sums. He possesses already three important Rembrandts, two of which came from the Maurice Kann collection in Paris and were on view at the Hudson-Fulton exhibition in New York, but whether he is at the back of this latest record-breaking purchase must remain an open question until all doubt is set at rest by an authoritative statement which obviously, in connection with such a picture as Rembrandt's 'The Mill,' cannot be withheld long."

McNEIRS FIGHT FOR CHILDREN

Husband's Family Say Wife Has No Love for Them.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., March 31.—Mrs. Aline Ely McNeir, the young wife of Burrows McNeir, son of George McNeir of New York and grandson of Senator Burrows of Michigan, underwent to-day the ordeal of sitting in the Supreme Court here for hours and listening to testimony as to her alleged unfitness to have the custody of her two children, Louise, aged 3 and Jeannette, aged 1½ years.

Mrs. McNeir, who is 23, is suing her husband, who is 24, for divorce, naming Grace Walton, an actress, as co-respondent. Justice Morschauser heard the case in January, and reserved decision. To-day's proceedings were on the hearing of two petitions for the custody of the children. The petitioners are the father of the husband and the mother of the wife, each endeavoring to satisfy the court of his or her superior fitness to bring up the little girls.

George McNeir, the grandfather, who is manager of a large carpet house in New York with an income of $60,000 a year, now has the older girl, while the baby is with the mother and grandmother, Mrs. Caroline Ely of New York, who represented to the court that she has an income of $10,000 a year.

The burden of the testimony of the McNeir side was that young Mrs. McNeir has no fondness for children, and is therefore not a proper person to rear the little girls. The elder McNeirs promise every advantage of education and luxury if they can have the custody of the children.

Mrs. McNeir denied the accusations made against her.

There will be another hearing at White Plains on April 11.

EARTHQUAKE IN ARKANSAS.

Citizens of Pine Bluff Rush Out of Buildings in a Panic.

Special to The New York Times.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., March 31.—An earthquake shock at 11 o'clock to-day created a panic in this city, and for an hour afterward the streets were crowded with excited persons who fled from office buildings and homes. The shock lasted ten seconds. Windows were broken in the Court House, and in the six-story office building of the Citizens' Bank. Housewives all over the city were startled by the crashing of the dishes and cracking of boards.

A physician, who was preparing to operate on a patient in the bank building, ran down two flights of stairs with knife in hand, shouting, "Look out; the building is falling!"

When one of the big plate glass windows in the Court House broke a Deputy Sheriff jumped through the window into the yard.

Every town within a radius of 100 miles of Pine Bluff felt the shock.

DENMAN THOMPSON STRICKEN

Family Called to Bedside of Actor, Who Is in His 78th Year.

WEST SWANZEY, N. H., March 31.—Heart disease, from which it is feared he may not recover, has attacked Denman Thompson, and to-night his son, Franklin Thompson, is at the bedside of the aged actor, and his two daughters, Mrs. W. I. Kilpatrick and Mrs. E. A. McFarland, both of Boston, are hurrying toward the old home.

Mr. Thompson, who is in his seventy-eighth year, has been in failing health for some time. He has spent the greater part of the Winter in Keene, but recently he returned to his farm here. The family physician believed his condition warranted calling the members of the family to the bedside.

$100,000 IN BILLS BURNED.

Farmer Would Not Trust the Banks and Kept Money in the House.

Special to The New York Times.

CUMBERLAND, Md., March 31.—The home of Wade Marcum, a farmer residing at Breeden Creek, Mingo County, West Va., was destroyed by fire late last night, and currency that had been hoarded for years, amounting to $100,000, it is said, was destroyed.

Marcum led the life of a miser for a number of years. He had sold valuable coal and timber lands, always demanding payment in greenbacks of large denominations. This cash he always kept in the house, fearing to trust it with banks. Marcum's smokehouse also burned and the loss included a ton of meat.

BRITISH TAXES $1,019,252,940

Returns for Year Exceed Lloyd-George Estimate by $20,000,000.

LONDON, March 31.—The revenue returns for the year ended March 31, which were issued to-night, show an enormous total of $1,019,252,940, or over $20,000,000 more than David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, estimated in the past budget.

This is the first time that the nation's revenue has exceeded £200,000,000. Owing to the delay in the collection of taxes through the House of Lords' rejection of the first Lloyd-George budget, the two years will have to be reckoned together. The surplus revenue over expenditures amounts to $20,000,000.

LABOR UNIONS AFTER HIM.

Ask Removal of Hartford Police Official Because of Arrests.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 31.—For the first time in the State's history labor unions to-day demanded the removal of a Police Commissioner. A petition was presented to Mayor Smith requesting the dismissal of Norman F. Allen.

Commissioner Allen is a member of the firm of Sage, Allen & Co., where the now pending strike of the cloakmakers had its inception, and the union alleges that Mr. Allen personally ordered the arrest of several strikers while the latter were trying to persuade imported strikebreakers not to take their places.

Mayor Smith said he would give the matter attention.

WOULD ABOLISH PEW RENT.

American Clergyman, Called to London Tabernacle, Makes the Demand.

CHICAGO, March 31.—The question of renting pews stands between the Rev. Dr. A. C. Dixon of Moody Church in this city and the pastorate of Metropolitan Tabernacle, London, where Charles H. Spurgeon preached. Dr. Dixon has returned home after spending two months in England. Just before he sailed deacons of the Tabernacle notified him that it had extended a unanimous call.

"There's an insuperable obstacle," said Dr. Dixon. "You'll have to quit collecting pew rent."

The deacons pointed out that Dr. Spurgeon collected this rent for years and paid all the bills himself.

"I'd rather have no salary and no pew rent," the clergyman replied.

"It's a great church, one of the greatest churches in the world," said Dr. Dixon last night. "The opportunities for work there are tremendous. If the pew-renting obstacle is removed, I must give the call serious consideration."

NAME WOMAN FOR MAYOR.

Complete Ticket Nominated in Kansas Town, but Several Women Withdraw.

Special to The New York Times.

ELMDALE, Kan., March 31.—A city ticket was announced a few days ago composed of men. Then the women got busy and to-day nominated a ticket composed entirely of women.

Mrs. M. E. Johnson, a widow, 66 years old, headed the ticket for Mayor, and the five Councilwomen were made up of the wives of business men. Mrs. Dockery, who was nominated for police Judge, like Mrs. Johnson, is a widow, and is about 50 years old.

The campaign opened with bright prospects, it is said, until the supporters of the men's ticket began to work. Then some of the women decided to withdraw. The nominee for Police Judge resigned, and was followed by four of the five candidates for Councilwomen.

Mrs. Johnson, however, stood firm, and Mrs. B. E. Clements, one of the nominees for Councilwomen, remained with her, and filled the places made vacant with the men.

TEACHERS MAY STRIKE.

No Pay for Six Months in Public Schools Near Scranton, Penn.

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., March 31.—Thirty public school teachers of Winton Borough marched to the meeting of the School Board last night and announced that if they did not get their pay they would quit. They have not received a cent since last September. They gave the board until April 7 to meet their demands.

Some of the Directors placed the blame on Henry W. Lawler, the Tax Collector. They said also that they have not received the annual State appropriation.

Democratic Insurgents Give In After Deadlocking Legislature Since Jan. 16.

TAKES PERSONAL COMMAND

Rushes to Albany and Forces His Candidate Through After Rejecting Insurgent List.

JUSTICE QUITS THE BENCH

But Holds Up His Resignation Until He Is Sure of the Senatorship.

CHOICE MADE UNANIMOUS

Gov. Dix Glad It's Over—Legislature Adjourns to April 17 Until Capitol Can Be Repaired.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 31.—James A. O'Gorman, who was a Justice of the Supreme Court until late this afternoon when his resignation was filed with Secretary of State Lazansky, to meet the requirements of a constitutional provision prohibiting a Judge from holding another office, was elected United States Senator to succeed Chauncey M. Depew at a joint session of the Senate and Assembly held to-night. This result, ending the legislative deadlock which had been in progress since Jan. 16, when William F. Sheehan was made the choice of the Democratic majority for the place, was attained on the sixty-third joint ballot since the contest began. Following the election the Legislature adopted a concurrent resolution adjourning until April 17 to permit of repairs to the damaged Capitol.

Justice O'Gorman was Tammany Leader Murphy's candidate. His election was made possible only by the acquiescence of the thirty insurgent Democrats in the choice. Fourteen of the insurgents entered the joint caucus, at which the name of Justice O'Gorman was presented, and the nomination made. All the insurgents voted for him at the joint assembly which followed the caucus. In the caucus Justice O'Gorman received 63 votes out of a total of 101. In the joint assembly he was elected by straight party vote of 112 to 80 for Chauncey M. Depew.

In the caucus Assemblyman Cosad, an insurgent, while voting for Mr. O'Gorman, warmly praised Isidor Straus. It was also learned in Albany to-day that Samuel Untermyer, who has heretofore supported William F. Sheehan, had come out for Mr. Straus for Senator.

The result of to-night's caucus was hailed by the followers of Tammany Leader Murphy as a victory for Tammany Hall and a defeat for the little group of independents, who for so many weeks have insisted that they were contending not against the election of William F. Sheehan, but for the more important principle of emancipating the Democratic State organization from the domination of the Tammany boss.

Mr. Murphy himself had braved the discomforts of an early morning ride in the smoking car of a milk train on the West Shore Railroad in order to reach the scene of the Senatorial contest in time to exert his influence at this critical juncture, where he could enjoy the triumph which involved the surrender of the insurgents and give the impression through the State and land that again he had led his many cohorts to victory.

Insurgents Criticised.

There has been some criticism of the insurgents and of their leader, Senator Franklin D. Roosevelt, as a result of their tame submission at the eleventh hour of the contest. Minority Leader Brackett of the Senate at the joint Assembly to-night upbraided them for not having joined hands with the Republicans when an opportunity was at hand to elect a man who would be absolutely free from Tammany influence. Senator Roosevelt made a spirited reply, in which there was an undercurrent of jubilation at the "harmony" that would follow the insurgents' surrender.

The surrender of the insurgents followed a series of conferences, at which they took a vote on the question whether they should vote for Justice O'Gorman or not. The first vote stood 13 to 9 against such action. Then Gov. Dix, who has been chafing under the delay to his legislative programme caused by the deadlock, took a hand in the game. He pleaded with Senator Roosevelt and the other insurgents to place no obstacle in the way of Justice O'Gorman's election.

Gov. Dix's legal adviser, William Church Osborn, who prior to assuming that post was the leader of the Shepard movement, attended the conferences and joined with the legislative leaders here who do Mr. Murphy's bidding in an earnest plea that the insurgents come back into the party fold and make common cause with the regulars in the selection of a Senator.

The insurgents had been investigating the record of Justice O'Gorman since his name was first sprung upon the arrival of Mr. Murphy and his lieutenants here this morning. They had found in it nothing except what was commendable and good, and on the strength of what they had learned waived the clause in the agreement between them and the organization, in accordance with which the candidate, in order to gain their support, must be among the eleven named on a list submitted on behalf of the insurgents.

Justice O'Gorman's name was not on this list. The Tammany men here declared to-night that this fact alone would point to the Democrats throughout the State that the election of Justice O'Gorman was a defeat for the insurgents which called out all the humiliation Murphy has made to suffer in his leadership during the last eleven weeks as a result of the ...opposition to him was completed, William F. Sheehan and Daniel F. Cohalan.

Tammany Leader Murphy, who was at his headquarters in the Hotel Ten Eyck that evening while the Legislature was acting his bidding on Capitol Hill, gave out this statement after the result had been announced:

"No better selection could have been made by the party after the unfair and unmerited defeat of Mr. Sheehan, whose position before the people has been greatly strengthened.

"Judge O'Gorman needs no commendation from any one, but the public will undoubtedly see that in the triumph of the majority rule and in sustaining the party caucus the power of the party and its opportunities to serve the people have been greatly increased."

Mr. Murphy's chief lieutenant, Daniel F. Cohalan, who, with Secretary Thomas F. Smith of Tammany Hall, and Philip Donohue, former Treasurer of the organization, accompanied Mr. Murphy to the Capitol, joined his chief in scattering flowers on the political grave of William F. Sheehan while he lauded Senator O'Gorman. Mr. Cohalan said:

"Senator O'Gorman will stand out even in the United States Senate as a man of unusual force, ability, and culture. He will undoubtedly make for himself a record of which his party and his friends may well be proud. The only note of regret in the situation is that Mr. Sheehan should have been defeated, but he has triumphed with his party in the victory of the principles for which they fought."

Dix Pleased at Result.

Gov. Dix also announced that he was greatly pleased with the result.

"The State of New York," said Gov. Dix, "has elected for its representative in the Federal Senate an eminent jurist, a man of pronounced ability, of great attainments, and of the highest character.

"The election of Judge O'Gorman cannot but meet with the approval of the citizens of this State, regardless of party. He will rank with the ablest statesmen the Senate has known, will well represent the Empire State and bestow honor upon the party that elected him. I am gratified at this solution of the problem which has confronted the Democratic members of the Legislature for the past ten weeks."

The Governor at once sent this telegram to the Senator:

Nation and State are to be congratulated. The Democratic Party has honored itself by electing you, and the people of the Commonwealth will ever remember the signal unselfishness you demonstrate in your willingness to serve your party and your State at personal sacrifice. JOHN A. DIX.

The election of Justice O'Gorman followed a day of many conferences and many disquieting rumors pointing to a continuation of the deadlock. When his name was first sprung Senator Roosevelt, leader of the insurgents, demanded twenty-four hours' time for consideration. It was not until after Gov. Dix had intervened and Senators Frawley and Murtaugh, together with President Pro Tem. Wagner of the Senate and Majority Leader Alfred E. Smith of the Assembly, had appeared before a conference of the insurgents at the home of Senator Roosevelt and pleaded with them to vote for Justice O'Gorman that Tammany Leader Murphy dared to go into action and force through the election of his latest candidate for the United States Senate.

The insurgents, just before the caucus was called to order, had voted by a vote of 14 to 8, to support Justice O'Gorman's candidacy. On this vote Senator Roosevelt was recorded in the negative.

When the time for the afternoon caucus had come the insurgent conference was still in progress, and it was not until 5:15 that the caucus was called to order. In the meantime the lawmakers gathered in the temporary Senate and Assembly chambers at the City Hall, which already at that hour were crowded with a mob of curiosity seekers. It was not known at that time how the parley of the insurgents would come out, and there was suspense in the air.

Finally Majority Leader Smith of the Assembly came rushing into the Speaker's room. His face was bathed with perspiration.

"Arrange everything for the caucus; it has all been fixed," he half shouted.

Senator Fiero of Greene, as soon as the caucus had been called to order, brought up his Sheehan resolution, temporarily laid aside at the earlier session. Senator Wagner put it to a vote. The yeas seemed quite as great in volume as the nays.

"The resolution is lost," shouted Senator Wagner from the rostrum, pounding [illegible] with an impromptu mallet which [illegible] gavel.

"Make a roll call," thundered Senator Fiero.

"That motion is out of order after the result has been announced," cried Senator Wagner above the dissent that followed his ruling.

Senator James D. McClelland of New York was then recognized. He arose to place the name of Justice O'Gorman before the caucus.

"For three months we have been here seeking to elect a United States Senator," he said. "After arduous labor, great patience, and mighty efforts we have at last reached a point where the sunlight of success is shining to cheer us on. The time has come when the Democracy recognizes the earnest and united demand from the people in this State that when Congress meets on April 4 we shall be represented in the Senate by a man who will count in passing on the measures that will be brought before Congress for the relief of a long suffering people. Justice O'Gorman has ever been a Democrat. He never forgot when he was on the bench that he was a Democrat, and when he goes to the Senate he will be a Democrat still. He will be a true friend of the people."

There was quite some applause when the name of Justice O'Gorman was first mentioned. Some few members even cheered. Senator Anthony J. Griffin from the Bronx, who first proposed the name of Justice O'Gorman at the caucus on Tuesday night, seconded his nomination.

Bush Defends Sheehan.

Then Dr. Robert P. Bush of Elmira, the Assemblyman from Chemung County who proposed William F. Sheehan's name at the original joint caucus, arose with wet brows.

"Before you sacrifice the Democratic party up-State," said Dr. Bush, "let me have a word or two. I shall not seek to defend the man whose name I placed before the party council last January. He has been under fire for three months, and not a stain nor blemish on his reputation has been brought to the public gaze. Now that you are splitting the Democratic Party, for one do not propose to see you rescind the action of the Democratic joint caucus, where he was nominated without again giving my vote in this caucus to William F. Sheehan until some other candidate has received a majority."

There was great applause at this. Senator William P. Piero of Greene seconded the nomination of Mr. Sheehan. Majority Leader Alfred E. Smith of the Assembly, who is a forceful orator, took the floor.

"We have made every effort, and it seems to me enough sacrifice, to keep alive the Democratic principle of majority rule," said Mr. Smith. "But we must not forget that the Federal statute imposes upon us a duty that we shall elect a United States Senator from this State.

"Even the most rabid, or perhaps I should say the most earnest advocate of the Democratic principle that the majority shall rule, must admit that we must do all in our power to preserve the allegiance to the party of every Democrat, and that while we must keep the caucus principle alive we must study the wishes of the people. To my mind it would be indefensible if there was a vacant seat in the United States Senate at the session which will begin on April 4 where legislation involving relief for the people will be discussed."

Leader Smith seconded the nomination of Mr. Sheehan; Assemblyman Walter Herrick of New York nominated ex-Judge D Cady Herrick, his half brother; Senator Howard R. Bayne placed Augustus Van Wyck in nomination; Senator Timothy D. Sullivan nominated Isidor Straus, and Senator T. Harvey Ferris of Oneida John B. Kerman. The names of William Sulzer and Alton B. Parker were brought before the caucus by Assemblyman Harold Spielman of New York and Miner McDaniels [illegible] when their names were [illegible] on the rollcall.

[illegible] Senator Wagner directed [illegible] caucus to begin and [illegible] Senator Frawley, first of the [illegible] Democrats to be polled, voted [illegible] Sulzer. Loring [illegible] the highest number of votes [illegible] for Black. "I [illegible] denial of these rumors [illegible]

There was no answer from [illegible]

"How does the Senator vote?" asked Senator Wagner from the rostrum.

"No such denial having been forthcoming, I decline to vote," said the youthful Senator from Brooklyn.

Roosevelt Not at Caucus.

The roll call then proceeded with here and there a speech to interrupt it. The Senate roll call ended, fourteen votes had been cast for Justice O'Gorman to six for Mr. Sheehan and a scattering vote for other candidates. Senator Grady was absent. Senator Barth Cronin of Kings, a Democrat, was paired with Senator George H. Cobb of Jefferson, a Democrat. Senators Burd, Roosevelt, and Duhamel, insurgents, had not entered the caucus.

Senators Frank M. Loomis of Erie, John Godfrey Saxe of New York, and Loren H. White of Schenectady were the insurgent Senators who answered roll call and voted at the caucus. All three voted for Justice O'Gorman.

Senator Saxe said he did so "with pride and enthusiasm." The others made no comment.

The insurgent Assemblymen who entered the caucus were Mr. Brace of Montgomery, Mr. Day of Jefferson, Mr. Cosad of Seneca, Mr. Friedman of New York, Mr. Hoyt of Dutchess, Mr. Martin of Saratoga, Mr. McDaniels of Tompkins, Mr. Miller of Otsego, Mr. Myers of Schenectady, Mr. O'Connor of Kings, Mr. Shortt of Richmond, Mr. Terry of Kings, and Mr. Trombly of Clinton.

Those who remained out were Senator George B. Burd of Erie, Senator James F. Duhamel of Kings, Senator Franklin D. Roosevelt of Dutchess, and the following Assemblymen: Beach of Tioga, Bridenbecker of Herkimer, Chanler of Dutchess, (excused,) Drummond of Cayuga, Evans of Sullivan, Fry of Kings, Holman of Nassau, Huber of Queens, Kennedy of Queens, Saunders of Columbia, and Wheeler of Delaware.

Assemblyman Blauvelt of Rockland, when his name was called on the Assembly roll, was the first to make some difficulty about voting for Mr. Murphy's last candidate. Mr. Blauvelt has been one of the consistent supporters of Mr. Sheehan.

"If my father or my brother were candidates under similar circumstances, I would decline to vote for them," said Mr. Blauvelt, in casting his vote for Sheehan.

Assemblyman Cosad, Nestor of the insurgent movement, who when the joint ballot was taken at noon received one vote for United States Senator, a vote cast in jest by a fellow-insurgent, got up and declared that he would have liked to see Mr. Straus chosen.

"As things have turned out, I merely arise to withdraw myself as a candidate and to cast my vote for Mr. O'Gorman," said the aged Mr. Cosad.

The result of the first ballot when announced showed only 100 votes cast in all. This is one short of the number necessary to elect, provided there had been a full attendance. The leaders were somewhat worried, for they were not prepared to take any chances. Senator Black came to their rescue.

"As my vote is absolutely necessary, I now beg to be recorded as voting for William F. Sheehan," said the boy Senator.

This gave them the necessary 101 votes. Justice O'Gorman had the necessary majority, with votes to spare.

The Caucus Vote.

The result as finally announced follows:

James A. O'Gorman	63
William F. Sheehan	23
Isidor Straus	5

Beginning with Dr. Bush, who said he made the motion "with mingled feelings of joy and sorrow," the proponents of other candidates, after the vote had been announced, went on record as in favor of making the vote for Justice O'Gorman unanimous. The caucus was then adjourned subject to the call of the Chair, whereupon the two branches of the Legislature, to conform with the formality of joint balloting, went into separate sessions, preparatory to the joint session. The caucus lasted less than an hour.

Meeting Place Packed.

The Democratic members of the Legislature plainly showed the strain under which they had been working for the last ten weeks. Some were nervous and tired, the leaders having little sleep during the last week. When the caucus adjourned there was pandemonium in the cramped quarters into which several hundred were crowded for two hours.

The confusion and lack of order were due to a great extent to the inadequate room which the legislators were obliged to occupy. O'GORMAN DECLARES VIEWS AS SENATOR

For Reciprocity, Popular Elections, Income Tax, and Parcels Post.

INSURGENTS FAVORED HIM

Stetson and Hare Declare They Withheld His Name Only Through Fear of Regular Opposition.

Senator James A. O'Gorman received the reporters at his home in West 108th Street late last night, after having spent a busy evening receiving the congratulations of friends and associates. He talked freely of his position on National issues, saying he was in favor of the income tax, the election of United States Senators by the people, the fortification of the Panama Canal, the parcels post, downward revision of the tariff, and reciprocity with Canada.

More than a score of prominent citizens called at the Senator's home during the evening, Supreme Court Judges, lawyers, politicians, and financiers. Telegrams of congratulation also came in a flood, one of the first to arrive being from Gov. Dix. Among the many who called up on the telephone were Charles F. Murphy and Daniel Cohalan from Albany, Representatives Jefferson M. Levy and William Sulzer from Washington, District Attorney Whitman, Victor Herbert, the composer, who is a close personal friend, and Archbishop Farley.

Views of New Senator.

"My selection to represent my native State in the Senate of the United States is an honor of which I am deeply sensible and for which I am profoundly grateful," said Senator O'Gorman. "I shall enter upon the discharge of my duties with a high appreciation of the dignity of the office and the gravity of its responsibilities. My best efforts shall be devoted to meeting the just expectations of my fellow-citizens.

"As I stated in my telegram to the Democratic caucus to-day, I am in thorough accord with the principles enunciated in the platforms of the last Democratic National and State conventions.

"The need for an immediate downward revision of the tariff is urgent, and further delay in accomplishment of this much-needed reform will not be tolerated by the American people.

"I am opposed to all special privileges and private monopoly, to the New Nationalism, and to the centralizing tendencies of the Republican party.

"I favor rigid economy in governmental expenditures and the passage of the constitutional amendment providing for an income tax free from mischievous interference with the governmental instrumentalities of the several States.

"I shall earnestly support the proposed reciprocity treaty with Canada.

"I am in favor of the parcels post, and I have a very strong conviction as to the duty of the Government to fortify the Panama Canal.

"The Democratic Party in National and State conventions has declared in favor of the election of United States Senators by the people, and I unreservedly subscribe to that principle."

Mayor Gaynor was informed of the election of Justice O'Gorman at his home at St. James, L. I., last evening. He declined to make any comment.

William F. Sheehan left for Hot Springs, Va., late in the afternoon without making any statement.

Insurgents Had Favored O'Gorman.

Francis Lynde Stetson, who took a prominent part in the Senatorial contest as an opponent of William F. Sheehan, visited Senator O'Gorman yesterday afternoon. He said afterward:

"Justice O'Gorman is one of the ablest and most trusted of the Judges in the State of New York, and will take a place among the ablest and most trusted members of the Senate of the United States. His election will tend to unite the party.

"In my letter to The Sun on Feb. 7 I indicated him as one I should be glad to support for the office, and I suggested him to the insurgents, but it was deemed best not to present his name lest it should be rejected by the majority. There has never been a moment from that week to this when it might not have been elected, but for reasons best known to themselves the majority leaders, though submitting many names, never presented his name until to-day.

"Immediately with Mr. Hare I called upon Justice O'Gorman and had a most satisfactory conference and communicated the result to the insurgents. He will represent the people of the State and the entire party and not any faction or fraction of the Democrats.

"As has been often stated, the insurgents have always recognized the right of the majority to indicate the candidate, reserving for themselves the right to reject any unsatisfactory name. Accordingly this afternoon many of the insurgents remained out of the caucus, but by their votes in the joint session unanimously approved the nominee of the caucus, which was held after a full and free conference of all the Democrats.

"The only point of objection in the minds of any of the insurgent legislators was the apparent precipitancy of the matter in adopting and presenting Judge O'Gorman's name at an hour so late as to preclude full consideration by every Democrat. For such a course there was no necessity. But all's well that ends well, and the insurgents have ample reasons for satisfaction in having compelled the selection of a Senator of the ability and character of Judge O'Gorman."

Hare Thinks Party Will Approve.

Montgomery Hare, who had charge of the unsuccessful candidacy of Edward M. Shepard in the Senatorial contest, and who, after Mr. Shepard's withdrawal, continued to work for a compromise candidate, said last night:

"Justice O'Gorman is one of the ablest and most highly respected Justices of the Supreme Court in this county," said Mr. Hare, "and his choice as United States Senator will meet, I believe, with the approval of the whole party. His election by a united party could have been secured many weeks ago if the majority had seen fit then to present his name.

"The action of some of the so-called insurgents in remaining out of the caucus to-day was in no sense directed against Justice O'Gorman's election, but was simply a protest against the railroading methods adopted by the majority. In the joint session they all joined promptly in making the election unanimous."

Frederic R. Coudert said: "Justice O'Gorman is a highly honorable, respectable, and able Judge. He has been on the bench so long and has taken so little part in active public life that his views on important questions are unknown, but I believe he should make an excellent Senator."

William B. Ellison, former Corporation Counsel, said: "I have known Justice O'Gorman for twenty years. There is no man in the City or State of New York better fitted for the place. He will bring to the office an aggressiveness that is seldom equaled and a poise that is exceptional. The State gains an excellent representative in the upper branch of the National Legislature by his election."

Independent, Says Justice Gerard.

Justice James W. Gerard, who was a Senatorial possibility, said: "The election of Justice O'Gorman means a very great loss to the Supreme Court. I will say that he was almost the backbone of the court. This loss will be felt by his associates on the bench, and by the bar of the city as well. It is a recognized fact that Justice O'Gorman is a man of unusual ability and the utmost independence of character. I think his election is a splendid solution of the deadlock. It has been well worth all the trouble and row that we have had to finally choose such a man. Nobody can control him. There will be no such thing as influencing any action of his against his judgment."

De Lancey Nicoll said: "It is a very admirable selection. In Justice O'Gorman's career on the bench he has displayed unusual ability, learning, and courage. He has won the entire confidence of the bar and of the community. I am sure that in the Senate he will make a representative of whom the State will be proud."

R. Stanwood Menken, one of the organizers of the Democratic League, said: "I feel that in Justice O'Gorman's selection the Democracy has made a wise choice. I have known the Judge in the most trying circumstances, in cases where his character, probity, and ability were tested to the extreme. He has shown absolute fearlessness under such conditions, and the greatest ability and strength of character."

J. Hampden Dougherty said: "Justice O'Gorman has been a most excellent Judge. His record is very good, and I assume he will make a good Senator. He has won general esteem and is believed to be upright. His choice, particularly with the concurrence of the majority of the insurgents, will receive general commendation, I believe."

Corporation Counsel Watson said: "No better selection could have been made. Justice O'Gorman has the respect and confidence of every member of the bar and of every litigant who has ever come before him; respect for his extraordinary ability as a judicial officer, manifesting itself not only in the dispatch of business but in the correct decision of causes; confidence in his uprightness and absolute fairness. His removal from the field of judicial work will be a distinct loss to the bench and bar of this county, but now the entire State, in a more general sense, will be the gainer by his activity in a larger sphere. Justice O'Gorman's acceptance of the Senatorship, of course, involves a personal and pecuniary sacrifice, for which the Democratic Party and the public generally should be grateful."

UNTERMYER WAS FOR STRAUS.

No Man So Fitted by Training and Temperament, He Said.

Samuel Untermyer, who had been one of William F. Sheehan's staunchest supporters for the United States Senatorship, had this to say yesterday before the meeting of the Democratic caucus:

"I hope the party will be able to agree upon Mr. Isidor Straus for Senator. There is no man among those who have been named who is so eminently fitted by training and temperament for that exalted position."

SHEEHAN, DEFEATED, SLEEPS.

On His Way to Virginia Hot Springs —Wife Glad Election Is Over.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—When William F. Sheehan, defeated candidate for United States Senator from New York, passed through Washington at 10:55 o'clock to-night on his way to Hot Springs, Va., he was sound asleep.

Mrs. Sheehan, on learning of her husband's defeat, declared she would not awaken him. She expressed surprise that Justice O'Gorman had been elected, and said that she felt sure that Mr. Sheehan would not make any comment to-night, but that she was glad the election was over.

NEW YORK PRESS COMMENT.

Opinions on the Election of Justice O'Gorman as Senator.

From The New York Sun.

The Sun detests the methods which produced the chaos at Albany. It deplores the triumph of a destructive enterprise which was rendered possible only by a numerical accident and was made successful only by co-operative cowardice and treachery. For the new Senator individually we have nothing but good will and good wishes. Justice O'Gorman's character and recognized abilities warrant high expectations of the usefulness of his career at Washington. We are not informed of Mr. Sheehan's sentiments, or authorized in any way to speak for him, but we should be very much surprised if they differ from those here expressed.

Picked by the Tammany Boss.

From The New York Tribune.

Murphy's prestige is damaged, no doubt, by his failure to jam through the election of Mr. Sheehan, but it takes more than damaged prestige to eliminate a boss, and Murphy remains the boss of the party able to secure the election of a Tammany Senator, whose sole qualification with the caucus was that the boss had picked him.

We do not believe that a Tammany Hall Senator, chosen by Murphy, will be much more tolerable to the public than Mr. Sheehan himself would have been. And in saying this we are mindful of Justice O'Gorman's useful service upon the bench.

By Grace of Independents.

From The New York World.

James A. O'Gorman is United States Senator, not by grace of Charles F. Murphy, not by grace of Tammany Hall, not by grace of Wall Street, but by grace of the Independent Democracy of New York. This Independent Democracy alone made his election possible. It compelled the boss to abandon William F. Sheehan. It betrayed the Murphy scheme to name Daniel F. Cohalan. It stood firmly against all the Murphy and Ryan candidates that were mysteriously paraded out of secret conference.

It is true that Senator O'Gorman is a member of Tammany Hall, but that fact has never influenced his course as a Judge, and it should never influence his course as a Senator.

GAYNOR'S CHARTER BILL IN.

Introduced by Assemblyman Foley, Who Represents Murphy's District.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 31.—Just as the Legislature was about to enter upon its two weeks' recess this evening Assemblyman Joseph A. Foley, who represents Charles F. Murphy's district, introduced the proposed charter for New York City, which has been drafted under the supervision of Mayor Gaynor.

The charter bill formulated by the legislative committee which had been at work for two years was already before the Legislature.

SAYS SKENE GOT HIS BOOKS.

Broker Simmons, in Bankruptcy, Thus Explains Their Disappearance.

Frederick Simmons, a former Consolidated Exchange broker, who is being examined in bankruptcy proceedings before United States Commissioner Alexander about the disappearance of the books of the firm of which he was the head, declared yesterday that the books were given to a representative of Frederick Skene, former State Engineer, because Skene wanted to look up an account of his own they contained. Simmons offered no explanation further than this for the disappearance of the books.

The books, the witness said, showed a credit in Skene's favor of $16,874, in settlement of which Simmons said he paid $8,000, but a moment later the witness asserted that Skene really owed him $3,000 to $4,000. In this uncertain condition the matter of the Skene account remained when adjournment was taken. The only other testimony relating to the matter being the statements of Mr. Simmons that he had tried to get the books back, but had been unable to locate them.

O'GORMAN'S CAREER IN OFFICE AND OUT

Highly Praised by His Judicial Associates for His Work on the Bench.

ONCE DEFEATED BY TAMMANY

Was Labor Party Candidate for District Judge — Eleven Years on Supreme Court Bench.

During the twenty-nine years of his activities as lawyer and jurist in this city Supreme Court Justice James A. O'Gorman has received many honors. These have come not only from his political party but from his associates on the bench, from his fellow-members of the Bar Association, and from the various social, educational, and benevolent organizations of the city.

He is the son of Thomas and Ellen O'Gorman of this city, and was born on May 5, 1860, on the upper west side not far from where he lives at present, 319 West 108th Street. His father was moderately well off, but died when the son was still a boy. He was educated in the public schools of this city, and then attended City College. After his graduation he entered the Law Department of New York University, being graduated in May, 1882. He was admitted to the local bar the same month.

Mr. O'Gorman immediately began the practice of his profession, opening offices in the old Evening Post Building, at Fulton Street and Broadway. He was earnest, energetic, and cool headed. His cases were at first the general practice which comes to the average young lawyer. But he soon got the care of several estates and his interest in politics and public matters caused him to be appointed counsel for several labor organizations as well. He was twenty-two years old when graduated from the Law School. He soon jointed Tammany Hall.

Opposed by Tammany.

In 1886, when he was twenty-six years old and after he had been practicing law only four years, the United Labor Party of the Eleventh District, where he was living, needed a candidate for Justice of the District Court, and Mr. O'Gorman accepted the nomination. Tammany Hall, his own political organization, and the Republican Party as well, combined on another candidate to run against him. Twenty thousand votes were cast in the district that election. In spite of the limited following which the United Labor Party had and of the combination of Republicans and Democrats against him, he lost the election by only a few hundred votes, and his run was spoken of as remarkable, considering the conditions prevailing.

He continued in practice for five years more. In 1893, however, Tammany placed him on its ticket for the Civil Court Judge of his district. He carried his district and served as the district's Civil Judge for the next six years.

In 1896, he was made a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Chicago. Bryan and Sewall were the candidates and he supported them. In 1898 the Irish residents of this city thought that something should be done to perpetuate the patriotic memories of the Irish Rebellion of 1798. A National 1898 Association was accordingly formed, and he was elected Chairman of its Board of Trustees.

Elected to Supreme Court.

His nomination to the Supreme Court was given to him by Tammany in 1899, and he was elected and sent on the Supreme Court bench at the beginning of the following year.

At the time of his nomination the Bar Association made the following statement concerning him:

"The reputation earned by James A. O'Gorman in a minor judicial position and his practice at the bar shows him a fit candidate for the election to the Supreme Court."

As Supreme Court Justice, he has served the city continuously for the last eleven years. He has always been popular in local Democratic circles, and in May, 1907, when Mayor Van Wyck was running for the office of Grand Sachem of Tammany, Justice O'Gorman defeated him by a vote of 3 to 4.

In 1908 the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick gave a dinner in his honor and Morgan J. O'Brien presented him with a silver dinner service of 158 pieces. In the Summer of 1904 he was talked of as a possible Mayoralty candidate on the Tammany ticket.

It was only last January that Justice O'Gorman's associates on the Supreme Court bench and the Judges of the Court of Appeals at Albany combined to pay him an unusual honor. The Judges of the Court of Appeals wrote down to him that they wanted him to let them present his name to the Governor to fill a vacancy as associate in their court.

Both Courts Wanted Him.

"Your selection as an Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals would be of especial value to New York City and State at this juncture," they wrote.

But Justice O'Gorman's own associates on the Supreme Court bench here heard of the plan and wouldn't consider it. They wrote to him importuning him to stay with them, using just the same arguments the Court of Appeals Judges had used.

"Justice O'Gorman's experience, ripened judgment, and skill in the rapid disposition of his cases are qualities whose exercise is especially demanded in the Supreme Court of this city; and his withdrawal, even for service in a broader field, would be a distinct loss to the bench of this department," his associates wrote to him while he was considering going to Albany.

Between the arguments of his associates and his fondness for his home here he decided that he would stay in New York.

Justice O'Gorman is a member of organizations covering a wide field of interests. He is a member of the Church of the University Law School, the Council, Royal Arcanum; Jackson American Legion of Honor; Medical Society, Catholic Historical, United States Historical Society, New York Botanical Society, Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, Owen Roe Club, Holy Name Lyceum, St. Francis Xavier's Parish, Catholic Club, Champlain Club, Knights of Columbus, Democratic Club, Manhattan Club, Tammany Society, New York Athletic Club, and the Catholic Summer School Legion.

In 1904 he received the degree of LL. D. from the College of St. Thomas of Villanova, and four years later received the same honor from Fordham University.

Justice O'Gorman's friends include Supreme Court Justices Greenbaum, Gildersleeve, and Seabury and such members of the bar as Francis Lynde Stetson, Austen G. Fox, Judge William Cohen, and David Leventritt.

Associates Regret to Lose Him.

His associates on the Supreme Court bench yesterday spoke of his leaving for the United States Senate with a mixture of pleasure and regret.

"We are glad that he should have higher honor," said Justice Greenbaum. "But his going will be a great loss not only to the bench as a whole, but to us all individually. He is so accurate and energetic in his administration of affairs. He never shirks work."

Justice O'Gorman's associates on the Supreme Court Bench mentioned that in a number of the cases in which he has handed down decisions as examples of his efficient and unbiased judicial characteristics.

"Unusually typical of Justice O'Gorman's way of administering justice," said Justice Greenbaum last night, "was his recent hearings and decisions in certiorari proceedings of the tax cases during the last few days. It has always been customary for the Supreme Court to turn such cases over to a referee and let the referee take testimony. But this has always been a rather unsatisfactory method of handling of them.

"In the first place it was very expensive. In the second place it was very slow. In the cases cut out, and resulted in the saving to the city of many thousands of dollars. To follow this practice was considered objectionable to jurist of Justice O'Gorman's businesslike and vigorous temperament. When the franchise cases came before him this Winter he decided that he wasn't going to turn them over to a referee, but would hear them himself. In addition to his other judicial duties he has disposed of the cases with commendable promptness, and has saved the city thousands of dollars which would undoubtedly have gone in referees' fees. The decisions in these cases back from him will save more than $40,000,000 were saved to the city."

Considered a Fair Judge.

"He didn't let the corporations ride him roughly, either. He held them up to the proper values and made them pay up for what they owed the city. Some of the corporations which he decided against in this way were the street railways and other most powerful corporations in the city. Nevertheless, while on the bench he is always considered a fair Judge. His private and social life does not influence him.

"Justice O'Gorman was also active in several labor organizations before he went on the bench. But neither I nor, I believe, any other of his associates have ever been able to tell from his decisions on the bench what his attitude was, either labor or the corporations, in the most typical thing of his career. I could tell, is the fact that he has always, since his nomination for Senator, been up to-day, all his judicial business absolutely up and finished.

"Have you any cases?" I asked him to-day in the Court.

"'Not one. I am all even,' he answered, laughing."

Justice O'Gorman married Miss Julia M. Laidlie of this city in 1884. He has two sons and seven daughters.

FIX THE FIRE BLAME, ORDERS THE COURT

Judge O'Sullivan Tells the Grand Jury to Make Its Investigation Thorough.

MANY PLANS FOR REFORM

Subscriptions Exceed $65,000—Some Families Refuse Aid—Three More Victims Identified.

Judge O'Sullivan of General Sessions accepted yesterday the offer of the March Grand Jury to continue in service, and charged its members to begin at once a thorough investigation of the Asch Building fire disaster. However, District Attorney Whitman will not be ready until late next week to lay his case before it. Assistant District Attorneys Bostwick and Rubin, who have been preparing the case, still have fifty or more witnesses whom they wish to hear. Their subpoenas are returnable Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

The case, so far as it has developed, is based on alleged violations of the Building Code, in that there was one staircase less than is called for in structures of the size of the Asch Building, and that doors on the Washington Place side were kept locked.

"As to the latter point," Assistant District Attorney Bostwick said last night, "we have very conflicting testimony. Late this afternoon we heard a man, a ninth floor operator, who claimed he went down the Washington Place staircase to the eighth floor and back up again at 1 o'clock in the afternoon on Saturday. He insists that he found the doors on both floors open at that time.

"On the other hand, many have testified that they rushed to the Washington Place doors and found them locked, and heard the cries of others' 'They're locked! We're lost!'

"It is reasonably certain the doors were closed, if not locked, and that they were opened during the rush on the eighth floor, at least by a man who pushed through the crowd of girls for that purpose."

Mr. Bostwick thought it would be Thursday before he would be ready to go before the Grand Jury.

In his charge to the Grand Jurors Judge O'Sullivan said:

"Before submitting the present investigation to you I talked with your Foreman and suggested the inconvenience and hardship which the acceptance of it might entail. I think the community should know that, regardless of personal interests, you unanimously volunteered to take the task.

"The District Attorney informs me that he has employed experts, detectives, and engineers to examine into every possible phase of the situation. When you have taken testimony and are ready for instructions concerning it, the court will charge you on the law as relating to the facts in evidence.

"I am certain you will take up this matter with open minds, free from any emotion or sentiment other than the desire and the resolution to discover the truth. Your standing in the community and your wide experience as jurors is a sufficient guarantee that your findings will be the product of honest, fearless, and intelligent examination."

When the additional Grand Jury, whose members had also volunteered to remain on duty for a fire investigation, Judge O'Sullivan said he thought it was due them that they should have the assurance of the court "that nothing shall be left undone, that no effort shall be spared, that no pause shall be made until the cause for the shocking calamity has been found, the blame properly fixed, and the law so applied that justice shall be done."

To the fifth session of his investigation at Fire Headquarters yesterday, Fire Marshal Beers brought samples of fire hose taken from the stand-pipe service in the Asch Building. He had obtained the hose, he said, from the stand-pipe racks on the floors below those occupied by the Triangle company, and found it strong and in good condition. His samples, he insisted, were as good as could possibly be wished.

In an attempt to reconcile the vastly differing testimony about the stand pipes, the Fire Marshal examined John Casey, the Asch Building engineer. Casey said that Coroner Holtzhauser's assertion that the 5,000 gallon tank on the roof was empty was ridiculous for the simple reason tha the tank furnished all the drinking and other water used in the building.

"The tank is automatically filled," he said, "by a three-horse power motor, which is set in operation whenever the water level is 2½ feet below the top. The motor was of necessity in good condition on Saturday, for it has to do its work every day to keep water in the tank for general use. Had the stand-pipe taps been turned there would have surely been a flow of water. The fact that there was water in the sinks from which operators drew bucketsful of it proves that. I saw the pump at work Saturday before the fire."

Casey said it was his duty to inspect the standpipe hose, but that he had never done so, and that it always looked good to him. Capt. Davern of the Fire Department had inspected the place several weeks before the fire, he said, and had ordered him to oil up the pumping machinery. That was the only inspection he had heard of within a year.

Fire Marshal Beers decided to close the taking of testimony and to submit at once a report embracing his findings to Fire Commissioner Waldo. He said his inspection had shown him the doors in the Asch building could not be made to open outward, as they would strike the stairway balustrades, and would not open at all.

"I am convinced," he said, "that the terrible loss of life was due jointly to the vast amount of inflammable material strewn about the factory, to the panic, and to the crowded condition of the equipment—the sewing machines and cutting tables, with the narrow aisles between them. The cause was either a match or cigarette thrown near Cutting Table No. 1. As no one had been working at that table for several hours preceding the fire, I could not locate within any small group the man probably guilty of dropping the match or cigarette."

The Triangle Waist Company attempted to open up for business in a new location yesterday, and this time it found Building Department Inspectors quickly upon its trail. Instead of being allowed to put operatives to work it was confronted with a violation notice from the Building Bureau, setting forth that the new place is non-fireproof, and that the tiers of sewing machines have been so arranged by the company that access to the fire-escapes is cut off.

The company's new factory is at 5, 7, and 9 University Place, and it occupies the entire top floor of a six-story building owned by the Sailors' Snug Harbor Corporation. The violation notice was directed to this corporation and was made after complaint had been filed against the Triangle Company from sources not made known.

The Triangle management has arranged twenty-one machines to a row, there being four rows on the floor with aisle space sufficient for two girls to sit back to back between each line. The girls when seated would have no space in which to move about or leave their places without all getting up together.

There is one small passenger and one freight elevator in the building, while the staircase is dark and narrow and built with many steep and sharp turns. Foremen of the Triangle Company, which was preparing to start up with a force of young men and boys, declared there were plenty of fire escapes, and were rather disturbed by the report that the Building Department would compel alterations. Doors leading from the top floor connect with adjoining buildings by which access may be had to their fire escape service, it is held.

The identification of three bodies at the Morgue yesterday reduced the list of unidentified to eleven. The funeral services for these will not be held, Charities Commissioner Drummond said last night, before Wednesday. He said he would hold a consultation with the Mayor upon the subject on Monday, and would then announce the date of the funeral definitely. Whether he would make any effort to co-operate with the proposed labor parade he would not say, although he intimated that he was still opposed to the idea of a public demonstration.

The first of the bodies identified yesterday was that of the young woman who had died apparently from suffocation, there being no marks of fire upon her body. Joseph Leven of Newark identified the body as that of Jennie Leven his 19-year-old sister.

Kusiel Horlick, a cousin of Emma Rootstein, picked out her body through examining bridge work on her teeth. Esther Rosen of 78 Clinton Street, who picked out the body of her mother at the Morgue several days ago, yesterday succeeded in locating the body of her brother Israel, 17 years old. She recognized a signet ring which he had worn.

The parade of labor unions and others was definitely fixed yesterday, when it was learned that there would be no opportunity to gain possession of the unidentified bodies. The committee issued a parade bulletin calling for a general assembly of working people Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, the route to be announced later in a general proclamation from the Central Federated Union.

At a meeting last night the union voted to advise all its affiliated unions to participate in Wednesday's parade and to stop work for five minutes when the parade commenced in cases where the men could not join it. The vote was taken after speeches had been made by representatives of the Committee of Fifty, which has been meeting at the headquarters of the Women's Trades Union League.

In the courts there was ample evidence yesterday that Building and Tenement Department Inspectors are becoming active here.

Charles Zerbarini, a lawyer of 346 Broadway, living at 447 East 137th Street, was taken before Magistrate Butts in the Harlem Court on complaint of Inspector Frubling of the Tenement House Department. After Frubling had explained to the Magistrate that a building joined to Zerbarini's tenement at 341 East 104th Street, was being torn down and a joint fire escape used by both buildings was going with it, Zerbarini was held in $500, his plea for time to build a new fire escape being disregarded.

RELIEF FUND, $65,737.45.

Red Cross Committee Decides That This Will Meet the Needs.

With a total of $65,737.45 collected for the sufferers from the Washington Place fire, and many families of the fire victims refusing aid, the Red Cross Emergency Relief Committee yesterday afternoon decided to issue no further appeal for funds, in as much as the amount already collected is deemed sufficient for the committee's purposes. The committee issued a statement of its works and plans, saying in part:

A complete list of the names and addresses of those who had been lost or injured, so far as identification had gone, was in the hands of the committee when it opened its office on Monday, and other names and addresses have been received as identification has proceeded. Every family has been visited and all emergent needs met. In a number of instances relief has been declined on the ground that the family resources were sufficient. The committee has respected and honored such self-reliance. Nor has it obtruded relief when relatives or friends claimed a preferential right to bestow it.

The gratifying and impressive feature of the contributions is the large number of small gifts, coming evidently from people of modest means, many of them apparently workmen, and the number of collective contributions from employes of this or that firm or company, not to speak of contributions from children.

The following contributions of $10 or more were received yesterday at the office of Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer of the Red Cross Relief Committee, the total for the day being $6,024.81:

Voters Should Demand Better Fire Protection, Says Dr. Anna Shaw at Protest Meeting.

"DOLLARS AGAINST A LIFE."

Mass Meeting in Opera House on Sunday to Protest Against Conditions.

A mass meeting of protest at the conditions which made possible the Washington Place fire disaster a week ago to-day was held at Cooper Union last night under the auspices of the Collegiate Equal Suffrage League. Although the big hall was filled and scattered through the crowd were women draped in the heavy black of fresh mourning, it was a silent gathering, marked by none of that hysteria which stirred the memorial meeting at the Grand Central Palace on Wednesday evening.

Stretched where every one could see was a flaring banner which bore this legend:

Votes for Women, Nov. 28.—Twenty-five woman killed in Newark factory fire. March 25—One hundred and thirty women killed in Triangle fire. Locked doors, overcrowding, inadequate fire escapes. The women could not, the voters did not, alter these conditions. We demand for all women the right to protect themselves.

There were three speakers. Meyer London, who was counsel for the striking shirtwaist makers last year, spoke with the authority of organized labor; Morris Hilquit used the fire as a text for the gospel of Socialism, and Dr. Anna Shaw was there as a suffragist. She seemed filled with a tremendous anger and she spoke eloquently.

"As I read that terrible story last Sunday," she said, "I asked, 'Am I my sister's keeper?' for the Lord said to me, 'Where is thy sister?' And I bowed my head and said I am responsible. Yes, every man and woman of this city is responsible. Don't try to lay it on some one else. Don't try to lay it to some officials. We are responsible. You men, forget not that you are responsible; that, as voters, it was your business, and you should have been about your business. If you are incompetent, then in the name of heaven let us try. Time was when woman worked in the home, with her weaving, her sewing, her candlemaking. All that has been changed, and she can no longer regulate her own conditions and her own hours of labor. She has been driven into the market, with no weapons, laws, and powerless to defend herself. The most cowardly thing that men ever did was when they tied women's hands and left them to be food for the flames."

"All sympathy here is natural but useless," said Mr. Hilquit. "Punishment as a revenge is natural but useless. I do not believe in jail as a remedy for social evils. The girls who went on strike last year were trying to readjust the conditions under which they were obliged to work. I wonder if there is not some connection between that fire and that strike. I wonder if our Magistrates who sent to jail the girls who did picket duty in front of the Triangle shop realized last Sunday that some of the responsibility may be theirs. Had that strike been successful those girls would have my goodwill and my assistance against the few dishonest men and grafters of the force. For thirty years the rank and file of the force have seen Inspectors and others in chief rulership over the force retire, one after the other, millionaires. I trust that no official of the Police Department will be able to retire a millionaire at the end of my term as Mayor unless he had his million before I came in. The great body of the force is absolutely honest, faithful, intelligent, and alert.

As for the cry in some newspapers about the "wave of crime," as they call it, I can only say that that recurs once a year, with the regularity that the marble season reeurs to boys. We heard it last year, and every year theretofore, and at this time next year we shall hear it again. It is very easy to denounce in general terms. I can only say that I receive every specific complaint of any crime or disorder in the city personally from any one who will write to me or come to me, and the Police Commissioner immediately investigates the matter and removes the evil if there be one. He follows the same course with complaints sent directly to him. I am glad to say that the steady and unsensational clergymen of the city and the best people of the city have worked with us in these matters from the start and given us encouragement and assistance. Others have chosen, meanwhile, to belie us in the very things that we have our hearts most set upon doing.

Frivolous Arrests Reduced.

The number of persons arrested and locked up for frivolous causes in New York City last year was reduced by 50,000. People were arrested for the most frivolous things and made to give bail or be locked up for a hearing. This sustained the trade of professional bondsmen and the graft that went with it. The number of persons arrested in New York City in 1909 was 220,366, while in great Metropolitan London it was only 112,642. We began early in 1910 to modify this great abuse. We had to proceed gradually, for the force could not be taught the law of arrest and how to discriminate all at once after so many years of arbitrary arrests.

Of the said 50,000 decrease in arrests last year I now have statistics showing that 28,703 were in the Borough of Manhattan and the Bronx, and of these 23,026 were in the classes of petty offenses, such as violation of corporation ordinances, Adler said. "and we must now strike while the iron is hot. Do not be content with enacting laws and ordinances, for it is another of our weaknesses that we every year pass laws and ordinances and then do not put them into force. Let us pass the necessary laws for our protection, but see that they are backed up with intelligence. We have got to press for a steadfast enforcement of the laws. Then we do not have to wait for the law in this matter. We should see to it now that as employers we have done everything in our power to safeguard our employes.

"I have read since the disaster that capital murdered the wage earners. This is not true. Murder does not apply in this case. It is a crime of taking chances. Americans are always taking chances. Look at some of the flimsy apartment houses in which some of your friends live. There you see some who are taking chances with their children's lives. A man may, if he wants to, take a chance with his own life, but when he takes a chance with the lives of others he is criminally culpable. No one as an employer has the right to take chances."

MASS MEETING TO-MORROW.

Fire Protection to be Discussed at Metropolitan Opera House.

The Women's Trades Union League has issued a call to citizens to attend a mass meeting at the Metropolitan Opera House at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon to discuss the Washington Place fire, "to take counsel together, and to call upon experts in various lines as to what shall be done to prevent another similar disaster, for it is commonly understood that there are thousands of factory buildings in addition to tenement and apartment houses and other buildings in which a similar frightful loss of life might easily follow a fire."

Jacob H. Schiff will open the meeting. There will be speeches by Gov. Dix, who has accepted a long-distance telephone invitation to be President; John Mitchell, Rabbi Wise, Rose Schneiderman, Bishop Greer, E. R. A. Seligman, Father White, and others, to be announced later. The call says:

"The Washington Place fire occurred last Saturday evening. During the week official investigations have been made, testimony taken, every feature of our present laws discussed, and attempts made to fix the blame. These measures are in good hands and will be continued. It is our belief that the time is ripe for a sober, discriminating survey of the whole situation in its bearings on the future. We shall know shortly, if we do not know already, just where our laws are weak. We shall learn just how our building methods are at fault. We shall be told who, if any one, is to blame. Let us now look unitedly into the future.

"At the time of the Newark factory fire it was pointed out in a New York magazine that New York City is full of factory buildings ripe for similar disasters. Four months passed without action and the disaster came. In the last analysis the blame is on all of us, citizens, who permitted such conditions to continue without effective protest. Let us learn our lesson and see to it now that lethargy and indifference lead to no further delay which shall be measured in terms of human lives."

At the headquarters of the league yesterday a movement was started to organize a permanent bureau or labor laws, whose purpose will be to see that all statutes having to do with the safety of life, limb and health are rigidly enforced and that all cases of building code violations are followed up through the courts. Eleanor O'Reilly, who is managing the movement to open the permanent bureau, said that a similar organization, established in Newark after the fire there, had resulted in the equipping of every factory building in the city with the most modern fire protection devices.

WOMEN URGE FIRE DRILLS.

Commissioner Waldo Agrees That They Should Be Held.

The Public Safety Committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs met at the Hotel Astor yesterday morning. The committee had a bill introduced at Albany some time ago making fire drills obligatory in all large factories and stores, and at the meeting yesterday a telegram was received saying that the bill had been voted out of committee.

A complaint has been received of a factory in lower Broadway, where infants' clothes are made, and where conditions are so bad that since the Washington Place fire the nervous girl employes have almost to be driven into the place every morning. The complaint will be investigated immediately by the Chairman of the Public Safety Committee, Mrs. Francis Cartwright, and Mrs. Ralph Trautman and Mrs. Julian Heath.

Fire Commissioner Waldo attended yesterday's meeting and admitted that he believed in the fire drill. Mrs. Cartwright suggested that firemen who had retired on pension be put in charge of the work of instituting fire drills.

TELLS ELECTRIFICATION COST

Engineer Says $2,211,017 Will End the Central's Smoke and Noise.

Figures were submitted yesterday to the Public Service Commission by Reginald P. Bolton, an engineer, which indicated that the New York Central Railroad could electrify its Hudson water front trackage from Spuyten Duyvil to Fiftieth Street, for $2,211,017. Mr. Bolton was a witness for George L. Willson, in his action before Commissioner Eustis, in which he contends that the noise and smoke of the Central's engines so close to Riverside Park, are a public nuisance.

The commission stopped taking evidence once, and was disposed to dismiss the complaint under a decision of the courts in another "public nuisance" case relating to the New Haven Railroad, but Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for the complainant, got Commissioner Eustis to reopen the case, and yesterday got Mr. Bolton on the stand.

The witness submitted complete blueprint plans for the electrification, which he had worked out in detail, and the Central's lawyers and engineers listened to his testimony with interest. Mr. Bolton figured the cost of electrification of trackage at $387,000; transmission and distribution of current, $250,000; substations and batteries, $679,000, and rolling stock, $573,000. To this he added 20 per cent. for engineering and superintendence on the first three items, and 10 per cent. on the rolling stock, making the total of $2,211,017.

WANTED FOR HOBOKEN THEFT

Special to The New York Times.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., March 31.—Driven by hunger to beg on the streets here John Rohner, 16, of 578 Hackensack Street, Union Hill, made the mistake of asking the Chief of Police for alms and was recognized as a messenger boy who stole $1,300 in cash which he was conveying from one bank to another in Hoboken last January.

Rohner made a full confession, saying he had divided his money with a companion who aided in the theft, and that they had destroyed $4,000 of valuable papers by burning them at Denver. Rohner went broke in San Francisco, and beat his way this far East on freight trains. He says his companion saved his money and abandoned him.

because I know it. I know that as soon as you cross the city line right hereabouts there is no observance of the excise law on Sunday. The traffic is even carried on in the barrooms.

There is no way to try to cope with the sale of liquor in the landlord's interior room except to send policemen there in plain clothes as spies to drink and report. Many of them are total abstainers and do not wish to do this. And I need not tell sensible men the danger of graft or extortion in this method, and of all things we do not want to restore to corrupt political leaders and police officials the liquor trade graft which we have done away with.

The police force is, as a whole, a splendid body, doing splendid service, as I have said over and over again, and while I remain Mayor they shall have my goodwill and my assistance against the few dishonest men and grafters of the force. For thirty years the rank and file of the force have seen Inspectors and others in chief rulership over the force retire, one after the other, millionaires. I trust that no official of the Police Department will be able to retire a millionaire at the end of my term as Mayor unless he had his million before I came in. The great body of the force is absolutely honest, faithful, intelligent, and alert.

These witnesses repeated afterward startling stories they had told of the increase in crime in their localities, which they said was due to the withdrawal of detectives from precincts and the fear of policemen to use their nightsticks. They were unanimous in the opinion that the city's water front was inadequately patrolled.

Sailors Robbed Almost Nightly.

Mr. Wright was before the Grand Jury an hour. It was an almost nightly occurrence, he said, to hear of sailors being slugged and robbed. An organized gang of criminals prowled along the water front beating up sailors with blackjacks and robbing them. Sailors would come to the mission perfectly sober, and when they left fifteen or twenty minutes later reports would come in that they had been held up, robbed, and beaten. After the attack the sailors would be left unconscious in the street with fractured skulls and their pockets rifled.

The present state of affairs he considered worse than at any time in the history of the city. The thugs ranged in age from 17 to 25 years. He cited an instance last week of a sailor who left the mission to go to his ship, and fifteen minutes later was found unconscious with three wounds on the head. He had been robbed of $90. He himself wouldn't walk along West Street from Tenth to Twentieth Street for all the money in the world. Despite the large number of assaults practically no arrests were made.

Mr. Wright said that in his opinion much good would be done if the precinct detectives were restored to duty. Since they were sent on patrol, he said, an interrupted series of daring hold-ups had occurred. He had no fault to find with the rank and file of the department, but he was very much in favor of a liberal use by policemen of the nightstick. The men, he continued, were afraid to wield their night sticks as in the old days, on the ground that it would get them into trouble with the authorities. A generous use of the night stick, he thought, would do more to break up gangs than mere words.

In speaking of crimes along the water front, Mr. Wright said he firmly believed that many murders had been committed by these gangs and the bodies of sailors thrown into the river. It was not unusual to have a body picked up in the water, and although there was plenty of evidence of a crime having been committed, the police were powerless to do anything. Mr. Wright was well primed with particulars, and he cited many cases of assaults, giving names and dates of crimes, especially where bodies were taken from the water. He also had a list showing to which hospitals sailors were taken after being assaulted.

Father McGrath told of finding bodies in the water, the men having met their death by being beaten. He urged that the policemen be allowed to use their night sticks. He thought it would help greatly if the men realized that the Police Commissioner was back of them.

Mr. Colletti told of assaults upon foreigners arriving at the Battery. Many of these, he said, were lured into disorderly houses and other resorts where they were beaten and robbed. The gangs, he said, worked systematically and in large numbers. Detectives ought to be restored and sent to work along the water front, where they did good work before.

Mr. Goldberger told how many patrons of his hotels had been slugged and robbed. In many instances guests would start out for a walk during the evening and return shortly afterward covered with blood as the result of attacks. Mr. Goldberger produced copies of letters which he and his patrons had written to Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn early in March, complaining of conditions. Once, he said, a detective appeared at his hotel, asked many questions, and went away again. That was the last seen of him, and so far as he could discover no further effort was made to stop crime.

Many Questions for Cropsey.

Commissioner Cropsey did not go before the Grand Jury until the afternoon session, and the jurors had plenty of questions to ask him. The Commissioner was questioned in particular about the order doing away with special policemen. Several of the jurors are bankers, and as many of the special policemen were working in banks and office buildings, the jurors wanted to know why these special policemen had their shields and revolvers taken away. The Commissioner, it is understood, replied that he though this order a good one. Any citizen, he said, had the power to make an arrest, while a specially employed watchman could carry a revolver if he chose to do so, if he carried it in a belt.

Another question put to the Commissioner concerned the 550 detectives now assigned to the station houses from the Detective Bureau. He was asked why these men were not on patrol and thus be on the lookout for crime, instead of being compelled to wait in the station houses until the crimes were reported. The Commissioner's replies did not satisfy the inquisitors. It was learned after an adjournment was taken that none of the jurors was greatly impressed with the Commissioner.

One reply the Commissioner made which seemed to displease the jurors was that he was not so much concerned over getting an efficient police force as an honest one. When the inquisition was through for the day the Commissioner left the Grand Jury room by a private entrance and hurried through the office of Assistant District Attorney Perkins toward an elevator in the rear. Asked if he had anything to say regarding the investigation he turned upon his questioner and snapped:

"Young man, if you had one-half of the intelligence which your face would seem to indicate, you would have sense enough not to ask me such an impertinent question. I am all right. I am not worrying. You do the worrying. I will not say a word."

The Commissioner will appear before the Grand Jury again on Monday.

Mayor Mistaken, Says Corrigan.

Magistrate Corrigan said last night that he would reply to Mayor Gaynor in full. He said the Mayor had grossly overstated the facts in regard to the prevalence of crime, and he had evidence to prove it.

"Take his remarks regarding the enforcement of the excise law on Sundays," said the Magistrate. "He has manifestly misstated the facts. I have seen many violations of the law myself, merely by looking into windows of saloons. He asks the citizens to examine conditions for themselves. I am perfectly willing to leave the matter to the citizens and let them judge who is telling the truth. He is wrong also in regard to the increase of crime. Crime, and serious crime especially, is greatly on the increase."

A letter the Mayor wrote to Gustav Strassburger, President of the Dorine Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of fine waists, formerly of 551 West Fortysecond Street, was made public yesterday. Mr. Strassburger wrote the Mayor protesting against the lack of police protection, and the Mayor replied as follows:

"Inasmuch as I know your letter to be untruthful, I do not care to further answer it. The police will give you full protection in all respects, and any statement to the contrary is simply untruthful. I would even personally see that it is done, and you know it."

Mr. Strassbourger replied as follows:

"You answered a business letter that I wrote you, that I am untruthful. I can tell you that I had to move my factory out of New York, where we built this business, on account of the neighborhood. I can moreover tell you that the policemen are afraid of the boys because they are not allowed to use their clubs. I do not like your letter, and you have no business to write such a letter to me. If you use these tactics to other people that write you, you have no business to be Mayor of a little town where each man has time to call on you."

Mr. Strassburger explained that gangs in the neighborhood of his factory annoyed his employes to such an extent that he moved his business to Newburg.

Commissioner Imposes Fines.

Commissioner Cropsey handed down yesterday decisions in a large number of trials recently held at Headquarters. Capt. Edward Gallagher was fined ten days' pay for not obeying an order to give old policemen preference in assignments to easy details. Capt. James E. Hussey of Sheepshead Bay, formerly an Inspector, was fined five days' pay for failing to suppress an alleged prize fight in Brooklyn on March 8.

"Now I telephone for everything and save so much energy that my husband and friends tell me I have become good company again.

THE HOFFMAN HOUSE TO CLOSE ITS DOORS

Monday the Last Day of Life for a Hotel Famous Among Democrats the Country Over.

IT CAN'T MAKE EXPENSES

In a Receiver's Hands Since October, and All Possible Economies Made, but Without Avail.

The historic Hoffman House, at Broadway and Twenty-fifth Street, will close on Monday next. It has long been in the hands of a receiver, and yesterday at a meeting of creditors, held in the offices of Frederick C. Laughlin, 185 Broadway, who has been receiver since Oct. 21, the closing was decided on.

Miss A. Caddagan, part owner of the hotel with her sister Margaret, was joined in the receivership as the best way out of the financial difficulties which had been brought about chiefly by the rebuilding a few years ago. Since that date every effort has been made, by strict economy in management, to pay expenses in order to keep the house open for its old customers, but the effort has failed and nothing was left but to close.

The guests living in the house were notified last night by Manager George B. Nicholson that they would have to leave on Monday, and the employes, numbering about 200, were informed that their services would expire on Monday night.

The order for closing the hotel was felt most by John Peacock, who has been chief clerk there for thirty years, and has been known personally to all the prominent Democrats in the country for the last quarter of a century. His grief is shared by Peter Kehlan, the head porter who, with twenty-five years to his credit, comes next in length of service.

Other employes are E. H. Harrington, cashier; C. C. Nobles, clerk, and George B. Nicholson, who have all been in the hotel for years. The Misses Caddagan, who succeeded their father in the proprietorship of the hotel, felt the situation keenly yesterday when the receiver informed them that the doors must close on Monday. They retired early to their apartments, sending word that they had no comment for the public.

The Hoffman House was closed temporarily and rebuilt when the hotel business was booming. It reopened during the depression following the panic of 1907, when other hotels were feeling the strain severely. In October, 1910, the management had to default in the payment of the interest on its $150,000 mortgage, and this brought matters to a crisis. John B. Stanchfield, the lawyer, is Trustee for the holders of the mortgage under an agreement which gives him the right to take physical possession of the property at any time when a default in interests occurs. The Trustee need not even go into court.

It was said last night that the liabilities of the hotel would be from $350,000 to $400,000, including the mortgage. The list of creditors includes Park & Tilford, Acker, Merral & Condit, Hunter & Trimble, Charles A. Dards, and others. The receiver reported recently that there was $160,000 owing to unsecured creditors for merchandise, $125,000 back rent owing to the Gerry estate, and almost $100,000 to the Caddagan estate.

Until the last two or three years the house was the New York headquarters for all Democratic politicians in the State and Nation. It enjoyed the same distinction and popularity among Democrats that its old next door neighbor, the Fifth Avenue Hotel, had with Republicans. Many National campaigns were waged from these two adjacent bases.

Recently the Democratic Party leaders have been drifting away from the Hoffman House, most of them now making their headquarters at the Waldorf-Astoria and the Knickerbocker. A few of the old-timers have still stuck to the old house, but for the last year or so the old political gatherings in the corridors of the hotel have disappeared.

When the old Fifth Avenue was torn down the Amen Corner moved to the Hoffman House, taking with it the two old oak benches that had been their meeting place for years. Probably not a dozen politicians have sat on these benches, however, in the last six months.

The last gathering of politicians at the hotel was on election day last Fall, when the usual recording of election bets went on much as in years past. For years the Hoffman House was the principal headquarters of election bettors, and many thousands of dollars have reposed in its safe, awaiting the result of a city, State, or National election.

One of the last residents of the hotel was Col. William F. Cody, ("Buffalo Bill,") who has made it his headquarters in New York for many years. When the present Hoffman House was built in the early eighties by Edward S. Stokes, it became famous for its luxuriously furnished bar, which was one of the sights of uptown night life in New York. Twenty-third Street then holding the same importance in the city that Times Square now has. It was said that the bar contained more than $200,000 worth of art treasures, among them the famous Bouguereau painting "Nymphs and Satyrs," which still hangs in the café, and is said to be worth $100,000.

GILSEY HOUSE CLOSES TO-DAY.

All Patrons Must Be Out at Noon—To be Used as an Office Building.

To-day at noon the old Gilsey House, at Twenty-ninth Street and Broadway, will be without patrons. In the last week about 100 have sought quarters elsewhere, and as many more were packing up last night preparatory to departing this morning.

Several weeks ago the management posted a notice over the desk to the effect that all patrons must be out of their rooms at noon on April 1. At first some of the old-timers thought it an April Fool joke on the part of John H. Fife, but he assured the doubters that the house had been sold to the Croton Realty Company, and that the ground on which it stands had been purchased by F. F. Fogel. Mr. Fife said the realty company was preparing to rent the hotel rooms as offices, and that the furniture and furnishings would be sold at auction.

WATCHMAN'S BODY FOUND.

Aged Capitol Employe Had Tried to Reach a Door, but Was Overcome.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 31.—The body of Samuel J. Abbott, the only person lost in the State Capitol fire, was found this morning buried in debris on the fourth floor at the end of the State library rooms furthest from where the fire started. It lay just under a heavy oak door and it was apparent that he had been overcome while trying to reach the opening. It was here that the fire on the fourth floor was finally checked, just before it reached the Senate chamber.

Diehl has been connected with the Associated Press for the last twenty-eight years, during eighteen years of which he has been Assistant General Manager. Coroners' Offices Move.

The Coroners' offices, which have been in the Criminal Courts Building for sixteen years, were removed yesterday to the third, fourth, and seventh floors of the Ahern Building, Lafayette and Franklin Streets. The general offices are on the third floor, the fourth is occupied by the private offices of the Coroners, and the seventh floor contains the courtroom. Most of the old furniture was renovated and put in the new offices. It is said that by doing this about $6,000 was saved for the city.

NEW ALPS TUNNEL THROUGH.

Last of Structure Pierced in $20,000,000 Loetschberg Work.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 31.—The final obstruction to the Loetschberg Tunnel through the Bernese Alps was pierced by the laborers at 3:50 o'clock this morning after five and a half years' work and the expenditure of $20,000,000.

The tunnel, which is the third longest in Europe, measures 14,500 metres, or approximately nine miles.

With the completion of the Loetschberg Tunnel, which was planned to give the Simplon Tunnel Railway line a direct connection with the railways which traverse Switzerland from north to south, there will be a direct through route from Milan to Berne and thence to Calais and Boulogne. The distance from Milan to Calais by this route will be about 675 miles, or nearly 80 miles less than the existing routes. The tunnel will be double-tracked throughout.

Hotel Policemen Lose Their Badges.

The special policemen employed in the hotels had to go to Police Headquarters yesterday and turn in their badges, agreeably to an order from Mayor Gaynor to Police Commissioner Cropsey. Many of these men had been from ten to twenty years in the same hotel, and were reluctant to surrender their badges while the special Subway police were allowed to retain theirs. The hotel police say that the sight of their shields had been effective in preventing crime.

SNUB TO MISS BEERS TO BE TAKEN HIGHER

Admiral Gibson and Others to Complain to Navy Department of Annapolis Incident.

PROTEST BY PROF. BEERS

Declares His Daughter Was an Old Friend of Mrs. Tarrant, Whom She Assisted at Home.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 31.—An investigation is to be demanded from the Navy Department into the incident at the Annapolis Naval Academy in which an attempt was made to bar Miss Mary Heaton Beers from social recognition because she was engaged in domestic work. Miss Beers is the daughter of Prof. Henry A. Beers, the venerable retired head of the English Department at Yale, and his friends in the university Faculty have urged him to act decisively and promptly. He said to-night that he had already communicated with naval officers, and asked a rigid inquiry into the case.

A naval officer who has offered his aid in the matter is Admiral Gibson, retired, now of the Brooklyn Navy Yard. He is a personal friend of the professor. He is loath to believe that the facts of the case are as represented. If a girl of established social position, a member of a distinguished family, with education and refinement, is to be ostracised at the Naval Academy because she wishes to indulge in domestic science, however, he wants the position of the Academy placed officially on record.

Prof. Beers declined to make a statement to-night, but talked informally about the case.

"I cannot but feel that an apology is due us," said he. "I have requested the Annapolis authorities to investigate the matter, for I cannot believe that a young woman of refinement and breeding is to be barred from social activity there if her inclinations run along the lines of domestic science. My daughter was graduated from Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, two years ago. From a child she has been interested in good housekeeping and she wished to make it a life study. She wished to earn her living in that way. Personally I feel that she has a right to do so without loss of social prestige.

"We have known the Tarrants for years, and Mrs. Tarrant urged my daughter, upon her graduation from Pratt Institute, to accompany her as companion and assist her in her household duties, as a member of the family. My daughter has done so since that time. Mrs. Tarrant introduced her into society wherever they went the past Summer. Trips were made up the Hudson, and my daughter was received everywhere as a member of the family. Invitations were accepted at Annapolis, and Mrs. Tarrant has chaperoned my daughter to various social events at the Naval Academy during the Winter. I have written my daughter and Mrs. Tarrant regarding the facts in the case, but have not heard from Mrs. Tarrant.

"I regret exceedingly that this affair has got into the newspapers. It does not belong there."

Prof. Beers has retired from active teaching at Yale, but still lectures on select literary subjects.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—While no official protest has yet come before the Secretary of the Navy, the officers at the department are all agog over the social tempest that has suddenly risen to fury at Annapolis over the exclusion of Miss Mary Heaton Beers, daughter of Prof. Henry Henry A. Beers, from the middy hops at the academy. It is expected that not only Prof. Beers, but navy officers of high rank, will take the matter up directly with the Secretary of the Navy, and Capt. Bowyer, the Superintendent of the Navy Academy, will be ordered to take severe action in rebuke of the persons who are responsible for the slight put upon the young woman.

The objection urged as the ground for the closing of social doors against Miss Beers was that she had been a nurse and companion in the household of Mrs. Tarrant, wife of Lieut. Commander William T. Tarrant, recently engineer officer of the battleship Michigan, but now stationed on duty at the academy. She is described as good looking, well bred, and popular.

The jealousy of a wife of an officer, who did not like the way Miss Beers was put on a level with the rest of the Tarrant family, brought about the action by officers stationed at the academy by which Miss Beers is said to have been notified not to present herself again at the hops.

ALFANO HOLDS STAGE AT VITERBO ASSIZES

Eloquence of Reputed Head of Camorra Surprises Those at Camorra Trial.

HE ARRAIGNS AUTHORITIES

"I am a Victim of Yellow Journalism and am Ruined by the Carabinieri," He Cries—Tells of New York Visit.

VITERBO, March 31.—This was Alfano's day—Enrico Alfano, alias "Erricone," the reputed head of the most monstrous criminal organization on earth.

For five hours, at both sessions, he withstood the ordeal of interrogation by Judge and prosecutor. He held the spectators spellbound by his natural eloquence and the captivating sincerity of his denials.

The prisoners in the large steel cage, for the first time during the trial, were silent—some wept. From the smaller cage Abbatemaggio, the informer, regarded the scene with cool indifference. The lawyers for the defense smiled and nodded to one another as the interrogation proceeded.

The man is innocent or a consummate actor. As he proceeded the slender figure seemed to grow until it dominated the courtroom, and friends and enemies alike shrank from the gaze that he fixed first upon one and then another while he poured forth the most scathing arraignment of the authorities that has ever been heard in an Italian court of justice.

"I am a victim of yellow journalism," he cried. "I have been ruined by the Carabinieri, who have made me appear as an assassin."

Erricone could not have done it better if he had rehearsed the part for years. He began modestly and calmly, gradually raising his voice and displaying his emotions until he had his auditors enthralled.

You could have heard a pin drop when President Bianchi commanded Erricone to come from the prisoners' steel cage and take a place before the bar. Quietly Erricone stepped forth and assumed a natural attitude without any attempt at the theatrical just in front of the Justice's bench. He replied to the preliminary questions in a voice that was not strong but was penetrating. He denied categorically the accusations of the informer Gennaro Abbatemaggio. He said that he was not in a position to condemn the Cuocolos to death.

"The story that I have ever been the head of the Camorra is a legend," he said, "I was neither its head nor its tail."

He admitted that in youth he was arrogant and quarrelsome and even had committed some excesses, "but," he asked, "what youth of my class in Naples has not been arrogant, quarrelsome, and guilty of boyish excesses?"

As the questioning proceeded Erricone showed signs of irritation, finally trembling with excitement. As the thrusts of the President and Crown Prosecutor went home Erricone's face hardened with anger until he looked like a savage animal about to spring upon its prey.

Suddenly he abandoned all attempts at composure and gave free rein to his feelings in a peroration that was truly eloquent.

"It is a lie; a myth," he shouted. "I was neither the head nor the tail of the Camorra. I was a boy among boys of the poorer class. I was no better and no worse than my mates. They say that I was quarrelsome and committed excesses. Yes; but what boy in my class of life has not done wrong or been indiscreet?

"I was ruined first by the sensationalism of that newspaper, Il Mattino. That is why, although I now regret the deed, all my nerves rebeled as a member of the staff of that paper approached me when I was arraigned in court as a murderer. I could not help spitting in his face.

"Then the Carabinieri damned me by making me appear as an assassin. To call us assassins is inhuman cruelty. No one has a right so to stigmatize us; not even a confessed criminal who to serve his own ends becomes an assassin only after he has been condemned."

President Bianchi, interrupting, beseeched Erricone to calm himself, but the only effect was to cause the prisoner to burst into tears, and, sobbing violently, he continued:

"For four years I have suffered persecution and martyrdom. Constantly before my eyes is a picture of my dear, innocent brother Ciro, dying in a prison cell adjoining my own. In my ears ring his laments as he passed through the agony of death. He was young and the beautiful image of his Creator. He died innocent."

For a moment Erricone paused, and the only sound came from the prisoners' cage, where Gennaro Ibelli, the alleged head of the Camorra in the Vesuvian villages, leaning his head against the steel bars, cried like a child.

It was a dramatic moment, and there was a sigh of relief among the spectators when Erricone got his feelings under control and launched into a denunciation of Abbatemaggio. He described the informer as a poor young man whom he had helped by giving him employment as a stable boy, and who had returned his generosity by stealing from him, blackmailing him, and finally trying to ruin him.

"Ametta, a Brigadier of the Carabinieri," remarked the President, "has declared that you are a Camorrista."

Erricone replied: "All Naples knows that Ametta is disreputable. He is the companion of evil women."

"But Ametta was accused, tried, and acquitted."

"All Naples knows how certain acquittals can be obtained."

Erricone then described how Abbatemaggio tried to blackmail him by threatening to make revelations against him. Erricone consulted lawyers who said that if he were accused his acquittal would be certain, but if he were arrested he would have to remain in prison for several years before his case came to trial.

Therefore, the witness said, he decided to escape, and took first class passage by steamer to Marseilles because the first class section of the vessel was not searched by the police. He then went to Paris and Havre and then sailed for New York, where he stopped with a friend.

Shortly after arriving in New York, he said, he was visited by a man who spoke Italian with an American accent. This man asked him:

"Are you Enrico Tramontano?"

Erricone said he replied that his name was Enrico Alcano. Another man, whom the witness said he afterward learned was Lieut. Petrosino, identified him through a photograph which the American detective had. Petrosino asked him to go to Police Headquarters, where he was told that owing to his bad record he could not remain in the United States. The witness said he was locked up in the Tombs at New York and later was taken to France and then extradited to Italy.

Erricone continued ridiculing the description of the Camorra given by Abbatemaggio, calling it fantastic and childish. He ended his testimony with a vigorous appeal to the jury, saying that the jurors must consider that the accused men are sons of Vesuvius, are as God made them—quick-tempered and ready for recourse to violence when provoked, but incapable of committing a terrible murder like that of Cuocolo and his wife.

Enrico Alfano is 36 years of age, a brownish man, below medium height, but of commanding presence—a man who exhausts the eloquence of pose and silence before resorting to words. Across his right cheek he bears a deep scar, the "sfrego" or sign of Camorrista punishment.

He began his career by selling fruit in the Vicoli di Santa Lucia district of Naples. Later he was employed to attend cattle auctions. It is not known when he became affiliated with the Camorra—probably at an early age, although he is not mentioned in the two bulky volumes which constitute the report of the investigation made by the Ministry of Interior in 1901. This report, however, concerns the political phase of the society, which was then looked upon as a sort of Tweed Ring.

According to Abbatemaggio, Alfano was jealous of Glennaro Cuocolo's rise in the society, and when Luigi Arena complained from the prison at Lampedusa that Cuocolo had been a traitor to the Camorra and had placed him there, Alfano was moved to act.

He caused the court of the Camorra to assemble at the Aida Tavern in Bagnoli, a suburb of Naples, on May 26, 1906, where (still according to Abbatemaggio) the Cuocolos were sentenced to death.

On the evening of June 5 he admits that he was supping with friends at the Inn of Mimi a Mare in Torre del Greco, another suburb, but he denies that Mariano di Gennaro conveyed to him there the fact that Cuocolo had just been slain hard by in the Cupa or Lane of Calastro.

Three days after the murder the entire supper party was arrested on suspicion and interrogated for several days. In the meantime Don Ciro Vitozzi was active. He is Alfano's godfather. He informed the examining magistrate that Alfano and his companions had nothing to do with the murder. He could himself reveal the guilty parties did not the confessional seal his lips. He finally indicated whom he meant, but they had no difficulty in establishing alibis. Later it was discovered that they were Camorristi whom the heads of the society had thought best to discipline.

On July 17, 1906, Alfano and his fellow-prisoners—his brother Ciro, Ibelli, and Rapi—were released from prison. Alfano a few months later went to Marseilles and embarked for America. He arrived in New York on March 17, 1907, and took a small apartment at 7 Jones Street. Later he opened a gambling establishment in the basement of 108 Mulberry Street.

Here, on April 17, he was identified by Bonanno of the Italian Detective Squad, arrested, and taken to Police Headquarters. On April 22 he was turned over to the Federal authorities, and three days later deported to Havre. By the middle of May he was back in prison in Naples. From Naples he was taken to Viterbo on Jan. 7 last.

Some Representative Opinions of Subscribers to The New (11th) Edition of the

Encyclopaedia Britannica

Several thousand of the American subscribers to the new Encyclopaedia Britannica who recorded their applications in advance of publication recently received Volumes I to XIV of the work. The New York office of the Cambridge University Press (the publishers) has received hundreds of congratulatory letters from those who are now in possession of these volumes. The following extracts are typical of the general comments made by subscribers in their letters and demonstrate with what an extraordinary degree of satisfaction and enthusiasm the new work—particularly in the India paper flexible binding format—is being welcomed by all classes of the educated American public:

From a Distinguished Editor

From Subscriber No. 100: "The hand does not now get tired before the brain."

"It is Magnificent"

From Subscriber No. 1501: "It is magnificent, wonderful! I congratulate you on fulfilling all the hopes that you have aroused."

"So Magnificent a Work"

From Subscriber No. 1662: "I congratulate you on the production of so magnificent a work."

From Subscriber No. 370: "A magnificent production."

"My Delight and Happiness"

From Subscriber No. 36: "After an examination of the books, I feel compelled to express to you my delight and happiness in being the possessor of such a beautiful work."

"A Remarkable Book"

From Subscriber No. 902: "I am very much pleased. The binding, paper, print and lightness make a remarkable book, and the contents are all that could be desired."

Price "Exceedingly Reasonable"

From Subscriber No. 2031: "The first fourteen volumes arrived the other day in most satisfactory condition, owing to good packing, and I am very much pleased with their appearance and contents. . . . I think that the introductory price of four dollars a volume ($4.00) is exceedingly reasonable."

"Most Hearty Congratulations"

From Subscriber No. 2298: "I received this morning one-half the volumes of the new edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica and want to send you my most hearty congratulations on the form in which this edition has been produced. I do not see how it would be possible to improve on these volumes."

"Beyond My Expectations in Every Respect"

From Subscriber No. 3725: "It is indeed a wonderful work, beyond my expectations in every respect."

"So Much Easier to Use"

From Subscriber No. 974: "I am much pleased with the volumes. They are so much easier to use than the old edition. I am particularly interested in the historical and biographical parts and am quite elated at possessing such a valuable reference library in so small a compass."

"A Triumph in Book-Making"

From Subscriber No. 178: "Needless to say, the new edition in India paper affords me the keenest satisfaction. It is a triumph in book-making."

"Easy to Hold, Delightful to Read"

From Subscriber No. 1598: "Permit me to congratulate you upon the beauty of the work. The volumes are charming to look at, easy to hold and delightful to read. . . . Already what I hoped for has been realized; my children have begun to read them with pleasure."

"A Truly Wonderful Production"

From Subscriber No. 2539: "The work more than meets my expectations. It is a truly wonderful production."

"A Splendid Work, Superbly Made"

From Subscriber No. 856: "It is a splendid work, superbly made, and reflects great credit upon its authors and publishers."

Local America and Local England Are in It

From Subscriber No. 3306: "It is a monumental work, and so cheap, and in the thin edition is easily handled and stored. It seems to me it typifies a real union of the English-speaking people. I find local America there with the real American spirit, and I find local England written in the real English spirit; it seems perfectly at home in both countries, and with its deep learning, these are the things that impress me most."

"The Excellence of This New Edition"

From Subscriber No. 1696: "I beg to acknowledge the receipt of the first fourteen volumes of the Encyclopaedia Britannica and desire to add my word of praise for the excellence of this new edition, which, to my thinking, places it far above any other work of a similar nature."

"Bound to Quicken Intellectual Life"

From Subscriber No. 1820: "It seems to me that this publishing event is bound to quicken the whole intellectual life of our generation. . . . I am especially struck with the delightful literary flavor of many articles on subjects which one expects to find treated in the dust and ashes manner."

"More Than Satisfactory in Every Way"

From Subscriber No. 2160: "The books are more than satisfactory in every way and are a valuable addition to my library. Several of my friends who have seen them are unable to resist and are going to order the work."

"A Treasury of Progress"

From Subscriber No. 108: "The new Encyclopaedia Britannica is a treasury full of a wonderful record of the progress of civilization. Its beautiful volumes of thin paper and flexible covers are admirably adapted for reference and use."

"Models of Fulness and Condensation"

From Subscriber No. 4334: "I must tell you how abundantly I am pleased with these fourteen volumes. I have read several articles or parts of articles and find them models of fulness, or of condensation, as required. . . . Certainly the whole work is a new and wonderful departure in encyclopaedic enterprise."

"Incredibly Light and Thin Volumes"

From Subscriber No. 1641: "Apart from the extraordinary perfection of the literary contents and their arrangement, I am amazed at the beauty and effectiveness of the material features of the India paper edition. It is indeed a pleasure to handle these incredibly light and thin volumes."

"A Readable Encyclopaedia"

From Subscriber No. 902: "I am delighted to be the owner of a readable encyclopaedia."

"Reference Is Now a Pleasure"

From Subscriber No. 3307: "I find it a pleasure to refer to the Encyclopaedia now, where before with the old edition it was a hardship. My hearty congratulations to you for your innovation in style and binding. I am simply delighted with the books, and the subjects, as I have found them, are pleasurable reading because presented and couched in understandable language."

"A Delight to Both Eye and Touch"

From Subscriber No. 114: "I can think of no modern work of such magnitude carried to as great perfection. The flexible cover is a delight to both eye and touch. The little weight of each volume, the delicacy of each page of India paper, all are in extraordinary contrast to the profundity of knowledge contained."

"Far Surpasses All Previous Editions"

From Subscriber No. 39: "We are much pleased with the new volumes; so light and so handy for constant use. . . . This new edition far surpasses all previous ones. . . . The more it is used the better it will be appreciated."

"Most Satisfactory Work I Ever Had"

From Subscriber No. 537: "I count the new edition the most satisfactory reference work I ever had. It is a special pleasure to be able to handle the volumes so easily, and the limp leather binding is a delight. . . . The general standard is unrivalled."

"All I Could Hope For"

From Subscriber No. 4049: "The work is certainly all I could hope for. It is simply wonderful, surpassing anything else in the way of an encyclopaedia in the English language, and I know them all. . . . I like the fulness of your treatment. There are some things which cannot be stated in a brief way."

Special Features of the 11th Edition

(1) The new edition is being published by the Press of the University of Cambridge, England.

(2) It comprises some 40,000 articles, 41,000,000 words, more than 7,000 illustrations, 450 full-page plates, and 417 maps.

(3) Though a lineal descendant of ten editions of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the new work is in no sense a revision of the obsolete text of its predecessor. It has been completely recast and re-written and is an absolutely fresh, authoritative and up-to-date survey and exposition of the whole field of human knowledge.

(4) The plan of the encyclopaedia has been thoroughly reorganized with a view of combining comprehensiveness with brevity, exhaustive treatment of major subjects with the greatest facility of reference in the case of minor subjects.

(5) Something like 15,000 new headings have been added.

(6) The articles have been written by 1,500 contributors—scholars of the highest distinction, and experts and practical men and women whose authority in their special subjects is unimpeachable.

(7) A large and distinguished staff of editors (constituting with the 1,500 contributors a virtual College of Research) has been at work for eight years on the production of the new edition; and the organization and editorial control have all along been so perfect that an unprecedented congruity and coordination have been attained.

(8) Each article is right up to date and all the latest discoveries and results of research have been incorporated.

(9) The whole work has been written simultaneously and is being published practically at one time, not volume by volume as heretofore.

(10) To an extent never before realized the work is cosmopolitan—universal. Each article is the work of a first hand authority, irrespective of whether he happened to live in Great Britain or the United States or France or Germany or Japan or any other civilized country. On the list of contributors are to be found the names of 123 members of the staffs of 39 American Colleges and Universities (besides many names of American practical experts).

(11) The problem of bulk has been happily solved by the issue of an edition on India paper with flexible bindings. In this format the volumes, though containing from 960 to 1064 pages each, are only 1 inch thick. There is also an impression on ordinary book-paper.

Advance-of-Publication Prices Soon To Be Withdrawn

All subscribers who register their application before May 31st will effect a very substantial saving and will acquire the foremost work of reference at a price which has never before been possible.

Vols. I to XIV are now being delivered to early subscribers, and Vols. XV to XXIX will soon be in the binders' hands. Complete publication will therefore shortly be effected, and the "advance-of-publication" terms will be withdrawn on May 31st next.

Illustrated prospectus (40 pp.), 56 specimen pages on India paper, 4 specimen plates, and form of application showing the special advance terms, will be sent on receipt of request.

NOTE.—Those who possess copies of previous editions of the ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA (now out of date) are requested to advise us of the fact, clearly indicating which edition they possess (giving name of publisher and number of volumes), and if they wish to purchase the new edition, they will be informed how they can dispose of their old editions at a fair valuation.

POST OFFICE RAIDS A RAILROAD SCHOOL

Educational Association Officers Held for Using the Mails to Defraud.

WAS MAKING $40,000 A YEAR

Guaranteed to Get Work for Its Graduates, but Failed to Do So, the Inspectors Declare.

George H. Baker, President; Paul J. Gallagher, Secretary, and John A. Jenkins, a Director of the Railway Educational Association, which has elaborate offices in a four-story brownstone house at 27 Monroe Street, Brooklyn, were arrested yesterday on a charge of using the mails to defraud. The complaint was made by Chief Inspector Warren W. Dixon of the Post Office Department, and the raid on its offices was by Postal Inspectors Daniel Parsons and Hugh McQuillan, and Detectives Duane and Seleske.

George H. Baker was arraigned before Judge Chatfield, in the United States Circuit Court, Brooklyn, and pleaded not guilty. He was held in $5,000 bail. The Post Office authorities said that the three men had obtained money by fraudulent pretenses and had maintained offices for short periods in New York, Chicago, Denver, Boston, St. Louis, St. Paul, and other cities.

Advertisements were inserted in the daily newspapers for men 18 to 35 years old to be trained as firemen at $100 a month, and brakemen at $80 a month. No experience was necessary, they said. All the applicants had to do, the circulars said, was to pay $20 for a course by correspondence for the fireman's job, or $15 to become a brakeman. The first were told also that they might become engineers at $200 a month and the latter become conductors, receiving from $130 to $160 a month. A position was guaranteed upon completion of the course, or money would be returned. The association asserted that 400 men were placed monthly with the railway companies.

Chief Inspector Dixon, who had conducted the investigation that led to the arrests, said that out of twelve men sent by the association to the companies ten were rejected because they could not speak English, and of half a dozen others four were sent back on account of physical disability. The worst part of the business, he said, was that poor men paid their money for the course and then had to bear the expenses of going to some distant city to see a railway company, probably to be rejected. Mr. Dixon said that Baker had come to the notice of the railroad companies several years ago by making some valuable suggestions on the economy of fuel.

The Railway Educational Association was organized two years ago in this State with a capital of $100,000, the Directors being John A. Jenkins, Arthur R. Townsend, Bartholomew J. Madden, E. Salley, J. J. Reed, J. M. Lindley, W. T. Egan, and G. G. Patterson. The books and papers seized in the raid filled a big waggon. Judging by the number of letters the plan brought in about $40,000 a year, the first mail yesterday consisting of 540 letters. The Inspectors said they had been after the firm since 1904. The Postal Inspectors hope to make several more arrests.

In a statement issued last night George H. Baker said that among the company's shareholders were the New York Central & Hudson River, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé, Chicago, Indiana & Southern, Minneapolis & St. Louis, and Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroads, and J. P. Morgan & Co.

"The present charge of the Post Office Department," said Mr. Baker, "is based on three complaints from scholars, the details of which are not yet known to me. Possibly one or all of these may be just complaints. I do not know to the contrary. But I do know that every detail of our work is in competent hands, and that our rules and practice are to deal fairly, justly, and liberally with all our scholars. Three complaints are not many from over 3,000 scholars enrolled in the last year; yet they will be investigated and justice done in each case as soon as the misunderstanding can be located.

"A year ago in Washington, before Judge Goodwin, Assistant Attorney General for the Post Office Department, on Feb. 10, our whole work was very thoroughly investigated, every detail of it being discussed; yet after four hours of critical examination I was dismissed without a single feature of our work being criticised."

Dick Brothers Must Answer.

Dick Brothers, the brokers, must submit to an examination before trial about their knowledge of what became of certain securities stolen by Irwin J. Wider, late cashier of the Russo-Chinese Bank. The bank is suing Dick Brothers to recover $326,493, which it alleges Wider deposited with the Dicks as security for speculations. An order for the examination of Dick Brothers was obtained in the Supreme Court, and their appeal from this order was denied yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

DR. JOWETT ADMITTED TO THE PRESBYTERY

After He Affirms His Belief in the Fundamental Principles of the Church.

NOT QUESTIONED IN DETAIL

Ministers Forego a Usual Privilege—His $12,000 a Year Contract with Fifth Avenue Church Ratified.

The Rev. Dr. J. H. Jowett appeared before the Presbytery of New York in the chapel of the Old First Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon to answer constitutional questions of faith, and to be received into the Presbytery preparatory to his formal installation as pastor of the Fifth Avenue Church next Wednesday.

The regular meeting of the Presbytery does not take place until April 10, and this is the first time that a special meeting has been called for the express purpose of receiving a new pastor.

One hundred ministers were present when the Rev. Dr. George Alexander, the Moderator, called for the examination of Dr. Jowett's credentials. The Rev. Dr. Jesse F. Forbes, Secretary, read a letter from Richard J. Wells, Secretary of the Congregational Union of England and Wales. Thereupon Dr. Jowett answered the eight constitutional questions of faith as prescribed by the Church creed, and a formal motion to receive him into the Presbytery followed.

The official call from the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church was read aloud. On Dr. Jowett's announced decision to accept the call it was placed in his hands. This is in the nature of a contract and allows him to remain as the minister of the church as long as the congregation wants him. The salary is fixed at $12,000 annually, payable monthly.

Dr. Jowett made a voluntary expression of faith in the strict-constructionist's interpretation of the creed of the Presbyterian Church. The constitution allows all members of the Presbytery to ask of the pastor under examination questions, as many and as long as they like. But no questions were put to Dr. Jowett.

"I am glad to be here," he said, "and I want to be considered as one of you. I do not intend to propogate new and revolutionary ideas among you, but to work with you, and for you, and with the idea of service uppermost in my mind."

A committee to report on the programme for the installation services next Wednesday in the Fifth Avenue Church was appointed, and Dr. Jowett was made a member of this committee. This will be his first official service to his new parishioners. The letter of credentials submitted by Dr. Jowett follows:

The Congregational Union of England and Wales,
Memorial Hall, Farrington Street,
London, March 4, 1911.

Rev. Dr. Alexander, Moderator of the Presbytery, New York.

My Dear Sir: The Rev. J. H. Jowett, M. A., D. D., late of Carr's Lane, Birmingham, having accepted the call to the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue, New York, may I, on behalf of the Congregational Union of England and Wales, most cordially commend him to your affectionate regard?

Dr. Jowett has received from us the highest honor we can confer, having been called to the Chairmanship of this union during 1906. He is a brother beloved by us all, a leader in the religious life of the nation, honored and esteemed by all sections of the Christian public.

We can do no other than lament his loss, but we pray that in your communion he may be used mightily for the upbuilding of the churches and the wide extension of our Redeemer's kingdom. With fraternal greetings, I remain, yours sincerely,

RICHARD J. WELLS.

At the installation services in the Fifth Avenue Church next Wednesday evening, the Rev. Dr. Francis L. Patton, President of Princeton Seminary, will deliver the charge of the congregation to the new pastor. He will preach his first sermon next Sunday.

Last night the pastor-elect was the guest of the members of the various church boards in the chapel of the Fifth Avenue Church. The meeting was informal, and plans for the furtherance of the departmental work of the church were discussed. After the meeting Dr. Jowett said that he had had one strenuous American day of it and needed rest. Dr. and Mrs. Jowett have made their temporary home at the Hotel Gotham.

Our chefs have made a spaghetti such as never was made before.

It is Italian style, but immeasurably better than Italy ever served.

It has a flavor—a blend—which attracts people instantly. Everyone at your table will say something about it.

The recipe calls for 17 ingredients. Our chefs spent two years in perfecting it.

The recipe itself is a secret, but these are our main materials:

Durum wheat spaghetti.
Herkimer County full cream cheese.
Best creamery butter.
The same expensive tomato sauce we use in Van Camp's Pork & Beans.

The dish comes ready-cooked. You simply heat before serving—or bake it if you prefer.

It costs you less than your cost of making, if you had the recipe.

The only object of our advertising is to ask you to buy one can.

That will open the way to a thousand cans in the future.

It will show you a new way to delight the folks at your table.

Order it now of your grocer.

ARBITRATION PLAN TAKING TREATY FORM

Bryce and Knox Begin Discussion of Scope and Terms of Anglo-American Agreement.

JAPAN ALLIANCE NO BAR

To Provide for Peaceful Settlement of All Disputes, Including Those Affecting the National Honor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—James Bryce, the British Ambassador, and Secretary of State Knox to-day held their first meeting in the preliminary negotiations for the General Arbitration Treaty urged by President Taft, and since strongly advocated by officials of the British Government. Mr. Bryce and Mr. Knox spent an hour discussing general phases of the question and arriving at an understanding as to the broad outlines of the work before them.

In negotiations of the scope and delicacy of those now pending, it is expected that much time will be spent over the phrasing of the document. The present stage is that of surveying the general plan of the instrument, and there is much to be done, because the treaty is a pioneer of its kind. It is said, however, that an effort will be made to have it ready before the adjournment of the extra session of Congress.

As far as the negotiations have proceeded, it has developed that while the treaty will provide for the arbitration of practically all disputes that may arise between the two countries, including matters relating to questions of honor, it will not provide the machinery for the arbitration of each specific controversy. That will be arranged by special agreements under the general treaty in each instance.

A report published here this afternoon that a hitch had arisen in the negotiations because of England's part in the Anglo-Japanese Alliance is absolutely without foundation and was promptly denied both at the State Department and the British Embassy.

Our negotiations with Great Britain and the General Arbitration Treaty which is expected to result from the negotiations lie, it is explained, wholly outside the ...h treaty with Japan. That treaty ...s exclusively to affairs in the Orient, ...d could have no bearing on the proposed treaty between the United States and Great Britain.

GERMANS HOLD ALOOF.

Reichstag Votes Against Action Looking to Limiting Armaments.

BERLIN, March 31.—The Reichstag, by a large majority to-day, rejected the Socialist motion calling upon the Government to take "immediate steps leading to an international agreement concerning universal limitation of armaments and the abolition of the right of capture at sea."

The Reichstag also adopted a resolution calling on the Government to make treaties of arbitration with other nations modeled on the lines of the Anglo-German treaty.

The Liberal press expresses decided disappointment at Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg's speech in the Reichstag yesterday declaring that a conference on limitation of armaments would be fruitless. The Tageblatt regrets the Chancellor's blunt tone in response to the speech of the British Foreign Secretary, Sir Edward Grey, but thinks this was due to his lack of diplomatic skill rather than to conscious opposition. Referring to the Anglo-American arbitration project the same newspaper says that it is not too late for Germany to form the third member of an Anglo-Saxon league.

The Frankfurter Zeitung also regrets Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg's address, saying that it presents an unfavorable contrast with Sir Edward Grey's utterances. It says the speech will be used abroad to throw doubt on Germany's love for peace and to make it appear that Germany is the one power offering the stoutest resistance to the peace idea. The newspaper adds, however, that the time will come when the German Government cannot resist its force.

START ARBITRATION CAMPAIGN.

Discordant Voice Suggests That English Alliance Means German War.

A meeting was held yesterday afternoon at the Press Club, to inaugurate a movement to assemble a "National Council" in this and other American cities to support President Taft in his proposal to make arbitration treaties with Great Britain and other countries. Resolutions were adopted instructing the Chairman, John J. McCook, to appoint a committee of 300, of which he should be one, to "further in every way in their power the ratification by the United States of a treaty with Great Britain, and a similar treaty with other nations agreeing to submit all differences of every nature to arbitration, and to take such steps as will, in their judgment, advance the time when justice will be substituted for force in all relationships between nations."

John Temple Graves, speaking in favor of the resolution, said he believed the world parliament of nations possible, and urged action to hasten the realization of that parliament.

John Devoy, for the United Irish Societies of America, spoke strongly against the passage of the resolution, declaring that it was intended to be a war alliance between Great Britain and the United States.

"The passage of that treaty just now," he declared, "will be a direct provocation of war. Germany will immediately take offense. This proposed treaty means an alliance for war. It will be taken by Germany as a menace to her."

He quoted Earl Grey's speech to prove his contention that the treaty was really intended as a war alliance.

Letters of regret for their inability to be present, but wishing success to the meeting, were received from Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard; John Barrett, Francis Lynde Stetson, and others.

LOWELL ON INQUIRY BOARD.

Will Assist in Determining Dispute Over Magazine Postage.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Announcement was made at the White House to-day that President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University had accepted the place on the Postal Rate Commission offered to him several weeks ago by President Taft. Associate Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court is Chairman, and Lawrence Maxwell of Cincinnati is the other member.

The commission was created just at the close of the last session of Congress. It will investigate the justness of the proposed increase in the second-class postage rates, which was bitterly fought by the popular magazines.

WEST POINT FENCER HURT.

Cadet Anderson Severely Wounded When J. B. B. Parker's Weapon Snaps.

R. E. Anderson of West Point, one of the fencers representing the Army in the intercollegiate fencing tournament, which began at the Hotel Astor last night, was wounded by a broken foil in a bout with J. B. B. Parker of Pennsylvania, and had to retire from the tournament. Anderson's injury is a deep incision under his right armpit, where Parker's broken foil imbedded itself in the flesh.

Anderson was taken to Roosevelt Hospital, where the wound was dressed. It is not believed to be serious, the only danger being blood poisoning. Anderson's place on the West Point team was taken by A. H. Heinmon. Anderson and Parker had fenced two bouts to a tie, and early in the third bout Parker made a lunge at the cadet. The Quaker's foil snapped as it hit Anderson's body, and the broken foil penetrated his armpit. Anderson uttered a cry and his arm fell to his side.

The judges saw the blood on the soldier's white jacket and stopped the bout. Dr. M. J. Echeserria and Dr. Graeme Hammond examined Anderson's wound. The foil made an incision two inches deep. The accident delayed the bouts for only a short time.

Suit Against Brokers Is Upheld.

The Appellate Division overruled yesterday the demurrers of Herzfeld & Stern and Edey, Brown & Sanderson to suits brought by Rothbarth & Co. The Rothbarth firm, which deals in hops in Frankfort, London, and New York, is suing the brokers for money embezzled by Adolph Rothbarth and used by him to speculate with the defendants.

HITCHCOCK REDUCES RAILWAY MAIL CHIEF

Also Orders a Wide Shake-up of High Officers in Seeking Reform in Methods.

MANY DUTIES NEGLECTED

Postmaster General Complains of Lack of Co-operation in Improvements—Machines for Weighing Mail.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Drastic action was taken to-night by Postmaster General Hitchcock in effecting a reorganization of the railway mail service. A round dozen of changes of the most important officers in the service were made by Mr. Hitchcock as a result of a long and careful investigation and thorough consideration.

Theodore Ingalls of Kentucky, Superintendent of the Division of Rural Mails, was appointed General Superintendent of Railway Mail Service at $4,000 a year in succession to Alexander Grant, who was transferred to St. Paul, Minn., as a Division Superintendent at $3,000 a year.

Norman Perkins, Division Superintendent at St. Paul, becomes Superintendent of the Washington division, succeeding Charles W. Vickery, who is appointed Chief Clerk of the Cincinnati division, Vice A. J. Ball, reduced to Railway Postal Clerk.

Clyde M. Reed, Division Superintendent at Cleveland, was appointed Superintendent of the Cincinnati division to succeed Charles Rager, who was reduced to Chief Clerk of the Atlanta division in place of John F. Blodgett, removed.

John C. Koons, Post Office Inspector in the Washington district, was appointed Railway Mail Superintendent in charge of the Cleveland district.

George G. Thomson, formerly Superintendent, Division of Supplies, Post Office Department, and now Inspector in Charge at Austin, Texas, was appointed Superintendent of the Division of Rural Mails in succession to Mr. Ingalls.

Charles B. Anderson, Inspector in Charge at St. Louis, will succeed Mr. Thomson as Inspector in Charge at Austin, and Inspector George Daniel of the New York division was appointed Inspector in Charge at St. Louis.

The affairs of the Railway Mail Service were overhauled thoroughly by Mr. Hitchcock personally, and the outcome is the most sweeping change ever made in the history of the Railway Mail Service.

While signing the necessary orders to-night, Mr. Hitchcock said:

The investigation which we conducted so long and so carefully indicated clearly that the action which I have taken was absolutely necessary. The Railway Mail Service has suffered greatly from poor management and lack of supervision. In certain of the divisions it was found that the chief clerks had not been inspecting their lines as was their duty. Some of the routes had received no inspection for several years. It was found also that in many instances these officers were giving little or no attention to sanitary condition of the railway mail cars, thus disregarding the health and comfort of the employes under them.

The inquiry showed that the business methods of the service in several offices were antiquated, and that as a consequence there was much duplication of work. Instructions from the department directing improvements, as for example the proper consolidation of mail matter and the conservation of equipment, received only perfunctory attention. There has been a lack of co-operation also in carrying into effect certain reforms which I had indicated, and it was made evident by the inquiry that no proper spirit of co-operation with the department existed in the Railway Mail Service. The changes which I have made in the executive management of the service will tend, in my judgment, toward the accomplishment in a satisfactory way of the reforms in methods and practices which we have instituted throughout the Postal Service.

Postmaster General Hitchcock is trying to make use of machines similar to those used in the Census Office to aid in making the computations connected with the weighing of the mails. The task of weighing the mails, which is required by law every four years, is a gigantic one, and the work of classifying and co-ordinating, the results involve so many clerical details and consume so much time that the employment of some means of expediting the work and getting results at an early date are of the greatest importance.

KILLED WITH PRIEST NEAR.

Father Evers Administers Rites to Truckman Crushed in Street.

James Tully, 26 years old, of 94 Sackman Street, Brooklyn, a driver for the Reardon Trucking Company, was driving west through Duane Street yesterday afternoon with a heavy iron pipe on his wagon, when he noticed that one of the rungs had slipped and the pipe was about to roll off. He jumped off and attempted to push the pipe back in place, but it was so heavy it rolled off pinning him under it.

Policeman Redmond of the Traffic Squad attempted to lift the pipe off Tully, but he found the task too heavy, so he called to a number of the ironworkers who were at work on the Municipal Building near by.

Some one in the crowd rushed around to the rectory of St. Andrew's Church and notified Father Luke Evers of the accident. Father Evers reached the scene just as the men had lifted the heavy pipe off Tully. He ordered an ambulance and then knelt down beside the dying man and administered the rites of the Church. When Dr. Wesson of Hudson Street Hospital arrived he said Tully was dead.

WOMAN THIEF SENTENCED.

Plea That Susan Macomber Stole to Support Parents of No Avail.

Susan G. Macomber of East Orange, N. J., formerly a bookkeeper of the John Lane Publishing Company, who confessed on March 11 that she had stolen $18,000 from that concern, was sentenced yesterday by Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions to not less than two years or more than three years and six months in Auburn Prison.

Miss Macomber's lawyer, V. L. Hains, made a strong plea for clemency, laying stress upon the condition of her aged parents and contending that she had stolen solely for the purpose of supporting them. He said she was only making $10 a week and this was insufficient to support both her and her parents.

ASTOR APPRAISER STICKS TO REPORT

Makes a Little Increase of $8,000 in Readjusting Returns the Surrogate Threw Out.

STATE'S ATTORNEY OBJECTS

Testimony Filed Shows That Jewels Were Valued on a Guess and That $1.50 Chairs Might Be Worth More.

James Yereance, Transfer Tax Appraiser, whose resignation took effect yesterday, filed his amended report of the estate of Mrs. Caroline W. Astor a few minutes before the Transfer Tax office closed yesterday afternoon. The new appraisal is only $8,208 more than the appraisal rejected by Surrogate Cohalan last year.

George A. Lavelle, special attorney for the State Controller, glanced at the supplemental report and announced that he would withhold his approval of it and oppose a motion before the Surrogate to confirm it. Surrogate Cohalan had no opportunity to see the new report.

The total value of the property of Mrs. Astor as given in the new appraisal is $1,734,395 as against $1,726,187 in the appraisal rejected by the Surrogate. Appraiser Yereance withdrew the Duveen Brothers' appraisal of bric-à-brac at $17,652 and substituted Gorer's appraisal of $10,512 with a duty charge of $6,832.50, making a total of $17,344.80. The "Don Quixote" tapestry which the rejected appraisal valued at $3,000, is now appraised at $6,000. The contents of the house at 842 Fifth Avenue are now appraised at $25,859.

Appraiser Yereance allows deductions of $95,342 from the taxable total of the estate. These included $30,108 debts due to New York creditors, $14,575 administration expenses, and commission to three executors of $50,658. The report fixes the value of the estate willed to Mrs. Astor's daughters, Charlotte A. Haig and Caroline S. Wilson at $451,137 and $476,664, respectively. The property willed to John Jacob Astor is estimated at $58,000. Mr. Lavelle, as attorney for the State Controller, stated his objection to Appraiser Yereance's exemption from taxation of remainder interests of $292,408 willed to Mrs Haig and $268,097 willed to Mrs. Wilson. In reference to these Appraiser Yereance says:

"Both such remainders being subject to the power of appointment the taxation thereon is necessarily suspended."

Mr. Lavelle says that he is prepared to take this point to the Court of Appeals, because the will of Mrs. Astor specifically limits the disposition of these remainder interests to issue of the two beneficiaries, which distinguishes the case, he contends, from a case in which the beneficiaries have unlimited testamentary power over estates willed to them for life.

Light on the rejected appraisal was shed by the testimony taken by Mr. Lavelle before Mr. Yereance after the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court had unanimously upheld the action of the Surrogate in sending the appraisal back to be amend. This testimony was filed yesterday with the report.

Thomas Hade, a butler, thirty years employed by Mrs. Astor and then by John Jacob Astor, described cut glass in a pantry 12 by 20 feet, which was entirely overlooked in the earlier appraisal. Hade was closely questioned by Mr. Lavelle about the gilt chairs, which had been put down at $1.50 and $1.75 apiece and were said to be fragile. He said that the chairs seemed all right to him. He also said that the carpets and rugs were in better condition than appeared from the first appraisal, which created a stir in New York society, of which Mrs. Astor had been a leader, by declaring that some of the furnishings of the house were little better than junk.

Ten Broeck Morse, the Tiffany diamond expert, who appraised Mrs. Astor's jewelry, was subjected to a strict cross-examination by Mr. Lavelle. This examination revealed that none of the precious stones had been weighed, but the appraisal of the jewels was allowed to stand as in the rejected report by Appraiser Yereance.

Appraiser Yereance refused to strike from the record Morse's statement that he had obtained the weights of some of the jewels from Tiffany's office in Paris.

On the other jewels Morse said he estimated the weights. A crown jewel diamond piece from the French crown jewels was appraised by Morse at $35,000.

"Was this appraisal of $35,000 more than a mere guess?" asked Mr. Lavelle.

"Yes, I merely estimated," said Morse.

Morse declared that he estimated the value of Mrs. Astor's diamonds at about $100 a carat, and said that Tiffany & Co. only charged $20 to $25 for setting a $4,000 stone.

Mr. Lavelle called Morse's attention to the fact that he had described one piece of jewelry which he valued at $51,000 as "a five-strand pearl necklace with ninety imitation pearls."

Morse said the imitation pearls were wax beads. He said their specious character was apparent to "any man who knows the business." He did not detach the pearls from their strands to make his examination, he said, and subjected the imitation pearls to no test. The genuine pearls, he said, were worth from $1.50 to $3.50 a grain, and he had estimated the whole necklace's weight without any weighing.

"Did you weigh any diamonds?" asked Mr. Lavelle, following the query with "Any emeralds?" "Any sapphires?" "Any pearls?" "Any precious stones?" Morse answered "no" to all these questions.

"Then it was purely guess work?" asked Mr. Lavelle.

"Yes, Sir," admitted Morse.

Morse said the settings of the stones were of such slight value that he did not even consider them. He said he had attached no additional value to the French crown jewel piece because of its history.

Hade, the butler, on the stand, denied that there were any wines in Mrs. Astor's cellar at the time of her death. It was her custom, he said, to send out and order such wines as she needed for dinners and entertainments.

In rejecting the first report, Surrogate Cohalan said:

"I decline to sign the order fixing the transfer tax in this proceeding, as, from an examination of the Appraiser's report herein and the proceedings had before him, I am not satisfied that the Transfer Tax Appraiser has given to this proceeding that degree of care and efficiency which a proper regard for the interests of the people of the State of New York demands. I desire to call the attention of the Transfer Tax Appraiser to the particulars in which I believe he has been especially lax."

DOUBTS CALENDAR CAN BE CHANGED

Prof. Jacoby Finds It Would Give Two Eight-Day Weeks and Churches Wouldn't Have It.

COMMANDMENT FORBIDS IT

Otherwise the Professor Thinks Reform in Reckoning the Year Would Be a Good Thing.

Harold Jacoby, Rutherfurd Professor of Astronomy at Columbia University, was asked yesterday to comment on the proposals of the reformers who would revise the calendar so that a given date shall always fall on the same day of the week, as set forth in the London dispatches of Thursday.

"It would be of the greatest convenience in many ways and there is but one objection to the plan. But that objection," he added with a smile, "is a vital one." He explained what he meant later on.

The British Government is taking immediate steps to ascertain the views of the commercial community of the Kingdom on the revision of the calendar, according to the following plan: The first day of the year shall be a bank holiday, called "New Year's Day," which shall not count as a day of the week, of the month or of the quarter. This leaves 364 days for the rest of the year, a number that divides exactly into quarters of ninety-one days each, and into fifty-two weeks of seven days each. Each quarter would be divided into two months of thirty days each, and one month of thirty-one days.

"Of course, if such a system were adopted," Prof. Jacoby said, "a single calendar would serve you for a life-time, and after a few years of practice with it, you would become so accustomed to it, that you would hardly need to refer to the printed form. The day on which the first of each month fell would soon be unconsciously memorized, and a few other dates standing out, such as your birthday and other anniversaries would fix other points in the calendar in your mind, so that you would hardly need a moment's thought to tell on what day the tenth of August would fall or the date, say, of the third Saturday in November. It would always be the same.

"But here is the objection, it seems to me. The first of the year is to be your extra day as you must have if you are to have a year divisible by fifty-two. The plan provides that it shall not count as a day of the week, or of the month or of the quarter, but it is a day, just the same, and it would mean that the Sundays or the Saturdays on either side would be eight days apart. This would involve a violation of the fourth commandment, and you would find the churches against it. As soon as the clergy realizes that such a change would mean such a violation, you will hear their protests."

It was to this passage in Exodus that Prof. Jacoby referred:

Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy.

Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work:

But the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor the stranger that is within thy gates:

For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested on the seventh day: wherefore the Lord blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it.

"This opposition of the churches would be effective," Prof. Jacoby said, "for it would be organized opposition. The Catholic Church is the strongest organization in the world. The Episcopal Church would oppose it and the Methodist. Those of the Jewish faith would oppose it and the Mahommedans would oppose it."

Prof. Jacoby said that there was just one way that the calendar could be altered without bringing up this insuperable difficulty. He suggested making the year 364 days, and letting the surplus accumulate, not indefinitely, for that would derange the seasons, he said, and we would be having Summer in December. Let the accumulated surplus be wiped off at regular periods by inserting an extra week in the year, a sort of leap-year week.

"Of course, there would be some objections there," he said, "It would make a very long year and the man who was paid by the month or the year would probably feel it acutely. Then, too, there would probably be a disposition to make a hullabaloo, holiday of it, and we have too many of those already."

NEW RIVER STEAMER COMING.

Benjamin B. Odell, Which Will Arrive To-morrow, Looks Like an Ocean Liner.

The steamer Benjamin B. Odell, of the Central Hudson Steamboat Company, fresh from the yards of her builders, Harlan & Hollingsworth, Wilmington, Del., will arrive in the harbor to-morrow, and will go into the service between this port and Kingston, N. Y., on April 10, taking the place of the steamer Homer Ramsdell.

The Benjamin B. Odell will leave Wilmington to-day for her trial trip up the Delaware River. She is more like an Atlantic steamship than a river steamer, for her sides flare and there is no overhang and braces, an arrangement which lends strength to her frame and beauty to her general appearance. She is 280 feet long, 50 feet extreme breadth, and has a speed of 18 knots. She will carry 400 tons of freight.

The saloon and upper decks extend the entire length of the vessel. There are 68 staterooms, with ample space for observation. At the after end of the saloon deck is the dining saloon, which will seat 100 persons.

A feature of the new vessel is an observation room on the hurricane deck. There, in comfortable chairs, the passengers may have an unobstructed view of the scenery. The vessel is propelled by triple expansion engines.

LEES GETS ANOTHER OUT.

George Ayres Ordered Released from Matteawan, Asylum Not Opposing.

Norman A. Lees of 131 Douglas Street, Brooklyn, who is devoting much time to getting patients out of the Matteawan State Asylum for the Criminal Insane, obtained yesterday the release of George Ayres.

Lees got a writ of habeas corpus for Ayres a few days ago, and yesterday the matter came up before Supreme Court Justice Aspinall in Brooklyn. The application for the release of Ayres was not opposed by the asylum authorities, and he was ordered freed. Dr. A. T. Baker, the Assistant Superintendent, said that the mental condition of Ayres was such that he was entitled to his liberty.

Ayres, who is a printer, was arrested in Brooklyn six years ago on a technical charge of vagrancy. It was alleged that he had developed religious mania, and he was sent to Matteawan.

Mr. Lees said that there were other inmates of the asylum who should be released and that he would try to get them out through the courts. Lees again denied yesterday that Harry Thaw or any member of the Pittsburg man's family was backing him in his work.

JURIES GOVERN CRIME WAVE.

Judge Malone Says Society Looks to Them for Protection.

When the jury retired in the case of Albert Small, a negro, who was tried before Judge Malone in General Sessions last week for firing five shots at another negro, word was sent back to the court that one of the jurors did not want to convict because none of the shots had taken effect. Judge Malone sent back word that the man was not being tried for assault, but for attempted assault, and that it was not necessary for the shots to take effect. The juror then voted for conviction.

Sentencing Small yesterday Judge Malone said:

"Jurors must perform their duty in order that society may be secure. We are living in an age of civilization in this country. The crime wave is regulated by the conscience and intelligence of the jurors sitting in our criminal courts from day to day. It is as good or as bad as their conscience or intelligence makes it.

"Nothing rests with the court but to pass judgment that will express the reprobation of society at the crime of which the defendant is convicted."

He sentenced Small to not less than two years and six months or more than four years in Sing Sing.

In the past month juries in Judge Malone's court have turned out more than half the cases submitted to them, although in a number of cases the prosecution, and, in some cases, even the lawyers for the defense were sure there would be a conviction. The matter went so far that Assistant District Attorney Moss, in choosing a jury to try a case of assault, asked the talesmen if they had come down just to free prisoners.

DEVLIN FIGHTS WITH AN ATLANTA PLAYER

Giants' Third Baseman Engages in Harmless Fisticuffs with Odell.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 31.—A fist fight to-day again marred the game between the New York Nationals and the Atlanta Southern Leaguers with Odell of Atlanta and Devlin of New York, both third basemen, the participants. The trouble was checked before it reached the proportions of yesterday's fracas. None of the players was any the worse for the scuffle. Merkle later was put out of the game for wrangling. New York won the game 11 to 1, due in great measure to the eight errors of the locals.

The weather was much warmer than yesterday, but poor umpiring turned the game into a farce after the fifth inning. The Giants scored a run in the first inning, Snodgrass making a home run. They scored again in the third on bad playing by Atlanta, and two more in the fourth. Murray and Merkle walked. Bridwell bunted to Pitcher Mayer, who threw wild to first, Murray and Merkle scoring, Bridwell going to third. Devlin grounded out to first and Meyers flied out to short.

In the last half of the fifth inning Umpire Derrick put Merkle out of the game for nagging, McGraw taking his place at first base. From the sixth inning on the game developed into a farce, the Giants showing up the Atlanta Club.

In the last half of the sixth inning, after Odell hit Marquard for a single and Fenlon walked, Umpire Derrick put Marquard out of the game for kicking. Manager McGraw called for Pitcher Shontz, but as Shontz was not warmed up McGraw let him play first base in his place and the manager pitched the balance of the game. Petit hit McGraw's first offering to Doyle, who threw him out to Shontz, Odell scoring the only run Atlanta was able to gather during the game.

In the seventh inning Humphries began to pitch for Atlanta. Devlin singled, Meyers was retired, and Gowdy, batting for Shontz, doubled, scoring Devlin. Gowdy stole third, Devore's grounder was fumbled by Carter, Gowdy scoring and Devore reaching first base. Doyle singled, Devore going to third, and Doyle stole second. Snodgrass walked, filling the bases. Becker, batting and playing for Murray, tripled, scoring Devore, Doyle and Snodgrass. McGraw hit to Sykes, who threw Becker out at the plate. McGraw going to second. He stole third and was out trying to steal home.

The Atlanta fan named Brewster, who caused the fight on Thursday, was one of the most conspicuous fans at the game to-day. He was there with his coaching just as if he had never scrapped with the Giants. The score:

BROOKLYN PLAYERS IN CRASH

Lejeune Hurled Out of an Auto and Slightly Hurt at Knoxville.

Special to The New York Times.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 31.—Manager Dahlen of the Brooklyn Club has lost the services of another player, Sheldon Lejeune, for a time at least. Lejeune, Al Burch, and "Dolly" Stark accepted an invitation from Mr. Sledge, a business man of this city and a friend of Stark's, to accompany him on an automobile ride through the suburbs this afternoon. Five minutes after the car left the hotel in attempting to avoid running into a carriage at Fifth Avenue and Morgan Street it collided with a street car. Lejeune, who was sitting on the right-hand side in a rear seat, was thrown out on his face on the asphalt pavement. He was carried into a nearby residence. Mr. Sledge, owner of the machine, finally extricated himself and summoned two physicians. After a short consultation it was decided to remove Lejeune to the General Hospital.

After being examined by the hospital physicians a statement was issued that Lejeune had no internal injuries and that no bones were broken. His knee, which he had hurt in practice at Hot Springs, was badly bruised, and he suffered cuts on the forehead. The physicians said to-night that the player would be confined to the institution for a week or ten days. Burch and Stark were shaken up, but escaped without any wound. Mr. Sledge has offered to pay all of Lejeune's expenses while in the hospital.

Snow fell this morning and Manager Dahlen decided not to let his charges play the University of Tennessee team.

Umpire Kelly May Lose $232 Back Pay

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 31.—On the ground that it is not clear as to its jurisdiction, the National Baseball Commission to-day dismissed the claim of Umpire J. J. Kelly for $232, which he contended was withheld from him by the New York State League for a period when he was disabled last season. Kelly said that he was injured while umpiring a championship game, and that the league refused to pay him for the time he was off duty.

The commission in its finding held that if the complainant were a ball player the full amount of his claim would be awarded, but that there is a wide difference in the status of a ball player and an umpire under the rules of organized baseball, and the commission was not sure of its jurisdiction over the contention. The supreme court of baseball, however, recommended that the New York League settle with Kelly for the full term of his disability.

George Stone Goes to Milwaukee Club.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 31.—Owner Charles S. Havener of the Milwaukee American Association Baseball Club this afternoon announced the signing of Outfielder George Stone, former leading batsman of the American League.

Two Pirates Sold to Kansas City.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 31.—Manager Daniel Shay of the Kansas City American Association team to-day purchased "Red" Corriden, short stop, and "Pat" O'Connor, catcher, from the Pittsburg National League team. Shay is said to have paid $6,000 for the men.

Three-I League Meeting Ends in Row.

CHICAGO, March 31.—The schedule meeting of the Three I. League, held here to-day to finally settle the differences between the northern and southern factions of the league, broke up in a disagreement. The ten-club league proposal of the southern clubs was the rock on which the split was started. The whole case probably will go to the National Commission for final adjustment. When William Ewald of the Waterloo Club presented resolutions asking for President Tearney's resignation as leader of the league, Tearney became infuriated and denounced Ewald as a "blackguard," unfit for presence at the meeting. Ewald attempted to leave the room, when Tearney threatened to settle their differences with their fists.

Joe Wood Strikes Out 15 Batsmen.

Fort Worth Texas, March 31.—Joe Wood of the Boston American baseball team struck out fifteen men of the Fort Worth (Texas) League team this afternoon, and Boston won, 4 to 2.

YANKEES ROLL UP 10 RUNS.

Nashville Unable to Score on Quinn's and Caldwell's Pitching.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 31.—The New York Americans completed their Southern jaunt this afternoon by rolling up ten runs and shutting out the Nashville team. The weather was still a trifle frigid, but an improvement over the conditions in Chattanooga yesterday. There was no wind to-day, which was some relief.

The Yankees had a new batting order, Hartzell being moved up to fourth place and Knight dropping to fifth place. The idea is to see if Hartzell won't work better with Chase on the bases than Knight has been doing. The combination this afternoon proved proficient in the runmaking line.

For three innings the New Yorks dwindled away before Viebahn's pitching, then fell on him hard in the fourth inning. They peppered the ball for a few singles and three runs, and after that the runs came too easily to make the game good practice.

The New Yorks left after the game for Cincinnati, and look for much harder battles from now on. They found their batting eyes to-day, after a two days' slump, and if they can show more organization in making their plays will have a chance against Clark Griffith's Reds. The score:

Manhattan, 9; Dickinson, 5.

The Manhattan College baseball team defeated the Dickinson College nine yesterday afternoon by the score of 9 to 5 in the opening game on its home grounds at Olympic Field. The hitting on both sides was heavy, Dickinson using three pitchers and Manhattan two. Stine, for the visitors, was driven from the box in the opening session, after passing two men and allowing two hits. In the sixth inning Thompson for Manhattan was displaced by Hanley. Cotter and Donohue were effective both at bat and in the field, sharing twenty-four chances without an error and securing six hits out of nine times up. Henderson and Cotter played good ball for the visitors. The green and white boys showed a great improvement since the Army game, justifying the changes made by Coach Duff. The score:

St. John's Defeats Bowdoin, 13 to 5.

St. John's College of Brooklyn successfully opened its baseball season yesterday on its home grounds with a one-sided victory over Bowdoin College of Brunswick, Me., by the score of 13 to 5. Most of the players complained of the cold and were unable to do their best work. At the start of the game it looked very much as though the Maine nine would win easily, for after allowing two runs, which were made in the opening inning, the Brooklyn team failed to score again until the sixth inning, while the visitors went along in good style, getting a tally in the first five sessions, when the score stood 5 to 2 in their favor. At this stage of the game the tide changed, and the Brooklynites began a rally by batting Grant, who had held them safe after relieving Woodcock in the third inning, and was hit hard and often, allowing seven of the St. John's team to cross the plate, while his own side failed to score from this point until the close. Quigley, who did the slab work for the Brooklyn nine, and is one of the latest arrivals at the college, having played with the team of Erasmus Hall High School last season, showed good form and was largely responsible for the victory, despite the fact that he was hit safely twelve times, but the hits were scattered and did no material harm. The score by innings:

Columbia and Rutgers on South Field.

Columbia will play Rutgers on the South Field diamond this afternoon. Both nines have made a good showing in their preliminary contests, and during the past week have been training industriously in order to smooth off some of the rough spots evident in the initial games. Last year the game between the New Brunswick lads and the Morningside Heights teams took place on the Rutgers field, and if there is any advantage the local team will have it in playing on the home diamond.

GOLF SURPRISES IN SOUTH.

Amateur Champion Fownes and Walter Travis Beaten at Pinehurst.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 31.—To-day's first and second match play rounds in the eleventh annual united North and South amateur golf championship were a series of startling surprises and as a result Charles Evans, Jr., of Edgewater and Robert Hunter of Wee Burn meet in to-morrow's thirty-six hole final for the championship. The sensation of the day was the defeat of William C. Fownes, Jr., the National amateur champion, by his father, Henry C. Fownes, the crisis coming in the missing of an easy putt on the home green.

Next in importance was the afternoon match between Mr. Hunter and Parker Whittemore of Brookline, which a halved hole on the eighteenth green won for Mr. Hunter.

In the morning Mr. Hunter defeated Allan Lard of Chevy Chase, twice united champion, four and two to play.

Evans's victories were from W. R. Simons of Garden City, three and two, and Henry C. Fownes, six and four. The summary:

Championship.—Second Round—Robert Hunter, Weeburn, beat Allan Lard, Chevy Chase, 4 and 2; W. Whittemore, Brookline, beat L. D. Pierce, Braeburn, 4 and 3; Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater, beat W. R. Simons, Garden City, 3 and 2; H. C. Fownes, Oakmont, beat W. C. Fownes, Oakmont, 1 up, (21 holes.)

Semi-Final—Hunter beat Whittemore, 1 up; Evans beat Fownes, 6 and 4.

Consolation.—First Round—J. B. Foot, Apawamis, beat J. B. Kennedy, Mahoning, 5 and 4; W. E. Truesdell, Brooklyn, beat N. S. Hurd, Oakmont, 3 and 2; R. H. Gwaltney, Wilmington, beat Walter J. Travis, Garden City, 1 up; J. E. Smith, Wilmington, beat J. S. Robeson, Oakhill, by default.

Semi-Final—Foot beat Truesdell, 9 and 7; Gwaltney beat Smith by default.

THREE WORLD AUTO MARKS FOR DISBROW

Wins 300-Mile Race in 3:53:33½ —Records at 200 and 250 Miles in Same Event.

PABLO BEACH, Fla., March 31.—Louis Disbrow, driving a Pope-Hartford car, to-day established three world's records. In the 300-mile race Disbrow made the first fifty miles in 37:23.90. The former record for the distance was 38:51, held by Fletcher and made with a De Dietrich machine at Daytona, Fla., Jan. 31, 1905. Disbrow's time for 200 miles was 2 hours 34 minutes 12 seconds, establishing a new high mark for the distance at straight-away racing. The record smashed was that made by Dohymely in a Stoddard-Dayton, 3 hours 2 minutes 22 seconds, at Galveston, Aug. 5, 1910. Disbrow covered 250 miles in 3 hours 14 minutes 55 seconds. As no time for this distance straightaway has been recorded, this is also a world's record.

Only one event was decided, the remaining races being declared off. Disbrow won the 300-mile race, with Merz, in a National, second, nearly 22 minutes behind. Disbrow led from start to finish, and was never closely pressed throughout the contest. At the end of the first fifty miles Disbrow led Wilcox (National) by 26 seconds. In the next twenty miles the Pope-Hartford driver opened up a big gap, with Wilcox still holding second position.

Disbrow continued his record-breaking pace, and at the end of 100 miles had increased his lead to over ten minutes. At this stage of the race it was apparent that, barring accidents, Disbrow would be returned the winner. There was no change in the positions of the leaders as the miles were reeled off, Disbrow and Wilcox holding premier positions.

Approaching the second hundred miles Wilcox had considerable trouble, and his teammate, Merz, passed him. Hughes, in a Mercer, and Strang, driving a Case car, continued in the race, but the Cole and Marquette-Buick dropped out. As Disbrow flashed past the 250-mile mark, creating a new world's record, Merz was but three minutes behind him, while the other drivers were closing up.

The final fifty miles found Disbrow drawing away at every mile. Strang met with several mishaps and was out of the contest. Disbrow finished practically alone, with Merz (National) and Hughes (Mercer) second and third, respectively. The summary:

300 Miles.—Won by Disbrow, (Pope-Hartford;) Merz, (National,) second; Hughes, (Mercer,) third. Time—3:58:33¼.

SANCTIONS GLIDDEN TOUR.

Contest Board Announces National Reciprocity Auto Run for June 19.

After considerable delay the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association has officially announced the date and conditions for the National reliability tour, known as the Glidden reciprocity tour. Although the conditions were generally understood by the automobile world, it was not until yesterday that the contest board passed upon them.

The date of the start of the 1911 tour was officially fixed for Monday, June 19, from the National Capitol, Washington, D. C., with the finish at Ottawa, the capital of the Dominion of Canada, June 26, with one day to be devoted to a hill-climbing contest en route. The performance of the cars in the hill climb will be an important factor in determining the final awards.

Leaving Washington, the tour will be through Baltimore, Wilmington, Del.; Chester, Philadelphia, Camden, Atlantic City, Lakewood, New York City, New Haven, Conn.; Providence, Boston, through the White Mountains, Vermont, across the border to Montreal, and thence to Ottowa. The approximate distance is 1,090 miles.

David Beecroft of Chicago has been appointed referee, and F. E. Edwards, Chairman of the American Automobile Association Technical Committee, will have charge of the technical work. The path finding and pilot work will be done by the Touring Information Bureau of the American Automobile Association, while the business management of the tour will be conducted by the Contest Board.

Although the official announcement of the date and territory to be covered has been made, it will require some time to complete the conditions, rules, and regulations, and issue entry blanks. Chairman Butler of the Contest Board expects to have all the details arranged early next week in order to give prospective entrants plenty of time to make their entries.

The meeting, which was held at the A. A. A. offices, 437 Fifth Avenue, was attended by S. M. Butler, Chairman of the Contest Board; H. W. Knight, P. D. Folwell, William Schimpf, J. H. Wood, Alfred A. Reeves, and S. A. Miles, the two last named being members of the Advisory Committee.

Betting In Florida Not Prohibited.

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 31.—The threatened legal interference with the Pensacola race meet by the Commercial Association did not materialize to-day, the County Solicitor having declared that bookmaking in this State is not prohibited by law. The anti-betting statute will not go into effect until May 1, and, as the track meet scheduled to begin to-day is for fifteen days only, no interference is expected. Owners of racing stables re-entered their horses in to-day's card.

Booking and betting will be confined to the race track inclosure. The Pensacola Commercial Association announced to-day that no further effort to interfere with the meet would be made, but that court action would be taken against the promoters if the law was violated in any way.

Tampa Race Track Plant Burned.

TAMPA, Fla., March 31.—Fire completely destroyed the grandstand and sheds at the West Tampa race track last night. That the fire was of incendiary origin is believed by the State Fair officials. The plant was insured for about half its value. The loss will approximate $50,000.

Widener's Truckee First in Race.

PARIS, March 31.—The Prix du Pays Dauge, run at Enghien to-day, was won by J. E. Widener's Tuckee. In the Prix de la Hague Eugene Fishof's Ripe Feu finished second.

Bronx Catholic Club Wins a Title.

In a basket ball game held in the Old Second Battery Armory of Tremont last night the Bronx Catholic Club basket ball team defeated the Fordham Catholic Club quintet by the score of 38 to 16. This is the last game of a three-game series between these clubs to decide the championship of the Catholic clubs in the Bronx. Last night's victory makes the third straight game the Bronx Catholic Club team has won from the Fordham Club, thereby winning the championship.

HARVARD ATHLETIC NEWS.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—In spite of the dissatisfaction because of the small attendance of their Spring football squad, Head Coach Haughton and Capt. Fisher of the 'Varsity eleven will not discontinue the interseason work on Soldiers Field. A day or two ago the Captain and coach stated in The Harvard Crimson that unless more players came out the Spring work would cease. The squad has not materially increased in size, and the football management now is backing water, acknowledging that the threat to stop practice was just a little bluff aimed to stir up the football players. Work will continue on Soldiers Field for two weeks more, and Monday probably real football play will begin. So far the men have only been getting into physical trim by playing soccer. However, there is sure to be an increase in the number of players out next week, and one of the new men will be Minot, a two-year 'Varsity player, who has just stopped playing baseball. It is expected that Minot will be eligible next fall.

The Harvard rowing men had their plans upset again to-day when it was learned that Newton, who has been rowing No. 4 in the 'Varsity shell, has German measles, and will be out of the boat for some time. Balch also is not rowing, but nothing more serious than an ulcerated tooth is the matter with him. During Newton's absence Stratton will be brought up to the 'Varsity from the second shell. Stratton rowed in Lothrop Withington's place during the latter's indisposition. Before Newton was taken sick the Harvard shell was moving through the water splendidly, and in many respects was showing form even better than that of the 1910 crew at this time last year.

To-morrow the Harvard soccer team will play Columbia on Soldiers Field. Although the Crimson showed vast improvement in last week's game against Pennsylvania, it is realized that to-morrow's match against the college champions will be the hardest of the year.

FENCERS IN CLOSE MATCHES.

Cornell, Army and Navy Teams Leading in Intercollegiate Tourney.

The fencers of Cornell, the army and the navy were in close competition at the eighth annual tournament of the Intercollegiate Fencing Association, which began in the Belvedere of the Hotel Astor last night. At midnight Cornell and the Army were tied with 14 bouts each, and the Navy was next, with 11 bouts.

The tournament is one of the most closely contested in years, and will be continued to-morrow afternoon and evening.

The six teams—West Point, Annapolis, Columbia, Harvard, Pennsylvania, and Cornell—are fencing a round robin series, which will include over 150 bouts. Heretofore three of the teams have been eliminated and the other three have fenced for the honors, but an innovation was introduced this year of having the six teams compete to the end.

The individual honors were in doubt after the first round, D. G. Roos of Cornell and M. W. Lorimer of the Navy being tied, with six victories and no defeats. W. H. Wilbur and H. M. Rayner of the Army each had five victories and one defeat.

One of the most thrilling bouts of the evening was between John Northrop of Columbia and N. Scott of the Navy. The two fenced three bouts to a tie, and in the fourth encounter the skill and cleverness of the midshipman counted over the Columbia man.

The Columbia fencers were at the foot of the list last night, with five victories to their credit. Harvard and Pennsylvania were tied with six each. Although Annapolis was a few bouts behind last night, it is believed that the midshipmen will be a close contender for the title which they captured last year. Cornell showed up surprisingly strong, Roos displaying the best form of any of the fencers. Wendell of Pennsylvania, who won the individual honors last year, is not a competitor this year, and it is believed that this honor will be won either by Roos of Cornell or Lorimer of the Navy. The teams are as follows:

West Point—R. E. Anderson, W. H. Wilbur, H. M. Rayner, and A. H. Hinemon.

Cornell—P. W. Allison, D. Espindola, and D. G. Roos.

Columbia—Charles E. Dwyer, A. N. Clough, and John H. Northrop.

Annapolis—N. Scott, M. W. Lorimer, and F. S. Hatch.

Harvard—W. Hunt, G. B. Wilbur, and J. A. McLoughlin.

Pennsylvania—H. Dalsheimer, W. A. Peterson, and J. B. B. Parker.

The summaries:

P. W. Allison, Cornell, defeated C. E. Dwyer, Columbia; D. Espindola, Cornell, defeated A. N. Clough, Columbia; D. E. Roos, Cornell, defeated J. H. Northrop, Columbia.

W. Hunt, Harvard, defeated N. Scott, Annapolis; M. W. Lorimer, Annapolis, defeated S. B. Wilbur, Harvard; F. S. Hatch, Annapolis, defeated J. A. McLoughlin, Harvard.

OXFORD CREW FAVORITE.

Betting in London Indicates Defeat of Cambridge Oarsmen on Putney Course.

LONDON, March 31.—The Oxford and Cambridge crews had their final practice this evening prior to to-morrow's university race over the Putney course. The work was very light, consisting only of a few sprints.

To-night the betting is 5 to 2 in favor of Oxford, and the betting is usually right on the intervarsity boat race. Cambridge, however, has plenty of admirers, and is expected to lead at the start, though the heavier Oxonians are counted upon to show better finishing power. The race is scheduled to start at 2:20 o'clock.

McLaughlin's Point Trophy.

The events were decided over a track twenty laps to the mile. The summary:

One-Mile Run.—Won by R. Springsteen, Yonkers Y. M. C. A.; A. Lawrence, Stevens Institute, second; H. Rust, Mott Haven A. C., third. Time—5:17 3-5.

ACADEMY OF DESIGN PLANS HOME FOR ART

SETS ASIDE $200,000 FUND

In Return It Wants Nine of 25 Trustees, Five of Whom Are to be Laymen, Including the Mayor.

A plan for the erection of a large building to be devoted to the advancement of fine arts was outlined last evening at a meeting of the National Academy of Design in its building at Amsterdam Avenue and 109th Street. The Academy voted unanimously to submit its plan to the American Water Color Society, New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, Architectural League of New York, New York Water Color Club, National Sculpture Society, Society of Beaux Arts Architects, Mural Painters, and Society of Illustrators.

Should the plan be approved by these societies, it is planned to form a National Academy Association which shall have control of the building which it is proposed to erect. In the event of the formation of such an association, the Academy of Design voted to set aside $200,000, the interest to be applied to the maintenance of the building. Also it was agreed to pay $4,000 a year rent for 8,000 square feet of its floor space, with the option of taking 16,000 square feet at double that rental.

In return for this gift, which involves the abandonment of its plans for a separate building, the Academy asks that on the Board of Trustees of the proposed National Academy Association it shall have a representation of nine out of twenty-five members, five of whom shall be laymen not representing any of the constituent organizations.

The five lay members, it is proposed, shall be the Mayor, Borough President of Manhattan, and one each representing the New York Chamber of Commerce, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and the New York Public Library.

No site was considered at the meeting last night. An area of at least 50,000 square feet, embracing not less than twenty city lots, is mentioned in the plan adopted. The text of the proposed mutual agreement provides:

That a corporation be formed to be named The National Academy Association, hereinafter called the association, for the purpose of encouraging and developing the study of and interest in the fine arts in the community and of advancing the general knowledge thereof, and to that end of establishing and maintaining in the City of New York a building provided with galleries, exhibition spaces, lecture rooms, and accommodations for organizations devoted to work in the various departments of the fine arts; said association to have power to make and adopt its own constitution and by-laws; and to have power to take and hold by gift, devise, bequest, purchase or lease, either absolutely or in trust, the real and personal property necessary for the purposes of its incorporation; said constitution to provide that no officer, member or employe is to receive or be entitled to receive any pecuniary profit, except reasonable compensation for services in effecting or carrying out the purposes of the association.

Application to be made by the incorporaters or officers thereof to the Legislature of the State of New York for a charter, granting it the necessary powers and the same freedom from taxation as has heretofore been granted by special acts of said Legislature to the National Academy of Design, the American Fine Arts Society, and other similar organizations.

The said association shall be granted by the parties hereto full power to solicit and receive gifts for the purchase or lease of land and the erection thereon of a building worthy of the city and of the organizations herein brought together, and shall command the assistance and good will of all the parties hereto, and shall have full authority to appear before the community as their representative. And the said association shall have power to establish a gift fund or funds to be held by it in its treasury or to be trusteed in its discretion, and to nominate trustees to hold the same and to apply said gift fund or funds in payment for land, building, or other property necessary for the purposes of its incorporation.

It is the expressed hope of the parties hereto that a building may be obtained sufficiently large to accommodate a single annual exhibition covering all branches of the arts of design. If this result is obtained and such universal exhibitions are determined upon, then, in regard to the principles which shall govern in the assignment of exhibition space to the parties hereto, it is agreed that all exhibition space shall be assigned by the association, and that allotment of space shall be at least twice that now used and paid for by each organization; all exhibition space shall be free of rent to the parties hereto, but in lieu thereof all admission receipts shall belong to the said association, and the expenses of hanging and arranging exhibits shall be borne by the parties making such exhibits.

The agreement provides that of the nine representatives of the Academy of Design on the Board of Trustees six shall be painters, two sculptors, and one an architect. Two representatives each are allotted to the Architectural League and the National Sculpture Society, and one each to the other organizations. This makes the board consist of six painters, five architects, four sculptors, two water colorists, five laymen, one illustrator, one mural painter, and one municipal art specialist.

STORY TELLING AS AN ART
The influence of the story in the home, in the school, on the playground, in the social circle, is great. By means of the story of the right kind, told in the right way, seeds are sown that grow into right thinking and right living—that make for good citizenship and lead toward perfection in the individual, and through him, in the State.
Richard T. Wyche, President of the National Story Tellers League of America, in Some Great Stories and How to Tell Them tells of the development of story telling as an art, tells what manner of story to tell, tells how to tell it and then tells some stories himself—his versions of famous old stories.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

MR. THOMAS A. JANVIER, who is at present in the West Indies, writes thus of the Mexican legends which he started collecting twenty-five years ago, and recently published in book form: "These legends are genuine folk-stories. Each one has grown from some obscure, curious or tragical ancient matter that, taking hold of the popular imagination, has had built up from it among the people a story satisfying to the popular heart."

MRS. CARRIE ADELL STRAHORN, in her forthcoming "Fifteen Thousand Miles by Stage," tells of her experiences as an Illinois bride on her honeymoon in the far West, thirty-three years ago. At the opening of the story her husband, Mr. Robert E. Strahorn, now President of one of the Harriman railroads, was a war correspondent, fresh from two years' campaigning with Gen. Crook.

SIR A. T. QUILLER-COUCH has lived for the last thirteen years at The Haven, Fowey, where he is close to the sea. His morning, which begins early, is given to work; the afternoon is often spent on the river. He is a cricketer and fond of most outdoor games. Fowey is the town that "Q" has so often celebrated under the name of Troy. Not long ago he was presenting certificates to members of an ambulance class. "Years ago," he said, "an old Cornish fisherman at a similar class was asked how he would treat the apparently drowned. 'Well,' he replied, 'the first thing we always did was to empty the man's pockets.'"

DR. SCOTT NEARING, author of "Social Adjustment," in a recent lecture to women before the Plastic Club of Philadelphia, asked:

What are you going to do with the boundless leisure you have now and the added leisure that may come with votes? You must either continue to use it for selfish ends, as you do now, or turn your attention to some useful trade. Why, from thirty to sixty per cent. of your time is taken up in personal adornment, fixing your hair, etc. As it is now, man is the producer, woman a non-producer; man bears the burden, woman gets the fun.

"SIR JACK LONDON" is the way a California paper thinks the author of "Adventure" would be designated, "because of the excellence of his interpretative work," if he were a British subject. In spite of numerous rumors to the contrary, the nearest Mr. London has been to Mexico during the present uprising is Los Angeles. Instead of being in jail, he has been living his usual life in Sonoma Valley.

MR. VAUGHAN KESTER seems to have little use for ordinary houses. He began his literary work in the "Big White House," as it was called, in Riverside Drive, New York. His second book was written in Woodlawn Mansion, a part of the Mount Vernon estate bequeathed by Washington to Nellie Custis. Thence he moved to Angill Castle, England, and is now settled at Gunston Hall, Virginia, where "The Prodigal Judge" was written.

MR. MARK LEE LUTHER says that the idea for his forthcoming novel, "The Sovereign Power," came to him in 1909, at Rheims, where he was a spectator of the first aviation meet. He was struck by the profound contrast between the event and its setting—flying-machines in the city where Jeanne d'Arc crowned her unworthy king. From this impression grew his story of the present warring unceasingly with the past.

AS AN instance of the interest taken in Australia in American-made books, Messrs. A. C. McClurg & Co. have just made shipment to Melbourne of about 3,000 volumes. Of course, fiction predominates, but in this particular shipment were fifty copies of Joseph Mills Hanson's "Frontier Ballads," and other miscellaneous titles.

MR. JOHN LANE has just issued in England "The Speakers of the House of Commons from the Earliest Times to the Present Day," with a topographical account of Westminster at various epochs.

MR. WINSTON CHURCHILL is engaged on a new novel, entitled "The Greatest of These," which will be published in the autumn.

MR. ERNEST INGERSOLL, author of "The Life of Mammals," etc., is assisting in the revision of the Standard Dictionary.

"CHURCHES IN LOWER NUBIA"

PERSONS interested in recent excavations in Nubia will find much material in three volumes recently published by the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania. They deal with the remains of "Churches in Lower Nubia"—a contribution to a branch of Byzantine architecture, which is found in its highest development in Asia Minor and Europe, and with finds made in a Romano-Nubian cemetery at Karanog. The works enter into great detail, and are fully illustrated, largely in color. (University of Pennsylvania Museum.)

HARPERS BOOKS

Keeping Up With Lizzie
By Irving Bacheller

"The trouble," says the Honorable Socrates Potter, who tells the story, "began when Samuel Henshaw, grocer, started to make a queen of his daughter Lizzie." The pace set by her corrupted the simplicity of the little Connecticut town, and the new houses, "with towers on them," the automobiles, university tuition, and foreign tours jeopardized the financial stability of the community. The story is a shrewd commentary on American life, and it has both humor and humanity.

The Unknown Lady
By Justus Miles Forman

Suppose you had something of very great and unusual value, something you believed in with all your heart—and you wanted to tell other people about it—what would you say? Remember, all the describing adjectives have been used; they are old and worn smooth with lip service. It isn't easy, is it? That is the situation one finds oneself in in trying to talk about "The Unknown Lady"—a novel which Justus Miles Forman has just written. It doesn't make any difference what kind of a plot it has—the story itself is there, very great and unusual value, palpitating—warm with life, vigorous with feeling, appealing with gracious manner and enticing charm of style.

The Married Miss Worth
By Louise Closser Hale

The comedy of an all-night rehearsal, the pathos of the never-ending one-night stands, the domestic side of life behind the scenes—all are here in this remarkable novel by the author of "The Actress." The real—not the fiction—stage life is seen through the sympathetic eyes of a successful actress—who can tell what she sees. It is the heart story of stage folk—a story and not a sermon.

The Skipper and the Skipped
By Holman Day

Full of humor, with the tang of the brine along Cap'n Sproul's native Maine coast. Cap'n Sproul, the author's famous character, has new adventures that turn the town topsy-turvy. Pitted against the local tyrant, the Cap'n is often in desperate straits, but his wit and ingenuity are more than a match for every situation. "A lot of meditation and a little prayer will do wonders in this world, especially when you're mad enough," is Cap'n Sproul's philosophy.

Glamourie
By William Samuel Johnson

A story that will intrigue the reader instantly—a startling and a fine thing this, that Mr. Johnson, a new writer, has done. Nothing less than imprisoning the soul of a city between the covers of a romance. Here in a neutral city — Paris — an Irishman and an American, friends and gentlemen both, contend for the love of Golden Burke, a heroine of most unusual fibre and appeal. "Glamourie" is a novel for connoisseurs in its genuinely fine writing—and a story for the man in the street because of its romantic appeal.

Invite your thoughtful consideration of a book both serious and brilliant—a story from the German of Rudolph Hans Bartsch

ELISABETH KOETT

Cleveland Palmer, in a two-page review in The Bookman, says:

It is a serious book, and, in its picturesquely imaginative and emotional style of expression, often arresting if not actually beautiful. Moreover, it not merely interprets modern life, but seeks to interpret the literature of the past in its spirit. The pages in which Macbeth is subjected to this process are singularly searching and creative. One wonders if this was the spirit in which Macbeth was performed at St. Wandrille. It is certainly the one spirit in which any kinship between the romanticism of Shakespeare and the romanticism of Maeterlinck is revealed.

It is, however, a brilliant bit of writing, and will help the reader to gain a broader view of modern life by revealing to him how general are many of those problems that are apt to be regarded as local and particular. Whatever differences in cultivation may exist between the two cities, Vienna and New York are the same in their fundamental social mechanism, as may be seen by the comment on the theatrical situation in the former capital.

Chicago Tribune says:

The manner in which the power of this destructive and wonderful woman was developed is extraordinarily well done. One man fed her intellect, another her heart, one taught her elegance, another beautiful speech, one inculcated in her a knowledge of Vienna, another a knowledge of Paris. She learned insolence, repartee, condescension, estheticism; learned how to dress, walk, sit, ride, drive, motor. She became the most finished machine for mental, moral and physical destruction which could be devised, and her tutors had commingled delight and agony in the process of teaching her. That she redeems herself by her service to beauty, the author appears to believe, and all of the Nietzschean school will agree with him.

A TRULY GREAT STORY

"The Price of the Prairie"

By MARGARET HILL McCARTER

Published in October, one edition after another has been called for, the ninth having just come off the press. During the second week in December over five hundred copies a day were shipped out on telegraph and mail orders, and one Western dealer has sold over 7,500 copies. The Kansas City Star calls it "The book that promises to become a 'best seller,'" a distinction it has already attained so far as Kansas is concerned.

WHAT SOME OF THE PAPERS HAVE SAID

From The Living Age, Boston, Mass.: "Kansas before the Civil War was a household word in the East. Kansas after the war is comparatively unknown. Yet, because an infinity of gossamer threads, kindred blood, the baptism of fire, the common heritage of poetry and song, and of beloved great names, knits a silver cocoon about the whole sisterhood of States, almost every reading man or woman to whom comes 'The Price of the Prairie' will find a tender memory arousing in his heart as he reads."

From the New York Sun: "In its first three weeks' run in Kansas it broke all records of Kansas books, not excluding William Allen White's 'A Certain Rich Man.'"

From the Detroit News: "A thrilling, fascinating story of life on the prairie of Kansas, 'The Price of the Prairie' is a splendid novel and well worth reading."

From the Argonaut, San Francisco: "Not often has the winning of the prairies inspired a more tenderly eloquent and moving story than this. Its pages are redolent of the sweet air and the wide landscapes of Kansas. The pictures come and go of idyllic childhood, of growing love, of the Indian danger, of jealousy, of massacre, and the slow movement toward the settled life of the plains. It is all a singularly winning and poignant record."

From Walt Mason in Emporia Gazette: "In her splendid books Mrs. McCarter has made her fame secure, and given to the world a Kansas book that will live."

From the Boston Herald: "The story is exceptionally well told, the characters lifelike. Nothing could be truer to human nature than the portrayal of this love story of the prairie. The book is an interpretation of large scenes of life, marriage, war, and death."

This is the story for the long evening, the story that once started you will find it hard to put by, the story you can read aloud to your boys and girls. You will find yourself living the life of the little group peopling its pages—the brave, manly Phil Baronet, the gentle Marjory Whately, the cheery Irish lad "O'mie" who killed "Injuns" "fur grandeur," dear "Aunt Candace," the noble-hearted Judge Baronet, the brave French priest LeClaire; you will breathe the tradition of Springvale on the old Sante Fe Trail and bask in the paradise of the Neosho Valley; you will feel the ever-present terror of the Indian, the sickening dread of massacre and torture, and you will thrill with the heroism of Custer and Forsythe and the Seventh Cavalry, of Moore and the Nineteenth Kansas, of Carpenter and his colored cavalrymen.

Robert Kimberley

By

Frank H. Spearman

Characterized by Strong Reviews.

The Chicago Record-Herald says: "Mr. Spearman has made an absorbing novel and filled it with men and women thoroughly alive and real."

The Chicago Inter Ocean says: "Few men—even among the masters—have succeeded in the drawing of a pure and high-minded woman who is not a mere abstraction or a bit of tinted ice. Mr. Spearman has succeeded, for his Alice is convincingly alive."

The Bookman says: "Many another novelist has shown us how a strong man may take a woman by storm; Mr. Spearman shows us how it may be done little by little, by insensible degrees, as the strength of a fortress is broken down through months of patient siege."

The New Orleans Picayune says: "The strength of this story—and it has undeniable power—lies in its frank and complete devotion to a single theme; the dogged, unyielding, confident persistency of a man in his pursuit of the woman he loves. Everything in the story is subordinated to this purpose of the man to compel the woman's love in spite of every obstacle that character and circumstance can put in his way."

ROWLAND THOMAS, Critic, writes in "Collier's":

"Great books are rare. Epoch-making books are rarer still. The writers of the Gospels, Voltaire, in those thin volumes where his thought is drawn, as a surgeon's knife, across the tumid emptiness of his age; Darwin, when the tumultuous, multifarious world of matter flashed into unity before his eyes; these men, possibly, made epochs instead of merely marking them. How many others are there? . . . MR. MURPHY'S VICTORY.

In electing Judge JAMES A. O'GORMAN to the United States Senate Mr. MURPHY wins every point and achieves a victory the completeness of which is impaired only by his loss of the valuable consideration, whatever its nature, by which he was persuaded to give his dogged but evidently not very sincere support to the candidacy of Mr. SHEEHAN. We have been told that the insurgents were fighting for a "principle." Mr. MURPHY, also, was fighting for a "principle," the principle of Murphy rule. He has won his fight, he has established himself securely as the dictator of Democratic policies in the State, and by their weakness and surrender the insurgents have permitted him to intrench himself in an impregnable position in the City of New York.

The insurgents had put forth as their irreducible minimum of principle that they would accept nobody so near MURPHY as COHALAN. No high resolve in politics ever came to a more grotesque ending. Mr. MURPHY selected Judge O'GORMAN as the candidate, he presented him to the insurgents for their acceptance, he has elected him, and he is MURPHY'S Senator. Remoteness from MURPHY can hardly be argued of such a candidate. If the insurgents were ignorant of O'GORMAN'S nearness to MURPHY they showed a pitiful poverty of information in matters of New York City politics. They might in some measure have saved their faces by including the Judge's name in their list of eligibles. They missed that point. They surrendered everything. MURPHY has won everything.

Of Judge O'GORMAN little need be said, because, although he is to be Senator, his personality is about the least conspicuous matter in the transactions that led to his election. He is a very respectable Judge; the lawyers speak of him as an able Judge. But he has moved in a narrow circle. We are quite unable to recall any part he has taken in the public life and affairs of this city save only in the discharge of his judicial duties. Of his views upon public questions, of his competence for casting an intelligent vote upon measures involving great National policies, this community knows as little as it knows of him. Judge O'GORMAN is of Tammany, and actually believes in Tammany. He actually believes in MURPHY, not with that mere loyalty which men pay to their party chiefs, but as a matter of real conviction. This information about the candidate they accepted and voted for will hardly be palatable to the insurgents, but it was open to them to make an earlier discovery of the truth.

The twenty-one insurgent Democrats of the Legislature acted, so long as they acted together, with great courage and evident devotion to their principle. But it is plain that they were not of the stuff that heroes are made of, since their heroism did not have the enduring quality. Within the last two or three days half of them, as had been made known in Albany dispatches, have been ready to give up the fight. They were weary, their physical discomfort since the burning of the Capitol has been very great, and under this double strain their courage oozed out. It was known yesterday, it was known day before yesterday, that the band could not be held together, that from twelve to fifteen were ready to go into MURPHY'S caucus, that they could no longer be depended on to keep up the fight for their famous "principle." Those of the insurgents who were made of sterner stuff deplored this defection, but saw no way to prevent it. They seem to have reached the conclusion that if part of the insurgents were to go over, it were better that all of them go over on the joint session vote. That was a dreadful mistake, for now the principle for which they contended, the principle of resistance to MURPHY'S rule, has been altogether abandoned, nothing remains of it, and the insurgents, brave men and weaklings alike, have all been swallowed up in the common ruin.

It would have been far better to accept Mr. SHEEHAN in the first place than to let the long and valorous contest end in this miserable surrender. Mr. SHEEHAN has many and high qualifications for the Senatorial office. He would have been a much abler Senator than Judge O'GORMAN. The vice of his candidacy was its origin in MURPHY. Very likely Mr. SHEEHAN might have been elected had MURPHY kept away from Albany. It was his meddling, which anybody could foresee would be fatal, that arrayed the insurgents against SHEEHAN. The vital substance of their contention was that MURPHY should not name the Senator. And now, after two months and a half of strife, they meekly accept MURPHY'S candidate, vote for him, elect him, and consent that the State of New York shall be represented in the Senate by one Republican Senator and one Tammany man of MURPHY'S choice. In a diligent, desperate search for available, in a canvass of second and third rate names after men of the first order had been eliminated, the insurgents might without reproach have included the name of Judge O'GORMAN in their list as a Democrat of good character and very respectable standing, as becomes a Judge of the Supreme Court, not with any expectation that he would be chosen, but merely to indicate their breadth of mind. They left it to MURPHY to suggest the name of Judge O'GORMAN, from him they accept the name. We may have some sympathy for them in the distress of mind with which they will contemplate "the bright beginning and bitter ending" of their struggle for principle, but it would be wrong to excuse their fault or to palliate it. For weeks they were in a position if not to claim a victory, at least to insist, and rightly, that MURPHY was defeated. Now, by this surrender they make him a free gift of all that he had fought for. Certainly they cannot delude themselves with the belief that their recognition of MURPHY as the controlling power in New York State politics will strengthen the New York Democracy or make probable future victories for its causes and its candidates.

THE CRIME INVESTIGATION.

The Grand Jury's investigation of the charges that crime has lately been increasing in this city, and police efficiency declining, should be both thorough and direct. The investigators should stick to the main issue. A direct answer to the charges has been made and iterated that crime has not been increasing and the efficiency of the police has improved. If that is true Magistrate CORRIGAN and a very large number of his fellow-citizens are mistaken, and will doubtless seize the first opportunity, after they are convinced, to express their regrets to Mayor GAYNOR and his Police Department. But only a very thorough investigation can produce any result that will convince either way. Let us get at the plain facts.

Commissioner CROPSEY'S statement that we have too few police is not to the point at present. The same complaint was made by Commissioner BINGHAM, and it is probably well founded. What we need to know now is whether the police we have are efficient. If they are not, to increase their number might not increase their efficiency. We can never hope to have a sufficient number of policemen in this thickly populated city to overawe evildoers merely by their numerical strength. The Grand Jury's investigation will serve its purpose if it makes plain to the citizens whether or not the police are at present doing their full duty to the extent of their ability.

As to the suppression of the special policemen, the Mayor's objections to them, so far as made known, seem to be theoretical rather than practical, and if any instances of the abuse of their privileges by employers of such policemen are known they should surely be brought out in the investigation.

THE MONEY TRUST.

It would be interesting to know whether Mr. WICKERSHAM'S Money Trust is more afraid of him or of the Aldrich banking reforms. It would further be interesting to know how many applaud the Attorney General for his intrepidity who cannot be persuaded to enlist in the movement for currency reform which would loosen whatever grip the Money Trust has on the ordinary business man. There is a thrill in the idea of indicting the Clearing House, or sending some leader of high finance to jail, which is lacking about humdrum proposals to enable the small man of business to discount his commercial documents under almost any stress of financial wind and weather. Therefore the Attorney General has the gallery yelling before it knows why, or whether it has any occasion to yell at all, while Senator ALDRICH cannot "get a hand" for reforms which the country really needs, and which the bankers as a body have just warmly approved. Perhaps there is reason to say that the galleries applaud the extreme attitude attributed to the Attorney General because the bankers have just indorsed the Aldrich plan in principle, with some reservations in detail. It is not only the West which thinks that whatever the banks want is wrong and that whoever attacks any banker is serving the people. It is comparatively easy to be patient with those who hold such views in ignorance, but there is a point at which such patience must be abandoned if it is in danger of being taken for connivance.

It is doubtless true that Secretary MACVEAGH would have hard work floating his forthcoming Panama loan among those who are shouting for the head and hide of the Money Trust. That of course is only another reason for yelling louder, inasmuch as the Government itself is evidently in the grip of the trust. It is no doubt true that railways and industrials financed on a scale of hundreds of millions find it impossible to supply their needs except with the assistance of banking units of large size. But that is only another reason for smashing the industrial and railway trusts along with the Money Trust. There would be fine pickings among the ruins for those who have everything to gain and nothing to lose.

The Attorney General's name is freely published in these wonderful communications to the gullible, but it must be without his approval. It is an open question whether he ought to dignify such absurdities by official disclaimers, and yet there is danger that if he does not do so somebody will believe them, perhaps even somebody whose belief in them may make some difference. Our sympathy goes out to Senator ALDRICH. He is about to stump the country on a campaign in support of a proposal which would do more to break the grip of the Money Trust than any prosecution under any law whatever. He will get no front pages and reading notices. It is the Attorney General who gets all the "scare heads."

NATIONAL GUARD EXPENSES.

In regard to the statement of one of our correspondents that young men are deterred from enlisting in the National Guard because of the cost of membership, we learn, on inquiry, that the dues in some of the regiments are very small, from 50 cents to $1 monthly, while in others there are no dues at all. So, it seems, a young man may belong to the National Guard at no great expense, the cost of outfitting being generally moderate. As a matter of fact, the only two regiments having distinctive uniforms which members must buy for themselves have larger memberships than any other regiments in this city. The Seventh Infantry and the two squadrons of cavalry, in which the expenses of membership are larger than in any other regiment of the National Guard, are not only filled to overflowing, but have large waiting lists.

The reason for the lack of recruits complained of, therefore, must be found elsewhere. Probably, in spite of the alleged opposition of employers of labor and the hostility of some of the labor unions to the citizen soldiery, the strongest reasons are that young men have got out of the habit of belonging to regiments, and that the term of enlistment is too long. The question raised by Adjt. Gen. VERBECK certainly should not be allowed to drop. The matter is serious, and it should be investigated.

GERMANY AND WAR.

The German Chancellor on Thursday spoke with great candor and firmness about the essential policy of Germany with regard to possible war. It is practically summed up in the passage thus reported:

> A nation must maintain its sea and land forces at such a point as corresponds with its national strength. Germany cannot afford to bind herself to limit armaments, because she would thereby run the risk of forfeiting her present place among the Powers to some stronger nation that is willing to take it and Germans would henceforth play the rôle of mere dummies in world affairs.

There is no doubt that this is a frank expression of the sentiment of the governing class in Germany, and at present it commands the approval of a substantial majority in the Imperial Parliament. Nor is there any concealment of the fact that this policy at the present moment as regards Great Britain is directed toward that Power and must be recognized by that Power. This is shown in another passage:

> England had frequently expressed the view publicly, privately, and officially that she must possess a fleet so strong as to be equal or superior to any possible hostile combination. It was England's good right, the Chancellor declared, to set up such a principle, but it was a principle which no self-respecting foreign Power could afford to recognize for itself. If England came to a world's congress with such a programme she would have to reckon on an almost certain rebuff.

Here we have two concrete and plain positions held by the two nations. Great Britain, knowing that her daily food comes by sea, feels that she must retain command of the sea. Germany, knowing that she has the resources to extend her navy, and having aims at home and abroad which require a stronger navy, matching her peerless army, will not consent to be limited in that enterprise. This is the situation of the two nations as clearly defined by the German Chancellor, and we do not see that, at present, there is any escape from it. Unquestionably it is a situation painful, costly, and threatening, and one which makes inevitable a constant increase in the burden imposed on both nations, already as heavy as that of actual war would have been in the last generation. Lovers of peace, sensible and cool-headed men, may see how oppressive and exhausting this burden is, and may hope that it will become intolerable, and be cast off by an uprising of its victims; but they know that that is a matter of the indefinite future. For any period as to which it is worth while to reckon Germany and Great Britain are bound by their feeling of need and right to go on the course they have taken, each adding to the burden of war preparation.

The interest of Americans in this situation is obvious. The debate in which the Chancellor spoke so plainly was brought on by a resolution approving international arbitration, in connection with recent discussions in this country and in England. It was based on the utterances of Sir EDWARD GREY, the British Foreign Secretary, and the Chancellor's speech was a direct reply—cold, hard, and almost scornful—repelling the advances suggested by Sir EDWARD, and announcing a relentless adherence to the policy the latter had hoped to modify. Our people will not fail to recall that it was in the speech thus answered that the British statesman hinted at the probability of general arbitration between the British and ourselves being followed by aid from one to the other in a "quarrel" with a third Power which should refuse to arbitrate. The German Chancellor left no room for doubt—if, indeed, there ever was room for doubt—as to the attitude of Germany in such a contingency. His speech only confirms the opinion that we have urged from the outset, that it is the interest and the duty of the United States in the highly promising situation as to general arbitration with Great Britain to hold strictly to that plan, and to avoid everything that suggests alliance, offensive or defensive. It is our interest because in this way we can make peace secure with Great Britain, and it is our duty because if we pass beyond these plain limits we invite opposition and even resentment and arouse rather than allay the passions that provoke war.

SUCCESSFUL KIDNAPPERS.

Before criticising a father who pays the huge sum of $12,000 to kidnappers for returning his stolen baby, one must endeavor to put himself, in imagination, in the father's place. It is true that a man who compounds a felony does, theoretically at least, constitute himself a party to a felonious transaction. But the crime of kidnapping is one, perhaps the only one, in which such defiance of the law must seem justifiable. New Mexico is a sparsely settled State, in which the machinery for the detection of crime and the punishment of criminals is as yet in a comparatively rude condition. Mr. ROGERS doubtless had little or no police protection to rely upon, and we fancy he did what other fathers would do in the same circumstances. But the success of these kidnappers will doubtless embolden others to play the same game.

Moral reflections on the subject would be more pertinent if kidnapping was less frequently attempted in supposably well-policed communities, and was less frequently successful in the same way. But, of course, the chances of catching and punishing the rascals, after they have given up their prey, are much better in thickly settled neighborhoods. We feel that Mr. ROGERS did right in rescuing his child from the thieves near Las Vegas, but it is too much to hope that they will now permit themselves to be caught. Their ill-gotten gains may lead them, through debauchery, to their own undoing, but there will be small consolation in that.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Aristocracy, Real and False.

Annapolis, meaning thereby, as almost everybody does, the Naval Academy, is certainly "in for it." According to a tale that comes from there, one of its more or less golden youths has been called before the academic authorities and severely censured because he had something to do—just what is not yet revealed—with bringing it to pass that a young woman who is employed as governess in the family of one of the officers was present at one of the academic dances and participated in its lofty joys.

As the young woman happens to be of more than respectable origin and more than ordinary education, as well as notable for good looks, pretty manners, and a cheerful disposition, the only objection to her presence at the dance that was made or could have been was the fact of her earning money as a teacher of children. Thus is raised the question whether or not Annapolis is justified in denying social equality to any woman who from necessity or inclination is honestly and honorably earning her own living. No large prophetic powers are required for determining beforehand what the country's answer will be to that question, or what will be the tone and tenor of its comments on the navy men who gave it a different answer.

If the circumstances are as reported, the denunciation of those responsible for this peculiarly cruel affront to one whom most of us would call, in our more solemn moments, "a worthy young woman," will gain an added bitterness because the boys in Annapolis are, in a special sense, the wards of the public, and paid by it in money and education to exemplify its highest ideals, aspirations, and standards—to be, in short, real aristocrats. Of course, the real aristocrat is not a snob who draws lines that exclude workers from his society for no better excuse than that they are workers. He proves his superiority by his freedom from prejudice, by his refusal to observe or enforce false distinctions, and by his ability to recognize merit wherever it exists. If these characteristics do not prevail at Annapolis and if their opposites do, the young woman who danced did well to depart from the place suddenly.

Well, Enough May Be Let Alone.

One doesn't have to be an opponent of change just because it is change to have more than doubts about both the feasibility and the wisdom of altering the calendar in the way suggested by the Swiss Government and soon to be considered by an international conference on the subject.

It cannot be denied that the system by which the civilized nations now divide and record time is imperfect and in some rather important respects inconvenient. For one thing, except as regards the full year, it is highly artificial, and as highly discordant with what may be called the natural chronologic divisions. Neither our weeks nor our months fit in with the doings of sun, moon or stars, and the consequent fact that our fixed anniversaries, festivals, and ceremonies come on different days of the week every year through a long cycle, makes no end of slight trouble and not a little of real loss.

Nevertheless, the mere fact that everything has been adjusted to this system might make it injudicious to replace it even by a perfect substitute, and very nearly deprives of a claim to attention one that is not perfect. For reform is not always its own justification, familiar and easily tolerable ills being sometimes preferable to a long period of confusion—the "period of transition" which we all so reasonably dread. Now the ills of the present calendar—itself the product of several rather terrible reforms—are tolerable, as is shown by the fact that they have been tolerated by the civilized world for a good many years.

Moreover, the suggested substitute, with its twelve months not all of the same length, is not perfect, since one of thirteen months, each of like duration to its fellows—moon months—would be more "natural," and if not perfect, at least as good as its rival in all respects and obviously better than it in some. Both have the admirable feature of making the same date always fall on the same day of the week, but we are well wonted to struggling with that difficulty, and most of us, after whispering "Thirty days hath—" and so on, can tell the number of days possessed by the month in which we happen to be living.

Were we to reform our calendar it would be a fine thing for posterity, but what a nuisance for ourselves!

A Strange Place for Yaquis.

One of the many mysteries of the Mexican situation, as seen from this distance, is the presence in the Federal army of many Yaqui Indians. That these Indians, so far as courage and fighting ability go, would be a valuable addition to any army cannot be denied by anybody who knows with what fierce determination, century after century, ever since the Spaniards came, they have fought to retain their independence, but of late years all their fighting has been against the Mexican Government.

Even those who question the reality or the extent of other people's grievances against that Government are willing enough to admit that the Yaquis have suffered terrible wrongs, and that the only just criticism to be made on their ceaseless rebellion was its hopelessness of success. While it is natural, therefore, that the Mexican Government is glad to have the Yaqui warriors on its side, it is hard indeed to explain, without more knowledge of the facts than the dispatches give, how it managed to get and keep them there. Yet several times the loyalty, as well as the prowess, of these wild allies has been mentioned in the news reports, and one would expect to find them in the ranks of the insurrectos, if taking any part at all in the present war.

Disinterested observers of the Yaqui describe him as a fine man, and, if decently treated, an honest, industrious, and efficient worker. When driven to rage, however, his one thought is to kill, and, as is the case with all savages, he has no preference for open war as distinguished from assassination. Some Governments would hesitate to utilize his services, no matter how badly needed.

INFLAMMABLE CEILINGS.

New Public Library Has Electric Wires Led Through Pine Kindlings.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I take from your to-day's editorial on the fire in the State Capitol at Albany the following as my text: The cause of the fire was, "as it now appears, due to defective electric wiring. * * * Precious manuscripts were destroyed that cannot be replaced."

You will remember that months ago I called in person upon you and told you of my discovery of the great amount of inflammable material being then put in the interior of our new library building on Fifth Avenue, and that the electric wiring was being attached—in the ordinary way—to 2x4 pine wood pieces (hid now) behind the cornices in the book rooms and corridors. At my request, you sent with me one of your reporters, and I took him through the whole new library building and showed him the ceilings of the great rooms, (hung from the fireproofed floors above,) built of flimsy pine scantling, with an open space for good draught above, and the cornices in the book rooms and corridors—which now seem so solid and safe—made of the same resiny pine kindling wood, over which was being put a thin sheet of plaster to form the beautiful "carved stone" effect, and behind these the same open spaces around the kindling wood, thus providing a good draught. More than this, running all through this mass of inflammable material, as I showed your reporter, were placed the electric wires.

Moreover, in some of the book rooms were found wood wainscoting covered with varnish, with a good space behind for draught, and the ever present electric wires.

Your reporter took copious notes and the next day you published a column article, with large headlines, partially describing the work then being done, and calling attention to the possible danger from fire. Your article closed with a short interview with the architect of the building, in which in substance it was said there was no danger and the work was all properly done. Your investigation and publication of facts fell flat. Not an inquiry nor a single effort was made to remedy such a damnable folly. The great library building is about completed, and the three great libraries are being moved in, and when the books are all in their steel shelves, there will be—in many rooms—piled over them cords of kindling wood and resiny pine scantlings with the electric match already applied, but not yet ignited.

May I ask how many years will it be until the insulation of those wires, decayed and disintegrated by natural causes, will open a way for the sparks from a short-circuited wire or a defective switch to reach the pine kindling wood and resin-soaked scantling, so well supplied with air chutes to fan them into flame, and the whole building be filled with dense smoke? What will be the result? The building will not burn down, the steel book shelves will not burn up, but the Fire Department, rushing to the rescue, as the black pine smoke rolls up, and the even small flames spurt out from the ceilings and the cornices, will pour hundreds of tons of water over the hundreds of thousands of precious books, mixed with the resin smoke and the charred remains of the ceilings and cornices that have fallen upon them, just as did the ceilings at Albany. When it is all over there will be found lying on a fireproof floor the priceless and unreplaceable treasures in books, ancient manuscripts, and works of art of the Lenox, the Astor, and the Tilden collections, in one unrecognizable mass of black, sooty, hopeless ruin.

ROBERT BREWSTER STANTON.

New York, March 30, 1911.

This letter was shown yesterday to Thomas Hastings of the firm of Carrere & Hastings, architects of the building. Mr. Hastings read the letter through carefully. "The statements contained in this letter are absurd," he said. "The electric wiring in the building is the best that brains and money could devise. No pains were spared to make the work as perfect as possible. We employed an expert electrician at a salary of $10,000 to attend to the job for us. The work was approved of by the Building Department. There are few wood ceilings in the building. The wires are insulated in iron conduits, and it would not be possible for them to come in contact with any of the woodwork in the building. You may rest assured that there is nothing defective or unsafe with the electric wiring of the new library."

Joaquin Miller Recovers Health.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—Joaquin Miller, the aged poet of the Sierras, who early in the month was given up by the doctors, is now almost fully recovered. He has returned to his home on the Heights, overlooking San Francisco Bay, where he has done some of his work. He took with him his wife, from whom he had lived apart for ten years, and henceforth she will make her home with him as well as his daughter Juanita, who for the last two years has been a student of art in New York City.

Strathcona Gives $150,000 to Y.M.C.A.

Announcement was made here yesterday that Lord Strathcona, Lord High Commissioner from Canada to the British Crown, has accepted the Honorary Chairmanship of the Western Committee of the Canadian Y. M. C. A., and with the acceptance makes a gift of $150,000 to Y. M. C. A. buildings in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. Within the past eighteen months Lord Strathcona has also given $25,000 each for association buildings at Winnipeg, Vancouver, Toronto, and Montreal.

A RULE OF LAW.

Why Are Not the Ticket Speculators Held to It?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the newspapers are correct in stating that the Corporation Counsel has advised the police not to arrest ticket speculators who violate the ordinance against selling theatre tickets on the street, merely because an appeal has been taken by an offender who has been tried, convicted, been heard on a writ of habeas corpus, and had his conviction upheld, the matter deserves very sober and serious consideration. It is not, perhaps, of vast moment whether this city must endure for a few months longer the brutal nuisance that the sidewalk ticket speculators have so long inflicted on it. But it is a matter of great moment that this city should announce to its law-breaking classes that they may violate with impunity any and every new penal statute or ordinance for many months after it has become a law, by the simple method of an arrest of one of their number, a conviction, and an appeal.

Every lawyer—not excepting the Corporation Counsel—knows that a statute has always been held to be presumptively valid until declared invalid. If we are to change this rule of law and regard every statute as presumptively invalid until declared valid we are making a very costly present to breakers of the law and—what is even more serious—doing very much to breed and increase contempt for the law itself.

If the Corporation Counsel has a reason for his advice to the police—assuming that he gave it—cannot the press make it known?

Columbia Had Precedence.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You state that "following the arrangement made recently with Harvard, the University of Paris has decided to send a professor to Columbia University." The facts of the case are as follows: While in Paris last year, Prof. Adolphe Cohn of Columbia University was empowered by President Butler to make arrangements with the University of Paris providing for the latter university to send a professor to Columbia. In March, 1910, arrangements were completed with M. Louis Liard, Vice Rector of the University of Paris, and Prof. F. Bruno was appointed to come to Columbia this year; this he was unable to do, owing to the illness of his daughter, and so Prof. Gustav Lanson was appointed for next year. It is only following these arrangements that an agreement was reached between Harvard and the University of Paris.

ALBERT M. COHN-McMASTER.

YESTERDAY.

I meant each brimming hour to send
That promised letter to my friend;
The moments flashed and broke like spray
And I forgot that all things end.
That golden hour was yesterday—
I cannot reach my friend to-day.

The sunlight burns, an April whim,
In shadow I remember him;
The busy world hums merrily,
But as I work my eyes are dim—
He could have heard me yesterday,
He cannot answer me to-day!

He may have thought I did not care—
My friend so sensitive, so rare—
I failed him, I who loved him well!
Dear God, how do Thy children dare
To trifle with Thy Gift, To-day—
That fades, so soon, to Yesterday!

CHARLES M. DEWEY'S PICTURES ON VIEW

His Beautiful Landscape, 'Springtime,' Is a Marvel of Co-ordinated Details.

PORTRAIT OF GEN. HOWARD

Exhibition of Paintings by American Artists at Engineers' Club Includes Arthur Davies's Lovely "Arethusa."

To visit an exhibition like that of Charles Melville Dewey's at the Macbeth Gallery is to realize that we get from the older men something the younger ones cannot as yet give us, and perhaps will never be able to give us, for the reason that most of them are spending their youth in confident production and self-expression instead of in the analysis of natural phenomena and the patient accumulation of mental impressions.

Mr. Dewey's pictures are as rich in gathered wisdom as the talk of a close and penetrating thinker whose ideas of life and reality have been subjected to the long winnowing of a merciless intelligence. One beautiful landscape, which he calls "Springtime," is a marvel of co-ordinated details, each with its shaping significance and all dignified and elevated by their absorption in the whole impression. The elements of the scene are such as might be found anywhere in this part of the country, where nature is sufficiently allowed to have her way—a clump of trees clad in young foliage, a little blue mist rising from the earth, a line of hills on the horizon, a stream winding towards them, and above a sky delicately flushed with warm color.

The public familiar with the outdoor world will see only the thing the painter was driving at—an adequate translation of the aspect and sentiment of the scene into the terms of his art, and they will get from it what he meant them to get—the pleasure nature in such a mood would give them. But students of art, alert to discern methods and means, will find much to enlist their admiration in the exquisite adjustment of the art to its end. They will discern the rhythms in the lines of light and shade, and the even subtler rhythms of color that give to the picture its abstract charm, its true poetry. They will discern the sensitive relation of all the parts that permits the foreground to be so full of interest without interfering with the simplicity of the composition. They will know that only a profound knowledge of the essential conditions could have dictated the value of the trees against the sky that permits the sky to hold its radiance and yet sweep back of the earth and all that springs from it, a true vault of heaven. This is, on the whole, the noblest and most impressive landscape in the fine little exhibition, but there are others that approach it.

"Twixt Sun and Moon" is impregnated with the sentiment of the evening hour. "Fayrwold" is a portrait of a Connecticut garden in which the large lines of the general landscape have not been butchered to make a gardener's holiday. Two vivid little panels intended as decorations for a library or dining room have force enough of color to withstand the oppression of old oak and leather-covered books. Only one canvas, the little "Willow," has a look of apathy for which the excellent construction of the composition does not compensate.

The most salient feature of the exhibition for most visitors will be the portrait of Gen. O. O. Howard, upon which we commented some weeks ago. It shows the General in his uniform against the background of the harbor with the Statue of Liberty in the distance. The portrait was painted at the request of a committee of which Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, U. S. A., is President, and it is to be purchased by subscription for Memorial Hall at West Point. The military bearing and appropriately authoritative expression are in the right vein for a portrait destined for this position. The exhibition closes on April 12.

At Engineers' Club.

At the Engineers' Club, until April 6 (inclusive,) is a mixed but extremely interesting exhibition of paintings by American artists. Most of them have been seen before, as is almost inevitably the case with the club exhibitions, and for this very reason they should be welcomed by the critic as well as by the public, giving opportunity, as they do, for revision of judgments or fortification of first impressions.

A number of the painters are represented by works which may fairly stand as their best. George De Forest Brush, for one, has never painted anything more eloquent of his special quality than the "Mother Reading" lent by Mrs. F. J. Smithers. The characterization of all the figures, the graceful gaunt mother, the alert baby on her lap, the stolid little children standing aloof, the beautiful reddening of the reds in the bodice and in the golden brown tapestry of the chair with its florid Italian pattern, the composition and the textures are all marked by the artist's penetrating distinction, which in some of the pictures of his middle period lost something of its peculiar quality.

Another high water mark is touched in the "Arethusa," by Arthur Davies, not one of his recent pictures, but so beautiful in its simple flow of lovely line and soft, clear harmony of color as to make even the most successful of his mystical later painting seem slightly mannered. A semi-nude figure is seated on a rock looking away from the spectator. The enchanting curve of the slim, young body, the poise of the small head, and the glorious color of the red hair coiled about it are a source of deep aesthetic pleasure.

Charles W. Hawthorne's "Morning Chocolate," which we have noticed before, is also one of his finest achievements, absolutely free from the haunting suspicion of affectation that attends so much of his late work, and Richard E. Miller's "In the Shadow," which we rejoiced to praise when it was shown at a dealer's gallery, is certainly his masterpiece up to the present time, and has been bought by the club. Ernest Lawson's "High Bridge" also has become the club's property. Frank W. Benson shows his admirable little canvas, "The Reader," which he exhibited in the Pennsylvania Academy this year; Daniel Garber his "River Scene," and Fred Wagner his very different composition bearing the same title; Gardner Symons his "Autumn in the Berkshires," Paul Dougherty his "Moonlit Cliffs," and Alice Kent Stoddard a marine. Mrs. Smithers lends "The Harvest Moon," by George Inness, and Mr. Evans "The Mussel Gatherers" by Homer Martin and a "Moonlight" by Ralph Blakelock. The other artists represented are Mary Cassatt, with her charming "Caresse Maternelle," Charles H. Davis with a fine landscape, Elliott Daingerfield, Louis Paul Dessar, William Morris Hunt, Augustus Koopman, Paul King, J. Francis Murphy, H. W. Ranger, C. F. Ryder, William Sartain, and J. H. Twachtman.

CITY MUST PAY INTEREST.

Appellate Division Upholds the Decision In Delayed Award Suit.

Supreme Court Justice Page's decision that the city must pay interest on delayed payments of condemnation awards for changes of grade was affirmed yesterday by the Appellate Division. The interest charges in the suit of the estate of Jason Rogers from Sept. 15, 1893, almost equal the total award.

Rogers owned property in Morrisania affected by grade changes. John M. Harrington, counsel for his estate, as well as for other large realty interests, said yesterday that the decision would cost the city several hundred thousand dollars when applied to other cases now pending. The fault, he said, was of city officials who unduly delayed payments.

Quaker School's Semi-Centennial.

The Friends Seminary held an alumni supper and reception last evening, to celebrate the completion of fifty years in its building. The gymnasium was crowded. Mrs. Lulu Von R. Palmanburg, President of the Alumni Association, was toastmaster, and Mrs. Anna M. Jackson, class of '64, spoke. Her two children were in the class of '88 and her granddaughter will be graduated this year. Several former Principals spoke.

HOE LIBRARY SALE MAY BREAK RECORDS

TOTAL OF 16,000 ITEMS

Sale of the First Lot Will Begin on April 24 — Many Books Worth $10,000 or More Each.

The sale of the Robert Hoe library by the Anderson Auction Company, it is now definitely announced, will begin on April 24. From that date until May 4 inclusive, two sessions will be held daily, excepting Saturdays and Sundays, and on May 5 there will be one session. All will be devoted to the dispersal of the 3,538 lots, comprising the first part of this famous collection of books and manuscripts. It will constitute about one-fourth of the entire library, which includes 16,000 items.

It is expected that the sale will bring the highest aggregate totals of any collection ever sold at auction, not only in America, but in the world, and that at least one of its literary treasures will bring a higher price than has ever before been realized for a single work in the public market. There are said to be no less than ten books and manuscripts in the library that will fetch more than $10,000 each. Chief among them is the copy on vellum of the Gutenberg, or "42-line" Latin Bible, printed by John Gutenberg and John Fust at Mainz, 1450-55. It is bound in two folio volumes, in contemporary oak boards, covered with pigskin. Two leaves, which are in fac simile, constitute, it is said, the only defects. It is the same copy which brought $17,000 at the Perkins sale in 1873 and $20,000 at the Ashburnham sale in 1897. It will be auctioned off the first day of the sale.

Among the other incunabula, or books produced in the infancy of the art, are the "Opera" of Lactantius, printed in 1465 by Conrad Sweynheym and Arnold Pannartz at Subiaco, the first book printed in Italy with a date, and the second book for which Greek type was cast; St. Augustine's "De Civitate Dei," printed in 1470 by the brothers, John and Wendelin of Speier, on vellum, the fourth book printed at Venice, only eight copies known in this state; Sir Thomas Malory's "Le Morte D'Arthur," printed by William Caxton at Westminster in 1485, the finest copy known, and the identical one which brought $9,750 at the Earl of Jersey sale, and Bartholomew Glanville's "De Proprietatibus Rerum," printed about 1495 in London by Wynkyn de Worde, Caxton's successor.

Included in the manuscripts are the "Horae (Hours) of the Virgin Mary," a beautiful illuminated manuscript, known as "The Pembroke Hours," and made for Sir William Herbert, Earl of Pembroke, one of Richard III.'s partisans in the Wars of the Roses, who was captured and executed in 1469; the Roman Missal, a magnificent manuscript on vellum, presented by Charles VI., King of France to Henry V. of England on the occasion of the latter's marriage to Catherine of Valois, daughter of Charles VI.; the "Hours" of Anne de Beaujeu, the daughter of Louis XI. of France; a late fifteenth century manuscript of the French poetical version of Ovid's "Epistolae Herodum," presumably executed for Louis XII. and Anne of Brittany, and a thirteenth century illuminated manuscript of Josephus Flavius.

Mr. Hoe was particularly interested in the art of book binding, and his library contains a great number of the works of the masters in this line. Among them are the following: Jean Grolier's "Hellodoms," Basel, 1552; Francesco Guicciardini's "History of Italy," 1561, in mosaic binding by Nicolas Eve for Henry III. of France; a Bible, Edinburgh, 1715, bound by Roger Payne, and "Les Illustrations de Gaubc," by Jean le Maire de Belges, bound for Henry II. of France and Diane de Poitiers.

The four Shakespeare folios figure prominently in the English literature array, the first folio, London, 1623, being, so far as known, the second largest copy extant. Other especially notable items are the quarto Hamlet of 1611; Sir William Alexander's "Recreations with the Muses," first edition, London, 1637; "Helyas, Knight of the Swanne," printed in London in 1512 by Wynkyn de Worde, the only known copy, and said to be the only book printed by him on vellum; John Milton's "Paradise Lost," with the second title-page, London, 1667; William Blake's "Milton: A Poem in Twelve Books," the original edition, 1804, of the rarest of all Blake's productions, and a first edition of Robert Burns's "Poems," Kilmarnock, 1786.

Among the more valuable of the Americana are: "A Declaration of Former Passages and Proceedings Betwixt the English and the Narrowgansets, with Their Confederates," by John Winthrop, Cambridge, 1645, the first book on a historical subject printed in English America, and the third surviving example of the issues of Stephen Daye's Press at Cambridge; Daniel Denton's "Brief Description of New York: Formerly Called New Netherlands," a small quarto, printed in London in 1670, and the first work in English, relating exclusively to New York; "Des Sauvages," Paris, 1603, the rare first issue of the narrative of Samuel Champlain's first expedition to Canada, a smaller copy of which was sold at auction in this city in 1907 for $2,900; the rare first edition of the first New York Directory, "Printed by Shepard Kollock, corner of Wall and Water Streets, 1786"; the rare original edition of Cedusiader Colden's "History of the Five Indian Nations," New York, 1727; Richard Hakluyt's "Principal Navigations," London, 1599-1600, and his "Virginia, Richly Valued," 1609, and the "Amerigo Vespucci Narratives," Paris, 1508.

Of noteworthy autographs there are among others poems of Robert Burns and letters from him to Capt. Hamilton, Mrs. Riddell, and Agnes M. C. Lehose, (his "Clarinda"); two long and interesting letters of Edgar Allan Poe, dated 1842 and 1848; manuscripts of Washington Irving; a letter of Cardinal Richelieu to the Canons of the Chapter of the Church of Paris; an Oliver Cromwell document, dated 1652; a letter of Sir Walter Scott to Robert Southey; a letter from Laurence Sterne to a friend, 1763, mentioning "Tristram Shandy"; a letter of Thomas Carlyle, 1865, about the American civil war; William Wycherly's "Miscellany Poems," 1704, autograph presentation copy from the author, and a letter of Horace Walpole, 1780.

There are also first and early editions of the French classical authors, eighteenth century illustrated books, and limited issues, illustrated with original drawings. The dates of the sale of the three other parts of the library will be announced later.

Few Object to Tax Assessment.

When the assessment rolls for Brooklyn, which had been open for inspection by property owners since Jan. 9, were closed yesterday afternoon, it was found that despite all the agitation over increased realty valuations, more than 95 per cent. remained unprotested. The rolls showed a total of 201,547 parcels, and an increase in valuation of $300,490,151. There were 170,968 changes in valuation, chiefly increases.

Bliss, "Welcome," went to the same buyer for $95.

SUFFRAGISTS GIVE GAVEL TO MRS. CATT

Farewell Reception in the Astor Before She Sails for Stockholm.

TO USE IT IN CONVENTION

Tells Story of Another Gavel and the Trouble It Caused Her—Calls the Antis "Peacocks."

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt has a brand new gavel which she will wield for the first time at the gathering of the suffrage clans of all nations at the convention in Stockholm in June, where she will preside. The gavel was presented to her at a party in the Hotel Astor yesterday by the woman suffragists of New York in honor of her departure next week.

After leaving Stockholm Mrs. Catt will start on a suffrage tour with the President of the Dutch Woman Suffrage Association to convert the world to the "cause." She will visit Turkey, China, Japan, Persia, and South Africa, sounding the call of the ballot box and shouting the battle cry of "Votes for Women."

Mrs. Catt told the women yesterday she feared she could never get that lovely new gavel past the foreign customs officers, for she has had trouble with the customs and a gavel before. This one is a rather fat gavel of ebony and silver, and yesterday it bore a beautiful yellow suffrage ribbon bearing the slogan, "Votes for Women," tied about its bulky waist. It is not the kind of a gavel to hide its head under a bushel.

The other gavel landed with Mrs. Catt in Bremen some years ago. She kept it in a new bureau trunk, and the very first thing the trunk got itself lost and was not found until most of the passengers had departed. Being a new trunk, with which its owner was not well acquainted, it was difficult to unlock it in the excitement of fast-coming train time. The first thing the customs men put their hands on was the gavel in a box. The box had to be opened, but the key got misplaced and the customs men stood around looking suspicious, certain that diamond tiaras, playing cards, tobacco, liquor, and everything that ought not to be in that box was in it. When the poor little gavel came out they knew all their suspicions were justified because they didn't know what it was.

"How many have you?" they asked solemnly, for Germans don't have gavels, but bells, for their meetings. A good German-American explained all about it, but they didn't understand even then, and so the gavel had to go to the Inspector. It was only just as the train was starting that Mrs. Catt managed to get aboard.

"With the 'Votes for Women' on this," said Mrs. Catt yesterday, "they will never let me in to say nothing of the gavel."

Everyone present made speeches, and all who were not present wrote letters. These included Mrs. Belmont, Mrs. Mackay, Mrs. Harriet May Mills, Mrs. Henry Villard, and George Foster Peabody, President of the Men's Equal Suffrage League. In presenting the gavel Mrs. Frederick Nathan said:

"Fellow brother citizens and sister citizens: I am very grateful to the antis for speaking of our 'spread henism,' for the hen is a model mother and to a great extent she nourishes the world. There are several things we might call the antis, but as they spread such marvelous tales there is no name that would be as appropriate to them as that of peacocks."

There were many women guests at the luncheon. Mrs. Martha Wentworth Suffern, who will represent Mrs. Catt as head of the Woman Suffrage Party during her absence, presided. Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Miss Mary Garrett Hay, and Dr. Anna Howard Shaw were among the speakers. While the after luncheon speeches were in progress word was received that the woman suffrage bill in Wisconsin had passed the house by a vote of 16 to 4 and there was great applause.

"In their interest in suffrage," said Mrs. Catt, "women think of it as it applies to them, then as it applies to the State, then they consider other States and finally the world; they find that this is not an individual thing, but human and which lifts up the whole sex."

Sir Edward has written the coronation march for King George.

Musicians Aid Fire Sufferers' Benefit.

Besides the theatrical managers and the actors who have volunteered their services for the benefit of the fire sufferers to be given at the Metropolitan Opera House on April 11, members of the Musicians' Union and the stage hands have all offered to lend their aid to the affair. The committee in charge of the benefit is finding trouble in making room on the programme for all of the actors who have volunteered.

ARREST LABORATORY HEAD.

County Medical Society Prosecuting Him for Practicing Medicine.

James H. Scott, proprietor of "the 606 Laboratories, 33 West Forty-second Street," was arrested yesterday on complaint of the County Medical Society, through its counsel, Almuth C. Vandiver. The prosecution is aided by Herman A. Metz, President of Victor Koechl & Co. of 34 Beach Street, American agents for the sale of Dr. Ehrlich's blood specific, Salvarsan, commonly known as "606."

The actual complainant against Scott is James William Walker, who says he received an injection of the specific at Scott's laboratories as a supposed cure for catarrh, for which disease, according to Mr. Metz, it is useless and probably dangerous. Walker paid $25 for the treatment, which was administered, he says, by a man introduced to him as Dr. Coutant. Three days later, the complaint continues, Walker's back became inflammed. He returned to Scott, declaring he feared the specific was going to kill him. Dr. Coutant, upon seeing the inflammation prescribed for that, but Walker grew worse.

He then applied at the office of Victor Koechl & Co., the American agents for Dr. Ehrlich. Mr. Metz, President of the company, had him examined by Dr. John A. Fordyce of West Seventy-seventh Street, who reported that Walker had not a trace of the blood disease for which the remedy is a specific, and that he did not believe there ever was a trace of the disease in him. Mr. Metz then took Walker to see the District Attorney, and the case was placed in the hands of the counsel for the County Medical Society.

According to Walker's complaint Dr. Coutant testified when the summons against Scott was first applied for on Thursday, that Scott was the proprietor of the laboratories, and that he, Dr. Coutant, received no money from patients to whom he gave treatment there. He was paid, he said, by one Karney, then present in court. Karney, according to the affidavit, testified that he in turn was employed by James H. Scott.

In court yesterday Scott's lawyer, James J. Vause of 15 Broad Street, asked for an adjournment till April 11, so that he might better acquaint himself with the evidence in the case. It was granted, and Scott was paroled in custody of his counsel. Scott admitted that he was the proprietor of the place, but held that he was not violating the law or practicing medicine without a license, since treatment was not given by him, but by a regularly registered physician. Mr. Vandiver, on the other hand, contends that as proprietor of the place he practiced medicine without a license, and in selling the drug at retail violated also the pharmacy law.

PALMS FOR PALM SUNDAY.

Barclay Street Piled High with Leaves Fresh from Florida.

The sidewalks on Barclay Street are piled high these days with palms for Palm Sunday. Big drays are kept busy between the piers where the banana boats come in, loaded now with palms instead of fruit, and the great Catholic supply houses which deal in religious articles.

Palm Sunday this year falls on April 9, and the palms began to arrive early this week from Florida. New York is a distributing point for the palms used throughout the North Atlantic and Middle Western States.

On Palm Sunday the palms will be blessed by the priests and distributed among the congregations in memory of those which were strewn before Christ on his triumphal entry into Jerusalem the Sunday before his crucifixion.

More than a month before Palm Sunday picked men from New York arrive in the Everglades of Florida and hire negroes to go over the swampy ground, reaping the leaves from the palm trees. Hundreds of tons of leaves are picked and taken down the shallow streams on rafts to the seaport towns, where they are loaded on coasting steamers for New York, Philadelphia, and Boston.

The plentiful supply of palms available here in fresh condition makes the size of the palm given to each believer in this city and towns supplied from here more generous than is customary in Europe.

SISTERS IN DOUBLE WEDDING

Automobile for Each One Given by Her Father.

There is to be a double wedding in St. Stephen's Lutheran Church, Newkirk Avenue and East Twenty-sixth Street, Flatbush, Brooklyn, on April 26, when the Misses Clara and Emma Moehle, daughters of Dr. C. F. Moehle of 778 East Nineteenth Street, will be married to William Darling Wood, 1,070 East Seventeenth Street, and George Einar Rasmussen, 950 East Thirty-second Street, respectively. The girls, although two years apart, have always dressed alike and to all except their most intimate friends have appeared to be twins.

Dr. Moehle has promised to give an automobile to each of his daughters for a wedding present, and the girls have planned their honeymoons to cover the same territory. On their return to Flatbush the couples will occupy a two-family house in East Thirty-second Street, which has been furnished for their return.

MISS HUSTON'S SONG RECITAL

Artist Makes a Deep Impression in Irish and English Folk Songs.

Miss Margaret Huston gave an interesting song recital yesterday morning in the ballroom of the Hotel Plaza. Miss Huston has a theory that successful songs are written on the basis that singing is simply sustained speech. In choosing her programme she went, therefore, to those composers who have emphasized the declamatory element in singing, and included several Irish and English folk songs.

For her delivery of these latter Miss Huston has already won warm praise in London, and she succeeded in making a deep impression with them yesterday. The examples she chose were humorous and of the sort which would make an appeal as immediate as it has been lasting.

She sang two interesting songs of Hugo Wolf, "Die Geister am Mumlesee" and "Nix Binsefuss," and then devoted herself to the French school, singing songs by Debussy, Viardot, Puget, and Bruneau. Her accompaniments were very beautifully played by Henner Skene.

Mme. Tetrazzini's Final Concert.

Mme. Tetrazzini, who will be heard in a final concert at the Hippodrome tomorrow evening, will sail on the Mauretania April 5, going directly to London to appear at Covent Garden. At the conclusion of the Spring season in London the soprano will go to the Continent to remain until she returns next season for another concert tour with her present manager, W. H. Leahy.

Cast for Collier in "The Dictator."

The cast that will support William Collier in his revival of "The Dictator," which is to be presented at the Comedy Theatre on April 13, will consist of Paula Marr, William Collier, Jr., Helena Collier Garrick, Thomas Beauregard, Thomas Martin, Willard Feeley, Stanley Murphy, Frederick Esmelton, Albert Perry, Thomas Findlay, John B. Adams, John Dolan, Thomas Stuart, Edward Stall, and James Sheeran. New scenery and properties are being prepared for the revival.

Miss Duncan Dances Her Farewell.

Miss Isadora Duncan danced her season's farewell to New York last night at Carnegie Hall with the assistance of Walter Damrosch and the Symphony Society. The programme contained numbers from Gluck's "Iphigenie en Aulide" and other numbers, in the interpretation of which Miss Duncan has been a familiar figure here.

Smallpox on Italian Liner.

The steamship Verona, which arrived yesterday from Italian ports, was detained in Quarantine because of the discovery of smallpox among her 1,458 steerage passengers. The patient, a woman, was sent to Swinburne Island Hospital. Passengers who had been exposed to contagion were sent to Hoffman Island and the vessel, after being disinfected, allowed to proceed to her pier. The Verona is bound for Philadelphia, where she will land about half of her passengers.

METHODIST LAYMEN FOR RADICAL CHANGES

Propose to Abolish Office of Presiding Elder and to Vote at Annual Conferences.

MORE BISHOPS ALSO WANTED

Bishops, They Argue, Should Serve in a District Instead of at Large—General Conference to Decide.

What were said to be revolutionary changes in the government and organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America were proposed by the Laymen's Association at the New York Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday. The committee wanted to abolish the office of District Superintendent, or Presiding Elder, which has had a place in Methodism in America since 1784; to provide General Superintendents or Bishops resident for at least four years in one district, instead of serving as Bishops at large as at present, and to create them in sufficient numbers to come into intimate touch with their people. Finally the committee proposed to give laymen seats and votes in annual conferences, such as that now in session, instead of merely in the General Conference as at present.

These changes are subject to the approval of the General Conference, which is to be held in Minneapolis, Minn., on May 1, 1912. In the meantime all conferences will pass upon them, and it was said yesterday that they are favored by a growing sentiment throughout the country. The vote in the Laymen's Association was two to one in favor of them.

These suggested reforms came from the Committee on Supervision appointed by the laymen at the last conference. Beverley R. Smith was Chairman of the committee, of which the other members were John Beattie of New York, John R. Westlake of Newburg, L. L. Osterhaut of Kingston, and Dr. M. Downing of Poughkeepsie. Concerning the abolition of the District Superintendents, the report said:

"It seems a doubtful piece of wisdom to select as a Supervisor one who may himself in time be supervised or who may be ambitious of higher church preferment. It is not beyond truth to say that in more than 100 conferences of our church upward of $1,000,000 is spent for this kind of supervision and a very large sum is invested in parsonage property. If this expenditure gave results commensurate, there would be no objection among those now responsible for its payment.

"We believe also that the General Superintendent should reside within the bounds of a conference and preside over its work for a period of sufficient length that he might personally travel about and visit each church at least once a year, learning the needs, determining whether his appointee was fit or unfit, and becoming acquainted with the men and women of the church. Our General Superintendents ought to be located over one conference at least for four years.

"Upward of 500 competent pastors are taken from churches where they are needed to become District Superintendents. Less than half the number, made General Superintendents, could do the work more efficiently at less expense.

"Finally, the business of a conference is the business of the whole Church. The Church is a workable coalition between its clerical and lay interests. What interests one must help the other. Hence we believe that in order to perfect the plans herein suggested the laymen have a right to be represented in the General Conference. Each church ought to have its lay representative attending the annual conference, participating in its work, ready to give the benefit of his experience and needed information of his own church to the General Superintendent, in order that whatever change in conditions may have arisen since the last visit of the General Superintendent may be known to him before making the appointment for that church.

"The feeling of our laymen seems to be that we do not get results commensurate with the money spent, that in our cities the Church does not measure up to its opportunity, that we are not connectionally strong, and that we fail to recognize the truth that the man is not half as important as the Church as a whole or as each church is."

WAYS OF ENDING WAR.

Ambassador Hill Explains in Columbia Lecture Why Conflict Is Unnecessary.

Ambassador David Jayne Hill lectured in Earl Hall, Columbia University, yesterday. War, he said, was not inevitable and all misunderstandings of nations were capable of adjustment without bloodshed.

"All of the powers collectively," said he, "have not yet expended the cost of a single battleship in promoting the cause of international peace. How then can it be said that there is but little more to be expected of future Hague conferences?

"By placing armies and navies under the regulation of international justice," said he, "the arbitrary assumption that nations are above all law has been effectually silenced. If soldiers and sailors in the heat of mortal combat and in the midst of bloodshed can be guided by convention-made rules for war, why cannot diplomatists and statesmen similarly subject themselves to laws of international justice?

"Armies and navies will have to be depended upon to guard the world's peace until guarantees of assurance are given. As long as principles of justice do not prevail among nations, the only protection for a power surrounded by enemies will continue to be the maintenance of a sufficient armament.

"Mutual distrust is the cause of excessive armament, and mutual distrust cannot be overcome by quick-firing guns, death-dealing aeroplanes, or enormous battleships. The question of peace is, and always has been, a question of justice. Peace was never broken except by an unjust act."

Dr. Hill was escorted to the platform by President Nicholas Murray Butler, who has just returned from a month's vacation in the South. Ambassador Hill will deliver his concluding lecture of the James S. Carpentier Foundation next Monday afternoon in Earl Hall. The general subject of Dr. Hill's eight lectures is "The Problem of World Organization as Affected by the Nature of the Modern State."

Tankel Is Again Tanklefsky.

Aaron Tankel of 1,934 Boston Road, the Bronx, resumed his old name of Tanklefsky yesterday by permission of Supreme Court Justice Newburger. He said Justice Leventripp in 1908 had authorized him to assume the name of Tankel, but he had learned that he could not be married according to orthodox Jewish rites unless he resumed the name of his fathers. He declined to state whether or not he would become Tankel again after the ceremony.

O. RINGLING, CIRCUS MAN, DIES

His Was the Master Hand That Controlled the Great Outdoor Show World.

Otto Ringling, second in age of the five Ringling brothers who control all of the larger circuses in this country, died suddenly yesterday afternoon at the home of his brother, John Ringling, at Fiftieth Street and Fifth Avenue. He had been ill for the last two years with Bright's disease, but up to yesterday morning there had been no indication of immediate danger.

At the time of his death his physician and nurse were with him, but his brother John was away, preparing to go to Chicago for the opening of the Ringling Brothers' circus next Monday, and the younger brother, Alfred T., was at the Barnum & Bailey show at Madison Square Garden. Both were notified at once, and went to the house.

Otto Ringling was 52 years old. He was the third of seven brothers; the eldest was Albert Ringling; the second, Augustus Ringling, who died in New Orleans about three years ago; the fourth, Charles Ringling; the fifth, Alfred T. Ringling; the sixth, John Ringling, and the seventh, Henry Ringling. The firm of Ringling Brothers comprised five of the seven brothers. Augustus and Henry not being members of the firm. In 1884 the five brothers, comprising the firm, were engaged in harness making at McGregor, Iowa. The family was of Alsatian and Huguenot parentage and was extremely musical, each member being a master of one or more musical instruments.

They began their career as showmen by giving concert tours through the towns of Iowa and Wisconsin, and eventually went into the circus business. Their strides in their latest vocation were extremely rapid, and in the brief period of seventeen years they became masters of the show world. The surviving brothers all credit Otto Ringling with being the Lieutenant General of the family. He was a master of detail, and there is no business in the world where there is so much of this element as in the circus business. He was also a man of great ideas and ambition, and an executive of force and character.

Personally, Otto Ringling was almost a recluse. He was a bachelor and his only love was the shows that he and his brothers owned. His ambition was boundless, and the acquirement of the Barnum & Bailey show was the cap to the ambition which crowned the effort of his life. The other four brothers of the firm were all more or less specialists in the various departments of their several shows; Otto Ringling was the general who assembled all the forces and directed them, with the assent of his brothers, toward the achievement of the victories which gave them at last the complete mastery of the circus world. Besides this and the show that bears their name, the brothers own the Foreepaugh-Sells Show.

Mr. Ringling will be buried at Baraboo, Wis., his birthplace. He was the only one of the seven brothers to be born in that Wisconsin town. His body, accompanied by John Ringling and Alfred T. Ringling from New York, Charles Ringling and Henry Ringling from Chicago, and Albert Ringling at Baraboo, will be taken to his native town, where the funeral will be held probably next Sunday.

Otto Ringling was regarded by his brothers as distinctively the financier of the family, although in this respect each of the brothers shared his genius. He had three hobbies—horses, books, and mathematics—two practical and the other largely sentimental. He was a wide reader, especially familiar with history and the classics of literature, and if he had any pride at all it was in his knowledge of current literature. His private car, attached to the show train, contained an extensive library, and he was fully acquainted with its contents. He will be remembered by all who knew him as one of the great showmen of America.

Appeal for a Struggling Mother.

The Widowed Mothers' Fund Association appeals for $150 to pay the rent of a woman, 27 years old, who is struggling to support an invalid husband and three children. Her husband has been ailing for over a year, and she has made a brave fight until the present time, when she was forced to apply for the commitment of her children to an orphan asylum. The Children's Bureau referred her to the association, whose officers have persuaded her, though under protest, to accept aid. She will continue to earn living expenses at her trade, necktiemaking. Contributions may be sent to Mrs. Samuel Florsheimer, 2 West Eighty-sixth Street.

Gustav Edward Kissel Very Low.

Gustav Edward Kissel, the banker, who is ill at his home at 15 West Sixteenth Street, was said by members of his family last night to be in the same condition he has been in for the last few days. He is very low, and death may come at any time.

ATTELL BOXES BURNS WITH ONE HAND

Champion Floors Opponent Twice While Injured Arm Is Helpless, but Loses Bout.

Fighting the last three rounds with his left hand hanging limply at his side, Abe Attell, the world's featherweight champion, again proved himself the pugilistic marvel of the age at the National Sporting Club last night, in his ten-round bout with Frankie Burns, the Jersey City bantam. For three full rounds Attell fought Burns with his right hand, and took all kinds of jabs, swings, and hooks to the head and stomach without even as much as raising the injured arm to guard himself. Hitting with the left hand was out of the question, and Attell made no effort to do so. Yet twice during the period he floored the eJrsey bantam with that trusty right, and in the ninth round period he floored the Jersey bantam with the right, while Burns, backed in a neutral corner, was trying to get over a telling wallop with either the right or left.

On points Burns had the call over the featherweight champion. From a standpoint of boxing alone, Frankie certainly landed oftener than his more experienced rival. But what his blows amounted to in number they lacked just as much in force. Few of them worried Attell enough to make him back up. Occasionally he was able to rock Abe's head with his shower of rights and lefts, but in the main these blows landed on Attell as the latter was going back, and did no damage. On the other hand, Attell's blows, coming much less often than those of Burns, counted heavily. Several times Abe shook up Burns from head to feet with his wicked right swings and jabs, and three times during the bout twice while fighting with one hand, Abe floored the Jersey boy. The knockdowns came in the ninth and tenth rounds, and on each occasion Burns was glad to take the count of nine. The wallop which sent Frankie to the canvas in the tenth round was the hardest delivered during the bout.

From every angle of the game Attell showed himself Burns's superior. In the open work Abe was able to evade the bulk of Frankie's swings so they did no damage, and at infighting—Frankie's long suit—the advantage was just as pronounced in favor of the champion. Up to the time of the injury Attell was able to greatly outpoint Burns, and did so without extending himself. In the clinches he had Burns sewed up so effectively that Frankie was able to do practically nothing. As for his work in the last three rounds, Attell was a marvel, both in giving punishment and in taking it. He was outpointed and punished in the last three rounds, but his ability to work as he did under the tremendous handicap earned him a world of praise.

At the conclusion of the bout, after shaking hands with Burns, Attell walked to his corner with an expression of the severest pain on his face. It became noticeable in the seventh round that Abe was doing little work with his left hand, but his face bore no evidence of any suffering, and there was no indication that he was in any pain until after the bout. But the limp left arm bore testimony to Attell's real condition. In the eighth round that arm never moved except when Burns raised it in the clinches, and many imagined that Attell was up to his old trick—stalling. His too apparent superiority over Burns in the earlier rounds made the crowd wonder at Abe's inactivity, and a few hisses and groans were heard from different parts of the house. Gradually the real condition of Attell's arm became manifest to the crowd and earlier feeling gave way to amazement that a boxer could put up such a battle against a boy of Burns's calibre.

The weight question made no difference with Attell, and but for his injury there would have been no question about the outcome. It was announced before the bout began that both boys had weighed in under 118 pounds, but Attell showed no signs of weakness from this low figure. Burns, as might be expected, was at his strongest at this mark, and his showing, especially under the double handicap which Attell's injury gave him, was somewhat of a disappointment to his host of admirers. If the arm gave way in the fourth round, as Attell announced after the bout, it did not noticeably affect the champion. The fifth and sixth rounds were easily the warmest of the fight, and in both of these sessions Abe used both hands hard and often, driving jabs to Frankie's head and hooks to the stomach, which plainly distressed the Jersey boy. The fast work in these two rounds undoubtedly put the finishing touches on the injured member, which was experiencing its first strain. Attell first suffered the injury in a bout with Tommy Kilbane in the West about three months ago.

Before the bout was put on a collection was taken up for the fire sufferers, and the sum of $620.67 was realized. As the members filed out Managing Director Tom O'Rourke, Inspector Walsh, and Dave Dunn were busy with pad and pencil taking down names.

WOLGAST WINS EASILY.

Lagrave's Seconds Throw Up the Sponge in the Fifth Round.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—Adolph Wolgast, the lightweight champion, had an easy time disposing of Anton Lagrave in their scheduled twenty-round bout here to-night. The champion led all the way, and in the fifth round Lagrave's seconds threw the sponge into the ring. The first round was not marked by any sensational work, but the honors belonged to Wolgast. In the second round he drove Lagrave around the ring, driving rights and lefts to the stomach in quick succession. At one time he drove Lagrave almost through the ropes and followed by flooring him. Lagrave was trembling when he faced Wolgast in the third round, and the champion had no trouble driving him around the ring. He was weak when he went to his corner.

The fourth and fifth rounds were of the same order until Lagrave's seconds threw up the sponge.

Queensboro Bouts a Fizzle.

The scheduled star bout at the Queensboro at the Queens end of the Fifty-ninth Street Bridge proved the worst kind of a fizzle, bringing together as it did Jack Ashley, a pick-up from the east side, with no knowledge of the game, and who was reputed to have boxed a draw with Wolgast, and Walter Hennessey. The latter toyed with his opponent for six rounds, and in the latter part of what proved the final round put him down several times, finally for the count.

Magistrate Refuses Fight Warrants.

Capt. McNally of the West Forty-seventh Street Station appeared in the West Side Court yesterday and asked for warrants for the arrests of the principals and the officials of the National Sporting Club in West Forty-fourth Street, he stating that he and Inspector Walsh had attended a boxing exhibition there and witnessed a fight. Magistrate Barlow refused the request, saying that Magistrate Harris had handed down a decision stating that the evidence was insufficient. The Captain stated that he had seen a fight, in which "Bert" Keyes had been knocked down, and that he had also seen blood drawn.

McFarland-Murphy Bout Postponed.

The Packy McFarland-Tommy Murphy bout, which was scheduled for next Thursday night at the Fairmont Athletic Club, has been postponed until April 18. McFarland wired yesterday morning that he could not get in condition by next Tuesday, and as both Murphy and McFarland have refused to indulge in any boxing during Holy Week it was agreed by all concerned that the bout should be held April 18. Murphy is in excellent condition, and is in no way responsible for the delay.

Thompson and Hugo Kelly Matched.

CHICAGO, March 31.—"Cyclone" Johnny Thompson, claimant of the middleweight championship, and Hugo Kelly of Chicago were matched yesterday to fight ten rounds in Milwaukee on April 28. The stipulated weight is 158 pounds at 3 o'clock.

Yale and Haverford Tie at Soccer.

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—Yale and Haverford played a tie game of soccer to-day on the Haverford College grounds. The score was 2 goals each.

HORSES PRESENTED TO ARMY

Notable Sportsmen Buy Jumpers to be Ridden by Army Officers in London.

That the United States Army might be properly represented in the military and other events at the International Horse Show in London next June, the following public-spirited gentlemen and sportsmen—Walter P. Bliss, John E. Cowdin, Robert A. Fairbairn, Joseph W. Harriman, William H. Moore, Rufus L. Patterson, Alfred G. Vanderbilt, all of New York, and John A. Spoor of Chicago—have formed themselves into a committee to purchase and present to the United States Army the best hunters and jumpers that could be found in America regardless of cost. That the horses might be selected with care and good judgment, John E. Cowdin, Elliot C. Cowdin, James T. Hyde, and Major Henry T. Allen, representing the United States Army, were deputed to make the selection, and after seeing numerous horses, they purchased for the committee the following horses: Justine, Duke of Ashleigh, Timberlost, Tampico, Tony Lass, Chiswell, Quandry, Knight of Elway, and St. Nicholas II.

All of these horses have been winners in the show ring or in the field. The first five were bought in Virginia, the others in New York and vicinity. Duke of Ashleigh, Chiswell, and St. Nicholas II. will make ideal chargers. As well as being clever hunters, Justine, Timberlost, Tony Lass, and Tampico are brilliant jumpers. Knight of Elway has won many steeplechases, and Quandry will be hard to beat in the high jumping competitions. All these horses are now located at Fort Myer, where they will be schooled over jumps built over a course similar to that at Olympia. It is hoped and believed that with these mounts the United States Army will return with many blue ribbons.

Gen. Leonard Wood, Chief of Staff, has evinced great interest in the coming event, and will select the best officers to ride in the several competitions.

A letter of invitation has been officially sent by the English Government to Washington asking that United States cavalry officers may be allowed to compete. The officers going will be guests of the International Horse Show during their stay in England.

FEW TROUT IN LONG ISLAND.

Brooklyn Water Works Have Dried Up Many Streams—Season Opens.

The trout season opened yesterday on Long Island. Hundreds of fishermen who got up early to fill their creels were disappointed. The fishing has not been so poor in Long Island's trout streams for a score of years. This is due not only to the whipping of the streams out of season by boys, or even to the infrequent stocking of the streams, but to the fact that, in the western part of the island at least, the Brooklyn city water works have dried up many of the streams.

Not a few streams that formerly had an average depth of from six inches to two or three feet, are now either entirely dry or so nearly dry that no fish could live in them.

In some of the preserved streams club members caught good messes of trout yesterday, and some of the Suffolk County streams yielded good catches. The opening day, however, was disappointing as a whole. A high wind prevailed, interfering with casting a line, and the fishermen suffered from the cold.

Efforts are being made in many quarters to restock the trout streams of Long Island.

EQUITABLE TRUST UNDER NEW CONTROL

Block of 14,531 Shares Held by Equitable Life Bought for "Directors and Others."

MORGAN DID NOT OPPOSE

Purpose Said to be to Maintain Independence and Avoid Domination by One Interest.

Alvin W. Krech made formal announcement yesterday of his purchase from the Equitable Life of the 14,531 shares of Equitable Trust Company stock, which represent control. The price paid was $500 a share, and the total purchase price was $7,265,500. This stock is being placed by Mr. Krech among Directors of the Equitable Trust and others, with a view, Mr. Krech said, of maintaining the trust company as an independent institution, and with the object of avoiding the domination of any one interest. Neither J. P. Morgan & Co. nor Kuhn, Loeb & Co., it was made known, is taking part in the purchase of this stock, though Kuhn, Loeb & Co. have long held a substantial block of Equitable Trust stock.

The coincidence of this purchase with the reports from Washington that Attorney General Wickersham has been considering the possibility of putting some check on the concentration of banking power in this city, was not lost sight of in yesterday's discussion of the fact that the Morgan banking group made no effort to prevent the passing of control of this trust company from the Equitable Life to a group of Directors in the trust company and others in no way closely allied with the Morgan interests. The Morgan bankers were conversant with the negotiations for the purchase, and because of the close relations existing between them and the Equitable Life could, it is believed, have successfully opposed the passing of control to other interests.

As no objection was raised it was regarded yesterday as the more interesting because of the recent comments passed upon the concentration of control of many institutions in the hands of a single banking group, and because of the suggestion from Washington that this concentration was attracting the attention of the Administration's advisers.

Information that some of the stock of the Equitable Trust, which has just been sold by the Equitable Life, will be placed with interests not now represented in the Board of Directors of the Equitable Trust suggested the possibility that some new Directors may be elected to the board of that institution. Who these may be, however, was not indicated yesterday.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

Business holds better in prospect than in actual performance, for confidence in the future is greater than present activity. Weather conditions are retarding retail distribution, but the rain and snow in the Northwest have improved the wheat outlook there, and altogether the crop prospects are generally very favorable; and if these prospects are confirmed the new wealth thus created and the exportable surplus thus supplied will make for national prosperity. The hopeful crop outlook, together with the notable increase in exports and the creation of large credits abroad, are responsible for the increased confidence that generally prevails and that has served to bring about the improvement shown in the first quarter of the year. The lower price for cottons has not materially expanded activity, but the market is somewhat firmer. There have also been some large transactions in domestic wool.

Some improvement is noted in boots and shoes, but prices show slight recession. Railroad earnings for three weeks of March show a decrease of 2.8 per cent., but recent statements indicate that railroad economies are working for better results in net earnings. Bank clearings continue on about the same scale as in the recent past. There were during the latest week decreases of 5.9 per cent. outside New York, and of 13.6 per cent. in New York, as compared with 1910, while as compared with 1909 they declined 15 9 per cent. in New York and gained 4.4 per cent. outside. Exports from the port of New York for the recent week were $16,410,490 against $16,036,487 in 1910 and $12,526,589 in 1909. Imports were $21,324,701, comparing with $22,565,909 in 1910 and with $17,549,234 in 1909.

Bradstreet's says:

Trade reports are similar in tenor to those of recently preceding weeks in that they continue to tell of the prevalence of quiet conditions. This disappointing situation is offset to some extent by good crop reports, which indicate that Winter wheat is in fine shape, considering the poor start it received when first planted. Moreover, preparations for spring work have been advanced in various sections by much-needed moisture, although there are some few points where rain is still badly wanted. These developments, together with prospects for larger cotton, corn, and oats areas, forms the bright features of an otherwise relatively backward season.

House trade in such lines as bleached cotton sheetings and cambrics has been stimulated by a recent cut in prices, which brings the quotations of such materials below the cost of making the goods from raw cotton previously purchased at high levels. In other respects the dry goods trade is quiet, and buyers continue to purchase only as their near requirements demand. On the other hand, women's wearing apparel and millinery trades are active, but clothing and men's furnishings remain quiet. Drugs are also active, and there is more doing in the building line, but operations in this latter line will probably not be so active as they were last year.

Retail trade has not improved with the progress of the season, a recurrence of cold, damp weather having put a crimp in operations. Trade in groceries, furniture, and the like is very dull in the industrial sections, and flour meets with slow sale, for buyers continue to be influenced by the downward tendency of cereal prices. Country trade remains dull, and naturally so, because farmers are busily engaged with field work. Farm products are lower, and the cost of living, based on wholesale prices, is much cheaper, but retail dealers, as a rule, hold their quotations quite firmly, except where competition is keen, and as a result the so-called ultimate consumer does not gain the full benefits caused by the recessions in commodity prices.

Weekly Failure Report.

Bradstreet's reports 260 business failures in the United States during the week, against 235 for the previous week and 232, 204, 247, and 137 for the corresponding weeks of 1910 to 1907. The Middle States had 79, New England 23, Southern 68, Western 51, Northwestern 15, Far West 24, and Territories 0. Canada had 26, against 24 for the preceding week. About 82 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less and 13 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

LEADERSHIP IN HIGH GRADE ADVERTISING

In March The New York Times published 721,900 lines of advertisements, compared with 682,250 lines in March 1910—a gain of 39,650 lines, another chapter in the progress of The New York Times as a leader in high grade advertising.

There are only three morning newspapers in New York that sell a million copies every seven days to the metropolitan newsdealers. The New York Times is one of them. Of the four other morning newspapers in New York City, the most largely circulated one sells less than half a million copies to the metropolitan newsdealers.

The New York Times prints a greater volume of display advertising than any other newspaper in New York.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following Foreign Trade Opportunities abroad. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

6,468. CINEMATOGRAPHS AND SUPPLIES.—An American Consul in Asia Minor reports that during the past year a number of buildings were erected devoted exclusively to cinematograph exhibitions and minor theatricals. The performances are frequented by all classes and are very popular. The views generally shown are of French, Italian, and German manufacture, but a few American scenes have been well received. A large concrete structure is soon to be erected for shows of this nature, and it might be well for American manufacturers of films and other supplies to correspond with the persons managing these enterprises with a view to furnishing them with some of their supplies.

6,469. FEATHERS.—A business man in Italy informs an American consular officer that he is desirous of entering into communication with American exporters of feathers with a view to securing the agency for that country.

6,470. AMERICAN GOODS FOR ASIA MINOR.—An American Consul in Asia Minor writes that a prominent local exporter of wool, &c., to the United States is about to open an importing bureau, and is desirous of receiving catalogues from American manufacturers of agricultural machinery and implements, gas and gasoline engines, hardware, and shoes. Such catalogues as were on file in the consulate were given to the person referred to, but it is desirable that new catalogues be sent and correspondence opened preferably in French.

6,471. WOODEN DOORS.—A business firm in England has made application to an American consular officer for the names and addresses of American manufacturers of wooden doors to be used in the construction of houses. The officer writes that a number of names have been supplied from directories at hand, but inasmuch as the concern contemplates doing considerable business in the line indicated, it is deemed advisable to call the attention of manufacturers in the United States to the opportunity presented.

6,472. FRUITS.—A report from an American consular officer in a European country states that the leading importer in his country of fruits of all kinds, fresh as well as dried and evaporated, desires correspondence with American exporters of such goods.

6,473. REPRESENTATION IN GREAT BRITAIN.—An American Consul in Great Britain reports that a university student in the United States expects to spend the coming Summer in England, and desires to represent an American house already interested in foreign trade or desiring to introduce a line of American goods. He has had business experience and suggests that small novelties in the way of labor-saving devices for household purposes would find a good market in that country.

6,474. CATALOGUES AND PRICE LISTS OF AMERICAN GOODS.—A report from an American consulate in a South American country states that a firm in that region is desirous of receiving catalogues and price lists covering surgical instruments and hospital installations, sanitary and laboratory articles, engineering instruments, and scientific articles in general.

6,475. KINDERGARTEN BOOKS.—A kindergarten teacher in a city of South Africa informs an American Consul that she wishes to correspond with a publisher in the United States of kindergarten books or a dealer in the same. She would like to be supplied with sample pages from several books at an early date.

6,476. DRUGS FOR RUSSIA.—An American consulate in Russia reports that a business man in his district desires the names of responsible wholesale American firms which would be interested in exporting direct to that country radix hydrastis canadensis, castoreum canadensis, balsamum canadensis, and cascara sagrada. The imports of the first-named article, chiefly through German and English houses, amount to 20,000 to 25,000 kilos yearly.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Old Gunny Jute Bagging Is Granted Free Entry as "Rags."

The attempt of the Government to upset the practice of many years in the customs classification of old gunny bagging made of jute, failed yesterday when the Board of United States General Appraisers sustained a claim for free entry made by Oberle & Henry. The case was in the nature of a test of the rag and waste provisions of the tariff act of 1909. Many witnesses, particularly from the South, were examined for and against free entry.

The test case included 582 bales of bagging, which were assessed for duty by the Collector of Customs at New Orleans, under Paragraph 479 of the Payne-Aldrich tariff specifying "waste not specially provided for," with duty at the rate of 10 per cent. on the value of the merchandise. The importers set up two claims for free entry. One under the tariff's paragraph for "old gunny bags used chiefly for papermaking," and an alternative allegation for exemption from duty as "rags, not otherwise specially provided for." Judge Somerville, who writes the decision, which is coincided in by General Appraisers Waite and Hay, sustains the claim for exemption as "rags."

The decision remarks that the first question to be determined is whether or not old bagging of this description is used chiefly for paper making for other purposes. The importers claimed that the board's inquiry must be confined only to old bagging actually imported into this country from abroad, while the Government on the contrary contended that the chief use is to be determined by the use of goods precisely similar or identical, whether of domestic or of foreign origin.

Judge Somerville, while sustaining the importers' contention for free entry of the bagging as "rags, not specially provided for," denies the claim for exemption for bagging as "used chiefly for paper making." The testimony in the test case shows that it is not customary for manufacturers of old bagging to trace its origin as being domestic or foreign. The decision refers to the principles enunciated in the case of Meyer vs. Cadwalader, in which it is held that the chief or predominant use to which an article is applied, determines its classification, although it may be commonly, generally and practically, and not merely exceptionally, used for other purposes. The chief or predominant use meant is that which is in ordinary language so-called. Judge Somerville holds that to confine an inquiry to the use only of imported goods would not only be impracticable, but would operate to read into the tariff act words not put there by Congress.

It was also brought out at the hearing that fragments of old bagging are used for various other purposes than the manufacture of paper. It is used for the manufacture of what is known as rewoven bagging for covering cotton, for the making of plumbers' oakum, and for making waste used for stuffing mattresses, as well as for waste designed for pads for horses. From the testimony the board concludes that the evidence shows satisfactorily that over 27,000 tons of similar bagging were used for purposes other than paper making, while the importers succeeded in showing that about 7,500 tons were used for the manufacture of paper.

In other words, approximately about four times as much of the merchandise was shown to be used for other purposes than for the manufacture of paper. The testimony leaves no doubt in the opinion of the board that the merchandise is not for paper making. In sustaining the importers' claim for free entry as "rags not specially provided for," the decision says:

"It must be kept in mind that the attempt of the Government in this case is to controvert a decision heretofore made by the Circuit Court and followed in numerous instances by the board, relating to the classification of what are known as a species of rags. The argument is very forcible as presented by the importers that Congress in passing the tariff act of 1909 has re-enacted practically word for word Paragraph 648 of the tariff act of 1897. This re-enactment by legal intendment necessarily carries with it the construction placed upon that paragraph by the Circuit Court, unless the testimony is sufficient to clearly show error in such classification.

"It is needless to review the testimony in detail of the numerous witnesses who were examined at the hearing. It suffices to say it is not satisfactory to justify us in overruling the interpretation settled heretofore by the court and by the board, and uniformly followed for the last five or six years. The protest claiming the merchandise free as rags is sustained, but is overruled on all other grounds. The Collector's decision is reversed, with instructions to reliquidate the entries accordingly."

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The twenty-eight-mile section of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railroad between San Angelo and Mertzon, Texas, will be opened for traffic to-day.

The $1,115,000 5 per cent. equipment notes of the American Refrigerator Transit Company, recently offered by William Salomon & Co. and G. H. Walker & Co. of St. Louis, have all been sold, the bankers announced yesterday.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—The wheat market after declining to new low levels rallied slightly, but final quotations were at the lowest prices of any closing so far on the movement. The opening was steady at little decline, but there was no support, and with continuation of bearish conditions the market steadily worked down. The weakness of the cables was supplemented by favorable weather conditions in the Northwest and advices of improving Winter wheat conditions. Foreign statistics were moderately bearish, owing to a decrease in shipments from other countries. Argentine exports were 2,624,000 bushels, against 4,636,000 bushels the previous week. Indian, 536,000 bushels, against 1,552,000 bushels, and Australian, 1,864,000, against 2,000,000 bushels. Bradstreet's American shipments were 5,676,000 bushels, against corrected figures for last week of 2,326,000 bushels. The indication for the world's exports was about 12,800,000 bushels, against 14,490,000 bushels last week. The weather map showed further rains in the American and Canadian Northwest, and the reports on the condition of the growing crop of Winter wheat were excellent. A report by a Western house made a condition of 83.8, against 82.5 in December and 93.8 last year. Abandon acreage, Kansas 10 per cent., Oklahoma 22 per cent., Texas, 17 per cent., with very little elsewhere. The cash market was nominal. No. 2 red was quoted at 92½c, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.04; No. 2 hard Winter, 98c, and No. 1 Manitoba, 91.

CORN.—The corn market was moderately active and weaker. Prices were influenced by the heaviness in wheat and the predictions of increased country movement. Cash markets were lower at the West, and the cash demand continues slow. The exports for the week were reported 1,725,000 bushels, against 1,513,000 bushels the previous week. There were no Argentine exports. A little export business, about fifteen loads, was reported at New York. No. 2 corn was quoted at 62½c, free on board; export, 61½c; No. 4, 48¾c, all in elevator; export rate.

OATS.—The oats market was quiet and somewhat easier, reflecting an easier tone in other markets and selling was also influenced to some extent by the favorable weather report from the Northwest and the encouraging advices as to the progress of Spring work in the Central West. At the previous low levels support was given and the close was steady. Cash oats were quiet, with standards, 38¾c; No. 2 white, 39¾c, and No. 3 white, 35½c.

PROVISIONS were fairly active, losing a good portion of the rally of Thursday. The live hog market was unsettled and lower, and the receipts were fairly liberal at Western packing centres. Selling was quite liberal and the demand of a rather unsatisfactory volume. The close was at about the low point.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Trading continues in heavy volume and it is apparent that operators are much confused as to the origin of many of the orders. There has been heavy buying recently credited to refining interests, and although on Thursday the market advanced 20 points from the low, half of this gain had been effaced at last night's close. At the end of yesterday's session reports of 40c having been bid for crude oil brought about a higher opening, but there was heavy selling on the advance and on the scale down by large interests who were identified on the buying side last Thursday. The weakness in lard, decline in tallow to new low records, and sagging tendency of greases in general were factors toward the decline. Crude, according to locality, quoted at 5.33c@5.40c. COTTON.

A heavy undertone prevailed during the entire session, and while at times there were feeble rallies, the tendency of offerings to increase on these bulges was quite pronounced, and naturally the assumption was that cotton was coming from important sources or else a new bear pool has been formed. In regard to the latter, some interests entertain the opinion Memphis is co-operating with Wall Street, and it is further asserted that while there has been liquidation in May and July, particularly in the latter month, it is not improbable that May will be advanced later in the season.

At all events, it is evident that the strong statistical position at present is not having appreciable effect on sentiment, or at least on market operations, as for the third consecutive time week-end figures have failed to have important effect. There was some steadiness displayed at the start of the session on expectations of a good statistical showing, and although the Liverpool future market acted disappointingly to holders during the day, there was a private cable received stating that Manchester last week did a very large business with China and India. It was also cabled that Russia continues to show a good demand for foreign crop option deliveries, but it was observed that those months were the weakest in the late foreign trading.

Sentiment is rather bearish, ostensibly because the statistical situation is not acute enough at present to stimulate confidence, especially in view of trade advices, the unfavorable state of which are being reflected in reduced or passed dividend announcements coming from mill centres. The favorable crop prospects are also retarding buying other than what is immediately required in this country and abroad, with mail advices from France, Italy, and Australia rather pessimistic in regard to spinning operations. Liverpool weekly letters were mixed in expressing opinions, and, as in local sources, bulls are basing their contentions upon the statistical situation, while liberal European stocks and good weather in the American South represents the influencing factors among the bears.

New York stocks showed the first increase noted in nearly two months, but this was small. In view of the fact that official quotations at Southern spot markets range generally from 14½c to 14¾c, it is rather difficult to conceive just how cotton can be delivered locally, but nevertheless usually well-informed authorities are steadily maintaining that cotton can be procured at many Southern points below values officially quoted. Southern spot markets yesterday were unchanged to ⅛c advance, with New York spot cotton quiet at a 5 point decline; middling uplands, 14.40c. Spinners' takings of American cotton for the week were 219,000 bales, against 253,000 bales last week, and 160,000 bales last year. Into sight, as given by the Cotton Exchange, 92,000 bales, against 101,000 bales last year. Since Sept. 1, 1,618,000 bales more have been brought into sight than a year ago, with exports 1,670,000 bales greater for the period. The visible of American cotton showed a decrease of 127,000 bales, against 163,000 bales decrease last week, and a decrease of 59,000 bales last year.

BANKS REPORT CASH LOSS

Week's Currency Movements Result in Drain of About $1,500,000—Bank Clearings of the Week Show Quiet Trade.

After a long spell of dullness in trading and uncertain price movements the stock market turned weak late in the afternoon yesterday and closed with prices off substantially from Thursday's last quotations. Disinterested observers of the trading on the floor of the Exchange commenting on the selling which brought about the late declines attributed it to speculators for the fall who were taking advantage of certain unfavorable features of the day's news. The possibility of decisions from the Supreme Court when it comes together again on Monday in the anti-trust suits was one of the factors made use of, while more direct ammunition was furnished by the day's dispatches from Washington concerning an investigation by the Attorney General of the United States into the banking situation here in New York. The reports regarding the step conflicted. It was indicated in one, for example, that it was the purpose of Democrats in Congress to demand such an investigation, while in another dispatch the assertion was made that Mr. Wickersham would undertake the task upon his own initiative. Perhaps as a shrewd guess as any would be that with the Presidential campaign only a little over a year away both parties are disposed to indulge in what is known in the political vocabulary as "haymaking." It is extremely unfortunate, however, that this process should involve even the suggestion of a prejudiced inquiry into banking conditions here, and it is to be hoped that before the matter goes further the sober second thought of the leaders of both parties will suggest the abandonment of the design for the good of everybody. There was little real news of direct concern to the markets aside from the indefinite reports mentioned. Several additional railroad earnings statements for February were turned in, showing in most cases such economy in operation as to offset losses in gross returns, an exception here, however, being the February statement of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, with excellent gains in both gross and net earnings. The section of the country in which this road operates is better off in respect to business activity than in many other parts of the country—a fact plainly brought out by the week-end compilations of bank clearings, where further shrinkage in exchanges in all the leading cities and trade districts is found.

Preliminary estimates of the currency movements of the week foreshadowed a loss of some $1,500,000 by the banks, an amount below expectations in view of the drain of above $7,000,000 suffered by the Sub-Treasury on routine transactions. From the interior direct the banks secured above $6,000,000 on the week, an increase of $1,300,000 over the similar income a week ago, and were thus able to offset most of the Sub-Treasury loss. The interesting fact connected with the money situation as a whole, however, continues to be the persistent sagging of quotations for time money. This tendency at a moment when the great April dividend and interest disbursements are under preparation reveals the strength of the position.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 31.—Heaviness was the general tendency on the local Exchange to-day, with concessions most marked in the elevated issues. The selling emanated from interests which until now have been steady buyers of the shares, and accompanied advices from the East that nothing definite can be announced at this time regarding the merger. Northwestern common and preferred each lost a point, while Metropolitan Elevated common sank more than that. There was an advance of 2 points in National Biscuit, but Sears-Roebuck was off a point. Booth Fisheries common rose almost 2. The report current that the National Biscuit is planning to increase its capital stock $10,000,000, giving $5,000,000 to the shareholders as a bonus and permitting them to subscribe for the remainder at par, was denied by an officer of the company to-day, who stated that no capital increase is contemplated.

Pennsylvania February Earnings.

The combined earnings of the Pennsylvania Railroad lines east and west of Pittsburg for February show a decrease of $1,872,382 in gross and a loss of $1,631,158 in net. This brings the loss in gross from Jan. 1 this year up to $3,033,-[illegible] and the loss in net up to $3,739,517. The loss in net for the two months exceeds by $1,000,000 the net earnings for the month of February, which amounted to $[illegible],133. On the lines east of Pittsburg the operating expenses in February were larger than in February a year ago, although the amount of traffic handled was reduced by $980,000. On the western lines, however, the reduction in gross receipts was partly offset by a decrease in operating expenses. In this respect, however, improvement was shown, compared with the month of January, when a much heavier increase in operating expenses was reported on the eastern lines, and when the western lines, instead of the decrease shown in February, reported an increase in this item.

American Woolen Stock Purchase.

It was from the estate of the late Wm. B. Leeds that the American Woolen Company, at least indirectly, acquired a great deal of the stock which the company proposes to retire, according to reports current in Boston yesterday and telegraphed to the financial district here. It was said that Mr. Leeds accumulated 50,000 shares of the stock, some of it at prices as high as $40 a share, and that after his death the stock was disposed of at prices ranging from $15 to $20 a share. This block of stock equals half the number of shares which the American Woolen Company purchased. Along with other stock it is said to have been purchased for the company in the open market.

Leanest March Since 1897.

Accustomed as the commission houses and traders have become to stagnation in the stock market, it is still somewhat startling to realize by a comparison of the stock market totals completed yesterday for March with those of previous years, that not in fourteen years has the Exchange passed through such a period of stagnation in this month. The total transactions on the Exchange in the month just closed totaled 6,920,788 shares, which compare with 32,250,842 shares in 1907, the banner year for this month, and are 8,071,113 shares less than the transactions of March, 1910. Compared with February last, March showed a decline in activity of 3,250,820 shares. In 1898 the transactions in March were just about one-third larger than those of the month just closed, and in the period of activity in business and of public interest in the stock market, which continued for the following decade, transactions never fell below 11,000,000 in March, and have averaged for the twelve years from 1899 to 1910 about 18,000,000 shares. Bond trading showed less of a decline, the aggregate of $63,979,000 being less than the total of February by only $8,704,000, and $11,512,800 less than March, 1910. The low ebb in March transactions in the bond market was reached in 1904, when the total was $46,770,500. The high record was $132,401,020, made in 1901.

Another Loss for Curb.

When the last batch of Curb stocks disappeared from the outside market into the fold of the Stock Exchange, Curb brokers cheered themselves with the fact that the Lewisohn mining stocks were still left them and were likely to stay awhile. With transactions running around 25,000 or 30,000 shares a day compared with the 150,000 and 200,000 share markets with which the year started off, it was hard for outside brokers to be cheerful yesterday when the news came over the ticker than Miami Copper had applied for listing.

Bank Profits in Pittsburg.

The concentration of the money power in New York, which has been remarked by Attorney General Wickersham, apparently does not prevent the National banks in outside cities from earning satisfactory returns for stockholders. The stock dividend of 50 per cent. just declared by the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburg would be liberal even for New York. The dividend represents the distribution of $2,000,000 in increased capital stock among shareholders, which will bring the total capitalization up to $6,000,000. The dividend, which is paid out of surplus, leaves that item at $1,300,000. Incidentally, since the bank was organized as a National institution in 1902 it has earned 112½ per cent. on its original capital of $6,000,000.

Cash Inflow Cuts Sub-Treasury Loss.

Visible receipts of $13,116,000 from the interior against shipments of approximately $6,824,000, leaving a gain of $6,292,000, largely offset a debit balance of the banks to the Sub-Treasury, which amounted to $9,008,000. The loss was further reduced by receipts of new gold amounting to $1,802,000, and as estimated yesterday would prove to be something under $1,000,000.

INSPECT BUSH TERMINAL.

Bond Selling Houses Look Over Property on Which Bond Issue Is Made.

A tour of supervision under the inspection of Spencer Trask & Co. was made through the large South Brooklyn factories and loft buildings of the Bush Terminal Company yesterday, to aid the salesmen of F. J. Lisman, Spencer Trask & Co., and several other large bond houses in disposing of $4,000,000 5 per cent. first mortgage bonds recently issued by the Bush Terminal Buildings Company, a subsidiary of the Bush Terminal Company.

T. Irving Bush personally conducted the party and pointed out the advantages of the location for manufacturers and wholesalers as regards shipping facilities, sanitary conditions, and economy.

This $4,000,000 bond issue, which is managed by F. J. Lisman & Co., is part of a $12,000,000 authorized issuance, the proceeds of which will be used for further development in the building of factories, loft buildings, and warehouses.

After several hours' inspection the entire party went to the Crescent Athletic Club for luncheon, after which Mr. Bush made a short address, explaining the future plans of his company.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—Reflecting the heaviness of the New York market, local stocks were nearly all somewhat depressed this morning, but nothing approaching real weakness developed, except Lake Superior, and offerings were exceedingly small, the volume of dealings showing no improvement over recent sessions. As a whole, the tractions were rather heavy, and in the afternoon Lehigh Valley Transit, both common and preferred, receded moderately.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Syndicate of N. Y. Capitalists Buy Site for Million Dollar Hotel at Great Neck, L. I.—Y. W. C. A. to Erect New Building—Loft for Lenox Mansion Site.

Ten acres of land have been bought at Great Neck by a syndicate of New York capitalists for the purpose of erecting one of the finest all-the-year-round hotels in the country. The site selected is one of the loftiest parts of the estates of Great Neck, a 450-acre tract bought over a year ago by the McKnight Realty Company for development along high-class lines. Negotiations have been in progress for some time and the sale was closed with the McKnight Realty Company this week. Frank M. Andrews, the architect, who designed the new $5,000,000 Hotel McAlpin on Broadway and Thirty-fourth Street, is preparing plans for this new Long Island hostelry. Mr. Andrews was one of the promoters in the Greeley Square Hotel Company which is building the McAlpin Hotel, and it is understood that many of the members in that syndicate are also in the company interested in the Great Neck Hotel.

Although few details could be learned yesterday, it is understood to be the object of the promoters to make the new house the finest on Long Island. The hotel will be absolutely fireproof, containing 300 rooms or more, and it has been leased for a long term by the Lannin Company, which manages the Garden City Hotel, and recently took charge of the Great Northern Hotel in Fifty-seventh Street.

The entire investment, including land and furnishings, will be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. Work is to begin early this Spring, and by May 1, 1912, the new hotel will be ready for occupancy. The situation chosen for the house is one of the most picturesque on Long Island. It is right in the heart of the most attractive north shore country, abounding with good automobile roads, with many big estates near-by. A good hotel on the north shore of Long Island has long been demanded.

An old house on the property bought by the hotel company will be moved and converted into a clubhouse. Golf links will also be laid out. The hotel will be within a few hundred feet of the shore of Little Neck Bay, and will command a wide vista over the Sound and surrounding country.

Small Broadway Lot Sold.

There were several sales in the lower part of the city yesterday, the most important of which was 454 Broadway, a five-story business building on a lot 25 by 100.

ROBIN BANK LENT TO KELSEY AND MERRITT

Ex-Insurance Head Got $22,500 and Assembly Minority Leader $500, Which He Paid.

CUMMINS A HEAVY BORROWER

But Northern Bank's Biggest Loans Went to Robin Himself, Who Paid Only 4 Per Cent.

The syndicate of bankers headed by William J. Cummins were heavy borrowers in Joseph G. Robin's Northern Bank. This fact was disclosed yesterday when the inventory of assets of the Northern Bank was filed in the County Clerk's office by the State Banking Department. Although Robin's $130,000 loan to the Carnegie Trust Company, following his conference with City Chamberlain Hyde, Cummins and Joseph B. Reichmann, was well known, the public was unaware that the Cummins syndicate borrowed heavily in 1910 from the Northern Bank on notes, several of which were unsecured by collateral.

The filing of the inventory also disclosed that Otto Kelsey, former State Superintendent of Insurance, borrowed $22,500 from the Northern Bank. Edwin A. Merritt, Jr., minority leader of the Assembly, borrowed $500. The note, which was fully secured, has been paid since the Northern Bank closed. State Senator Timothy D. Sullivan's name occurs often in the list of time and demand notes held by the Northern Bank.

The heaviest borrower was Robin himself. Notes bearing the name of Robin or his various concerns as maker or indorser in the Northern Bank amount to more than a quarter of a million dollars. Anthony Stumpf, a Director, and James T. Wood, Vice President of the bank, also were heavy borrowers.

While all the outstanding loans made by the Northern Bank are included in the inventory filed yesterday, there is no intimation as to what the closed institution will pay to depositors. The total assets are put at $7,073,598.91, but no mention is made of the liabilities. The schedule of assets shows: Bills discounted, $2,928,149; time loans, $493,250; demand loans, $689,712; stocks and bonds, $80,636; real estate, $144,310; furniture and fixtures, $39,005.

The $22,500 borrowed by Mr. Kelsey was in two loans. The first, for $20,000, under date of July 29, 1910, was secured by 140 shares of stock of the Huguenot Trust Company of New Rochelle, of which W. E. Holloway, former President of the Hungarian-American Bank, is now an official. This first loan to Mr. Kelsey was made about six months after he quit the job of State Superintendent of Insurance to accept the Presidency of the Aetna Indemnity Company, a Robin concern, whose embarrassment brought on the crash.

The second Kelsey loan was on a note for $2,500, under date of Nov. 17, 1910, and bearing no indorsement. It is listed among the bills discounted of the Northern Bank.

Listed close by the Kelsey loan is a note bearing the name of William McAdoo for $250. This note was made on March 28, 1910, and is indorsed by John A. L. Campbell and F. C. Menair. It is also secured by two $500 bonds of the Gypsum Manufacturing Company. There is nothing to indicate the identity of William McAdoo.

The Cummins Borrowings.

The Cummins syndicate loans are scattered through the time and demand lists and among the bills discounted. One of these so-called Cummins syndicate loans was on a note bearing the name of O. J. Walsh, as maker, and guaranteed by Cummins, Reichmann, Martin J. Condon, and Charles A. Moore, Jr. The amount of the note was $66,980, and it was made on Aug. 31, 1910. It is secured by 620 shares of Carnegie Trust stock.

Another loan listed as a Cummins syndicate loan was on a note bearing the name of William K. Weaver, as maker, and indorsed by Reichmann alone. The amount was $30,000 and the date of the demand note Oct. 7, 1910.

Two notes bearing the indorsement of the Cummins syndicate were made in the name of B. F. O'Neill of Idaho. One was for $38,268, under date of Oct. 8, 1910, and the other was for $88,276, on Oct. 10, 1910.

Liston L. Lewis, a Carnegie Trust Company Director, appears as guaranteeing a note for $2,500 in the name of R. V. Lyle, President of the Great Eastern Clay Company, a Robin concern.

Then come the Robin loans. With few exceptions the rate of interest charged by the Northern Bank on time and demand loans was 6 per cent. But Robin was to pay only 4 per cent. Robin's first two loans on the list aggregate $247,950. He borrowed $88,700 on a note bearing the maker's name as Joseph G. Robin, "syndicate manager." The note was under date of Sept. 20, 1910. On the same day he borrowed on another note $159,250. Among the collateral was 10,000 shares of Barnes-King Development Company stock in the name of Arthur P. Heinze.

The next Robin loans listed were made in the name of the Bankers' Realty and Security Company on two notes amounting to $65,100. These were also negotiated in September, 1910. In November of that year James T. Wood borrowed $42,300 on a collateral note. He, like Robin, was accommodated with a 4 per cent. interest rate. Some of the Robin collateral consisted of Heinze mining stock, but most of it was stock or bonds of his own concerns. A loan of $38,500 was made in the name of Theodore Werner on the same day Robin borrowed $247,950 in his own name. The Werner note is secured by so-called Heinze stock.

The name of F. Augustus Heinze also appears in the inventory of assets. He is down as maker of a note for $44,516, bearing date of March 7, 1907. This note was carried over from the old Hamilton Bank, which was absorbed by Robin.

Among the bills discounted on file are two notes made by Abraham Rabinowitz for $300. The authorities are trying to find out if the maker of these notes is a relative of Robbin. Herman Rabinovitch of Brooklyn contends that Robin is his son.

A note bearing the name of F. C. Smith as maker is being investigated. This note was for $600 and was made on Dec. 6, 1910. The interest of the authorities was aroused because a note for $4,000 by J. V. Smith was found in the Carnegie Trust Company. J. V. Smith is City Chamberlain Hyde's secretary. His note was paid a few days after the City Chamberlain returned from his Southern ducking trip in January last.

Mets an Indorser.

Among the indorsements of politicans found on notes in the Northern Bank were the names of Timothy Hayes and Thomas F. Ahearn. These two were indorsers on a $25,000 note made in November, 1910, by the J. Hayes Printing Company. "Big Tim" Sullivan and his business partner, George J. Kraus, appear both as indorsers and borrowers. Former City Controller Herman A. Metz appears as indorser on two notes amounting to $10,000 in the name of B. Clifford Kline.

Assemblyman Merritt's note for $500 was secured by 1,000 shares of Imperial Road Company stock, the value of which was listed at $10,000. The Merritt note was made on Oct. 18, 1910, and fell due on Jan. 3, 1911.

Nine notes, aggregating $83,000, stand in the name of Anthony Stumpf and the Anthony Stumpf Publishing Company. Some were made direct to the publishing company and were indorsed by Stumpf, others in Stumpf's name as maker, and indorsed by the publishing company. Mr. Stumpf was a member of the Discount Board of the Northern Bank.

The inventory shows $915,906 due the Northern Bank from other banks and trust companies. Among these amounts due are listed $194,319 from the Empire Trust Company, $288,811 from the Carnegie Trust Company, $71,293 from the National Reserve Bank, and $205,119 from the Merchants Exchange National Bank. The amount of cash on hand when the Northern Bank closed its doors on Dec. 27 was listed at $1,039,679.98.

Hears Montgomery's Story.

There was no Grand Jury investigation of the Carnegie Trust tangle yesterday, but Assistant District Attorney John K. Clark was busy listening to an interesting story of general banking methods told him by William R. Montgomery, former President of the old Hamilton Bank, and who was convicted and sentenced to two years' imprisonment for larceny in connection with his administration of the Hamilton.

The questions which will be directed at several bank Presidents next week, when they appear before the Grand Jury, will be based largely upon what the District Attorney and his assistant have learned from Montgomery and Robin. Mr. Whitman will leave this morning for Boston, where he is to act as a judge in a debate by Yale, Harvard, and Princeton.

While the investigators were going through the Northern Bank assets yesterday afternoon about fifty representatives of banks, trust companies, and bond houses gathered in the Directors' room of the Carnegie Trust to submit bids for a large block of city and State bonds held by the Carnegie, which had been offered for sale by George W. Egbert of the State Banking Department, acting receiver.

The hour for opening the bids had been set for 1 o'clock. Each of the bids was in writing. Just as the sealed bids were being submitted, one of the bidders suggested that he would like to change his bid. Instantly there was a shout of protest from the other bidders. The noise was heard on the street and passersby wondered what was going on.

When a semblance of quiet was restored, the bidders were told that all were at liberty to change their bids if they so desired, as the sale was a private one and not an auction. After more protests it was decided to postpone the sale until 3 o'clock in order that the bidders could confer with their principals and revamp their bids. Because of the uproar at 1 o'clock the later sale was held in the vaults of the Carnegie Safe Deposit Company in the basement. Harris, Forbes & Co. were the successful bidders for $550,000 worth of New York State 3 per cent. bonds. The price paid was $100.781. The Guaranty Trust Company bought $430,000 worth of New York City bonds. The price paid was $98.012.

Yesterday was the last day on which William J. Cummins could change his plea of not guilty to the charge of grand larceny found against him by the Grand Jury last week. His counsel, Stephen Baldwin, sent word to District Attorney Whitman that they would stand trial on the original plea. Mr. Baldwin said he was ready to go to trial at any date named by the District Attorney.

CHESAPEAKE EXPLAINS PLANS

Purpose of the $125,000,000 Bond Issue Is Partly for Chicago Line.

Frank Trumbull, Chairman of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, in a circular to the shareholders issued yesterday explains the general purpose of the recently announced new mortgage to cover an authorized issue of $125,000,000 of bonds. He points to the growth of the Chesapeake & Ohio, and says that while it is impossible to predict to what proportions the traffic of the company may expand, the Directors look forward confidently to its future growth and mean to fully prepare for it. The lines which the Chesapeake & Ohio now control, the circular says, occupy a strong strategic position for public service and for the augmentation of the company's profits.

Among the requirements of the company is mentioned the need of increasing the facilities of the new line to Chicago. Mr. Trumbull says that this line, although in very good condition for a railroad of its class, is not adequate for heavy traffic or fast freight or passenger service. The improvement of this line is already under way.

The stockholders are to be asked to authorize the issuance of the new bonds in foreign currencies as well as in American money. This suggests that the plans being outlined for the placing of the bonds provide for the sale of some part of them in the European markets.

Kills Himself and Blames Brother.

William Jacobsen of 1,316 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, committed suicide in Prospect Park yesterday by taking poison. He was found dying on a bench by a policeman. In his pocket was a note addressed to his brother, Henry, an official of a candy manufacturing concern at 350 Park Avenue, in which William said that if Henry had treated him better he would not have killed himself. It is understood that the brothers had been involved in a lawsuit.

CURB HITS A STOCK BOOM.

Association Now in Control Puts a Damper on the Porcupine Excitement.

The newly created New York Curb Market Association made its first show of authority in a resolution adopted at yesterday's meeting, calculated to check the boom in stocks of the new gold fields at Porcupine, Ontario. Interest in the "Porcupine stocks" have been little behind that of the old days of the Cobalt exploitation, when not only the Curb speculators but big New York capitalists plunged into the half-developed properties of the camp. The collapse of the Cobalt boom and of the Nevada gold camp fluctuations gave the Curb a blow from which it has not yet recovered.

Enormously valuable properties have grown up at Cobalt, and the same is true of some of the Nevada camps, but where the public had opportunity to buy shares of one really valuable property there were hundreds of wildcat stocks to catch the money that flowed into the market.

The Curb Association is now wrestling with the problem of keeping the outside market clear of wildcat stocks, based on the excitement over the Porcupine discoveries. The resolution passed yesterday forbids the members of the association from advertising or furnishing quotations of any stocks not listed on the Curb without specifically saying that these stocks are not listed.

WISE DENOUNCES RUSSIA.

Rabbi Would Have Us Deal with Her as We Have with Mexico.

BOSTON, Mass., March 31.—"It merely remains for us to have the courage to face Russia and to confirm in name the denunciation of the treaties which the conduct of Russia has terminated in fact," declared Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York to-night at the conclusion of an address on "The Moral and Economic Effects of Race Discrimination." America's countenancing Russia's refusal to recognise passports issued by this country to former Russian Jews is to accept such discrimination as valid, in Dr. Wise's opinion. He said the United States must deal with Russia as we did with Mexico.

Dr. Wise began his discourse with the declaration that "few tendencies in American life to-day are more menacing than shutting out the negro toiler from the ranks of organized labor." The result of continuing to bar the negro, he said, would be to "Cossackize the negro race. His end will be tragic, but no less tragic will be the consequences to American industrial democracy." Negroes, he added, would be converted into an army of hirelings, bought and bribed from time to time to break down the strength of the American toiler.
